PRESIDENT IS CONFIDENT GREAT MAJORITY OF PEOPLE WISH HIM FULL SUCCESS

DEFENDS USE OF BOARDS

He Writes Friend That They Aid in Search for the Truth.

PROGRESS HIS INSPIRATION

He Likens Partisans Who Seek His Failure to "Mud Pie" Makers.

TRIALS LIKE "HAIR SHIRT"

Letter Responds to Encouraging Greetings From Dr. Thompson of Ohio State University.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 12.—Expressing confidence that the great majority, irrespective of party, stood behind him, President Hoover, in a letter made public here tonight made known his opinion of his political opponents and "partisans desirous that the President should fail."

Holding that if the "blots" due to those "whose daily toll is to mix mud pies" were other than exceptions, "this nation would not have swept to a mightier and mightier destiny every year since the Independence," the President declared "the discovery and promulgation of the truth to be "the vital question of public action."

He counted his official trials as akin to the wearing of the hair shirt donned by medieval sinners as penance, saying that "every man has a few mental hair shirts" and "Presidents differ only by their larger wardrobe."

With humorous irony he referred to "certain individuals, newspapers, associations and institutional officials as haberdashers in this regard with a high generosity."

The President's letter was written in response to a missive of New Year's greeting from Dr. W. O. Thompson, president emeritus of Ohio State University, in which he adjured the President not to be disheartened by agitators and falsehoods.

The President's Letter.

The President's letter read as follows:

The White House,
Washington,
Jan. 10, 1930.

Dr. W. O. Thompson, the Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.
Mr. Dear Mr. Thompson:

The solicitude and philosophic ripeness of your letter of Jan. 7 requires more than reciprocation of kindly holiday greetings.

Possibly, if I had either the time or the inclination to worry over the evils which lurk around the White House, it might decrease my faith in human goodness, but fortunately the insistent need for determination of definite action in public matters inhibits such contemplations.

The human flood which flows through the White House shows all the dark colorings and the flotsam that you mention. But it is brightened more than you think by many who, regardless of party, genuinely wish to help the President to succeed in his task. The sons of evil have at least collateral descendants in every generation.

Of course it is true that malice is sometimes the politicians' key to newspaper headlines and there will always be partisans desirous that the President should fail, even if their strategems injure the country, or whose daily toil is to mix mud pies.

Considers Blots Exceptions.

But if these blots were other than exceptions, this nation would not have swept to a mightier and mightier destiny every year since the Independence.

You well know of the wearing of hair shirts in the Middle Ages by way of reminder of sin and trouble. Somewhere lately I said that every man has a few mental hair shirts and that President differ only by their larger wardrobe—for certain individuals, newspapers, associations and institutions officiate as haberdashers in this regard, with a high generosity whcih guarantees both humility and urbanity.

As against all this the President has, for a few short years, the opportunity to speed the orderly march of a glorious people. And the inspiration of that moving host is compensation that comes in larger measure to him than to any other man.

You aptly penetrate the vital ques-

Fire Wrecks Grain Elevator With $2,000,000 Loss at Leith

Wireless to The New York Times.

EDINBURGH, Jan. 12.—Fanned by a high wind, flames today destroyed the main part of a grain-handling plant at Leith Docks, which is the port for Edinburgh. Damage was estimated at around $2,000,000.

The grain elevator, a hundred feet high and two-thirds filled with 70,000 quarters of wheat (a quarter is 28 pounds), crashed to the ground and the blazing grain poured in cascades over the surrounding buildings. A new super-elevator, 200 feet high, which dominates the docks, was saved.

HARKNESS MILLIONS FOR YALE HOUSING

In Providing for Quadrangle System He Is Believed to Equal $12,000,000 Gift to Harvard.

ANGELL HAILS NEW IDEAL

President, Announcing Approval of Program, Looks to 'Epochal' Advance in College Life.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 12.—Edward Stephen Harkness, Yale, '97, of New York City has given funds sufficient to insure the realization of the Yale quadrangle system of dormitories, as outlined by President James R. Angell of the university in his address to the graduates on alumni day, Feb. 22, 1929, according to an announcement made today by President Angell.

While no definite figures have been authorized by Yale officials, a belief exists that the total will be not far from the $12,000,000 which Mr. Harkness agreed to give to Harvard University to establish its house plan.

After extended study of the details of the program, a committee representing the corporation and the faculty submitted a final report, which, according to today's announcement, has just been approved by the corporation, or trustee board, of the university.

According to this, the new halls, together with the Sterling Quadrangle already under way, the reconstructed dormitories and those which are planned for the students of the Sheffield Scientific School, will serve to meet the housing requirements of undergraduates, except the freshmen.

Each quadrangle will house from 200 to 250 students. There will be attractive lounges and dining halls and commodious quarters for the head of each quadrangle and for the resident fellows. The sites are close to the present centre of the university.

In his announcement President Angell said:

"It is wholly impossible adequately to express our obligation to Mr. Harkness for this latest of his gifts to Yale, which adds one more to the long list of generous benefactions to schools, colleges, universities, hospitals, libraries and museums, which, with characteristic modesty he has often made in such a manner as to escape public knowledge.

"His gift at this time enables us to launch under the most favorable possible auspices a long-considered plan which we feel sure will be of epoch-making significance in the future life of the undergraduate,

POLICE CRIME BUREAU STARTS TODAY, AIDED BY SOCIAL WORKERS

Preventive Agency Will Begin Operations in Crowded Areas Under Temporary Chief.

EXPERT WILL HEAD BODY

Several Welfare Leaders Under Consideration—Two Aides to Supervise Staff's Work.

FIVE ADVISERS PLANNED

New Police Branch to Find Causes of Delinquency and Bring Children in Contact With Social Groups.

A new arm of the Police Department to be known as the Crime Prevention Bureau will begin operations today. In making this announcement yesterday Police Commissioner Whalen made public a report submitted to him by the New York City Commission on Crime Prevention, recommending establishment of the bureau and the appointment of a Deputy Commissioner to direct its activities.

For the present, the new bureau will function on a modest scale under a temporary head in the more congested precincts of the city where breeding places of crime are most numerous. The appointment of the permanent head of the bureau awaits the adoption of an enabling act by the Municipal Assembly and the approval of Mayor Walker. Several widely known leaders in social service work are being considered for the post, the commissioner said.

The crime commission's report recommending that the "work of the welfare units of the Police Department be reorganized along practical, modern social work lines," was drawn up by its subcommittee on police welfare units and social agencies, whose members are:

William Edwin Hall, chairman
Mrs. Willard Parker Jr.
Lady Margaret Armstrong
W. Bruce Cobb
Mrs. Sidney Borg
Edwin J. Cooley
Miss Jane Hoey
William L. Butcher

Suggest Deputy and Aides.

The committee's plan of organization, which will be followed by Commissioner Whalen, contemplates the appointment of an individual "well qualified as a social service executive," as the deputy in charge of the crime prevention work. He is to have two executive assistants, one to supervise the work of the policemen and the other to take charge of the policewomen. It would "appear advisable" that the latter assistant be a woman, the report says.

The report recommends a citizens' advisory committee of five to be appointed by the Police Commissioner "to promote an active working relationship" between the bureau and the social agencies. The head of the bureau would serve as chairman of this committee.

Those assigned to the Crime Prevention Bureau, the report adds, should be "men and women who are active, alert, well trained and socially minded police officers." They "must be in sympathy with the purposes of the bureau and realize that the training and molding of the character of boys will very materially assist good government in the years to come," says the report. It is further suggested that a small group of "already well-trained officers" could undertake the work at the start, while the bulk of those selected could "be required to take an intensive course of training intended to fit them" for the work of the bureau. The women's division of the department should be "an integral part" of the bureau, the committee said.

Declaring that "50 per cent of our delinquents" are minors, the report says that police departments in the

Fifty Sing Sing Guards Threaten to Quit If Bill for Five-Year Enlistment Is Passed

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Jan. 12.—More than fifty of the 183 guards at Sing Sing prison have informed officials that they will resign if the bill to take the 800 guards of the State penal institutions out of civil service is enacted into law, it was learned here today.

The dissatisfaction of the prison personnel with the measure was voiced when a copy of the bill, introduced in the State Senate by Bernard Downing, minority leader, was received here. A letter of protest, signed by many of the guards, was sent to Governor Roosevelt.

The proposed law carries out the recommendations made to Governor Roosevelt by Colonel George F. Chandler as a result of his investigation of the most recent riot at Auburn prison. It would create a guard corps made up of six separate companies, with one company at each of the six large State penal institutions. The members of these companies would be appointed by the head of the corps, who would be an inspector named by the State Commissioner of Correction.

The guards would be required to enlist for a five-year term, and if they withdrew before the period expired would be guilty of a misdemeanor. The bill would permit the transfer of the guards from one institution to another.

While most Sing Sing officials, including Warden Lawes, were silent about opposition to the bill, it was learned that the present guards, now working under civil service, particularly were dissatisfied with the prospect of being shifted regularly from one prison to another. One man pointed out that the keepers were mostly married men and would find it difficult to shift their homes with the transfers.

It also was contended that any of the present guards who objected to serving under the conditions of the new law would have to resign as soon as it went into effect or else serve a five-year compulsory term.

Milan Goodrich of Ossining, chairman of the penal affairs committee of the Assembly, said:

"The bill is the silliest thing I ever heard of in the way of proposed legislation."

Assemblyman Alexander Garnjost of Yonkers said:

"I will look pretty carefully into that bill before I would vote for it. The trouble with our prison department is not with the guards but up toward the top."

Former Warden George W. Kirchwey, Dr. Amos O. Squire, medical examiner of Westchester County and former chief surgeon at the prison, and the Rev. Father William E. Cashin, former Roman Catholic chaplain at the prison, also expressed opposition to the system which the bill would set up.

P. J. HAMILL, LEADER IN ASSEMBLY, DIES

Succumbs Only 2 Weeks After Being Named Successor to the Late Maurice Bloch.

IN HOSPITAL FOR A WEEK

Had Submitted to Emergency Operation for Appendicitis —Was 44 Years Old.

Assemblyman Peter J. Hamill, who was chosen only two weeks ago as minority leader in the New York State Assembly, died in Polyclinic Hospital at 12:20 this morning. He had been ill at the Hospital for the past week after undergoing an emergency operation for appendicitis on Jan. 6.

His wife, his brother, George Hamill, and several friends, including Police Captain Thomas O'Connor, William Warren, Joseph V. O'Leary, and David Mahoney were at his bedside when death occurred.

Mr. Hamill became ill a week ago Sunday night at his home at 34 Dominick Street. Dr. Paul F. Sarubbi of 21 Oliver Street, his family physician, diagnosed the ailment as an acute attack of appendicitis with a possible rupture. Mr. Hamill was removed to the hospital at 3 o'clock Monday morning. An hour later Dr. Frederick C. Keller performed the operation assisted by Dr. Sarubbi.

His conditions was at first reported as "satisfactory."

In Assembly Since 1916.

Mr. Hamill was Tammany leader of the First Assembly District and a member of the Assembly since 1916, when he succeeded former Governor Alfred E. Smith, who then became Sheriff of New York County. Both Mr. Smith and Mr. Hamill were political protégés of the late Thomas F. Foley, Mr. Hamill's predecessor as Tammany leader of the First Assembly District.

The decision to select him as successor to Mr. Bloch was made at a conference of party leaders immediately after Mr. Bloch's funeral. At that time he was the senior Democratic member of the lower house.

In 1925 Mr. Hamill succeeded the late Thomas F. Foley as Tammany leader of the east side of the district. There was a delay in electing him leader after Mr. Foley's death. It was said at the time that he was not the first choice of Mr. Smith for leader.

During his service in the Assembly Mr. Hamill had been known as an active and capable legislator. He was a graduate of Cathedral College and Fordham Law School.

Born on East Side.

Born in New Chambers Street on the east side forty-four year ago, Mr. Hamill attended Public School 1 and later went to St. James Parochial School. After his graduation there in 1902 he attended Cathedral College, whence he was graduated in 1907.

During Mayor Gaynor's administrations, Mr. Hamill became an inspector of Weights and Measures and later Chief Inspector. He held this office until he became a candidate for the Assembly.

Mr. Hamill was married and had a daughter, Mary, and a son, Peter.

1930 WORK IN STATE PUT AT HALF BILLION

Public Construction Projects Reported to President at $475,275,442.

CITY'S TOTAL $244,800,000

Governor, in Sending Data, Lists Expenditures Planned by the State as $104,610,357.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—About $500,000,000 will be expended on public works in this State during the present year by the State administration and by the cities and counties, according to a report recently sent to Washington by Governor Roosevelt in response to a request from President Hoover, who asked for the figures in connection with the recent business conferences to guide the Federal Government in its fight on unemployment.

The Governor has made public a letter written by him to Secretary of Commerce Lamont, together with a tabulated report showing what the municipalities within the State expect to spend on public improvements which will call for the employment of labor on a large scale. The Governor also gives figures showing the proposed State expenditures during the coming fiscal year.

With a number of cities not yet heard from, the total of projected expenditures by the State, cities and counties is:

Items.	Totals.
State projects	$104,610,357
Cities	329,574,137
Counties	41,090,948
Total	$475,275,442

The projected expenditures by the State exceed by $22,422,057 the amount spent by the State for construction purposes during the preceding fiscal year. Comparative figures included in the tabulation of city expenditures in most instances show increases over last year's construction figures.

New York City will contribute $244,800,000 to the total for the cities, according to a report submitted to the Governor by Charles S. Hand, secretary to Mayor Walker.

Buffalo spent $5,255,000 last year and for this year plans to spend $24,413,000. Rochester spent $6,000,000 and has budgeted $10,360,000 for the building of schools and the construction of bridges, sewers and subways. Syracuse did not send in to the Executive Chamber the comparative figures for last year, but is to spend during the present $7,825,000 for similar purposes.

Text of Governor's Letter.

The text of Governor Roosevelt's letter to Secretary Lamont follows:

Jan. 8, 1930.

Hon. Robert R. Lamont,
Secretary of Commerce,
Washington, D. C.
My dear Mr. Secretary:

I have received today from the Division of the Budget the following data in reply to President Hoover's telegram of Nov. 24 and your letter of recent date. The length of time necessary to the collection of this data was occasioned by the fact that my recommendations to the Legislature regarding State appropriations had to be completed, and also because some of the municipalities were slow in answering the query sent out.

I am glad, however, to report that the appropriations from general funds, for construction in the State of New York, as recommended by me to the Legislature, is $94,610,357, which is an increase of $22,422,057 over the appropriations of 1929. In addition to this, we will also expend from the receipts of bonds for general improvements, $10,000,000.

The Superintendent of Public Works has obtained from the various counties a statement showing that the up-State counties will expend for highways, bridges, and other county improvements outside of cities, $41,090,548.

A query was sent to all the cities of the State, and the tabulation I am transmitting will set forth the

FIRST MODIFICATION MOVE

Measure Would Give President's Commission Two Years More to Study the Problem.

PEOPLE ARE HELD READY

Proposal Augments Interest With Which Capital Awaits the Wickersham Report.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The prohibition question will again be brought sharply to the front in Congress tomorrow when President Hoover will send to the Senate and House a preliminary report from his Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement with reference to its inquiries into the workings of our prohibition policy. With the report will go a review of its contents by Attorney General Mitchell, while the President, in a short letter of transmittal, is expected to make some comment on the work of the commission.

The interest in the prohibition issue aroused by the report will be augmented by what is believed to be the first definite move to ascertain whether or not the Federal prohibition laws should be modified. This move will be undertaken by Representative A. Piatt Andrew, Republican, of Massachusetts, in introducing a bill which in addition to extending the life of the commission for two years and appropriating $1,000,000 for its expenses, would authorize it to investigate and report to Congress at the earliest practicable date "what changes, if any, are necessary or desirable in the system of dealing with intoxicating liquors in the United States or in the laws relating thereto."

The draft of Mr. Andrew's bill contains nothing to suggest his views on the prohibition situation. It is entirely colorless in that regard, and in his explanation of his measure there was an absence of prejudicial opinion one way or the other concerning the country's favorite topic of conversation.

Says the People Want Facts.

Judging by Mr. Andrew's explanation, his bill is designed to follow out the practice of having a thorough inquiry into highly controversial public questions, to obtain unbiased judgment as to the scope and character of legislation, if, in the opinion of the law enforcement commission, after a protracted investigation, it is convinced that it is necessary.

"I am introducing this bill in the belief that the time has come when a majority of the American people are ready for an honest, dispassionate, constructive effort to deal with the problems of prohibition," Representative Andrew said.

"I assume that most of them would be unwilling to see the country return to the conditions which prevailed before the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment, and would be reluctant to espouse any proposal which would risk the benefits, economic, political and social, which prohibition has brought.

"But if, which is at least conceivable, some way could be found by which these benefits could be conserved, and the equally manifest evils which have developed under existing legislation could be curtailed or eliminated, I believe that reasonable people everywhere would welcome it.

"Whether such a way exists, or if it exists what it may be, could only be revealed by an unprejudiced, ex-

BRITAIN SEES PEACE PACTS REAL BASIS FOR NAVY CUTS; SENDS REPLY TO FRANCE

Australian Talkie Reaches Byrd, Who Quickly Sends His Thanks

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 12.—A talkie has been broadcast from the Prince Edward Theatre here to Admiral Byrd in the Antarctic and a reply was received within half an hour.

Maurice Chevalier's "The Love Parade" was the film broadcast. It was sent with a twenty-kilowatt transmitter, designed and made in Australia.

Joseph Hocker and Willard Vandeveer, camera men with the Byrd expedition, sent this message:

"This is the first sound reproduction received here. Admiral Byrd and the inhabitants of the Antarctic join us with thanks for the program and best wishes."

HAGUE NEAR ACCORD ON SANCTIONS ISSUE

Final French Proposal in All-Day Debate to Be Answered by Germans This Morning.

PARLEY FOREGOES HOLIDAY

Reynolds and Traylor Arrive With Names of 5 Americans Suggested to Head Bank.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 12.—After a day of fitful and sometimes acrimonious discussion it appears at midnight that the reparations conference has virtually agreed to a settlement of the thorny issue of sanctions. The final arrangements on this issue, which are expected tomorrow, should swing the deliberations toward a successful conclusion.

Premier Tardieu of France had made a rendezvous with the German delegation for this morning to which its members were to bring a yes or no answer to his proposal that the former Allies should regain the right to take sanctions if the Germans willfully defaulted on the Young plan, the World Court to be the judge of the willful default. In the morning the Germans debated their demand for the elimination of all reference to the Treaty of Versailles, to which M. Tardieu would not agree. The session was resumed after lunch, when he proposed a formula dropping reference to the Treaty of Versailles, but referring to the resumption of full treaty rights by the former allies.

One German Refuses.

Of the three German Ministers, Dr. Curtius, Foreign Minister, and Dr. Moldenhauer, the Finance Minister, accepted this form, but Dr. Wirth, the Minister for Occupied Regions, demanded that the decision with regard to Germany's good faith be left to the Council of the League of Nations. He gave as his reason that taking sanctions meant an issue threatening war. M. Tardieu at once declared that the real reason was that the World Court decisions were taken by a majority, whereas the League Council decisions were by unanimity. Dr. Curtius and Dr. Moldenhauer then left the session, leaving Dr. Wirth to debate the issue with M. Tardieu. After an hour's talk no decision had been reached.

After dinner, however, the three German Ministers met the French and Dr. Wirth renounced his demand for decision by the League Council on condition of a formula which the French regarded as ambiguous. At 11

World Disappointment and a Building Race Would Follow—To Consider Mediterranean.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The British Government made public tonight the text of its reply to the recent French memorandum concerning the naval arms conference which begins in London next week.

Although the questions raised by the French concerned America as much as England, this reply was from the British Government alone and was framed without official consultation with Washington or Ambassador Dawes, who did not see the text until after it was sent to Paris.

Whereas the French note had expressed much skepticism as to the wisdom of basing the naval disarmament negotiations on the Kellogg pact, according to the lead taken by England and America in the preliminary proceedings, the British reply expresses the greatest confidence in that pact. It also tells France with considerable emphasis that with the Kellogg treaty and all the other agencies for peace now in force the world is expecting the great nations to do something really tangible in the elimination of war right now and not go on postponing what may be done first because it is not possible to do everything at once.

Denies Lack of Faith in Past.

In this connection the British note repudiates, so far as England is concerned, the intimation of the French that even America and Great Britain have not had sufficient faith in the Kellogg pact to make any substantial reduction in their estimates of naval armament.

"His Majesty's Government," says the British reply, "notes the suggestion of the French Government that it is doubtless due to the absence from the Kellogg pact of any provisions for its methodical application that the British have been deterred from contemplating any considerable reduction of their naval establishment. His Majesty's Government desires to remove the error on which this observation rests. In response to the better prospects of peace and of an international agreement, the British proposals, as a matter of fact, provide for a very considerable reduction in the strength which the British Empire has considered necessary for all categories of combatant vessels, from capital ships to submarines."

Only night before last A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, declared the government had cut its estimate of required cruisers from seventy to fifty vessels and that it had done so chiefly because of its confidence in the Kellogg pact. Mr. Alexander asserted again tonight the complete willingness of his government to abolish submarines altogether and materially to reduce the number of destroyers.

Reductions Termed Vital.

In further comment on the French criticism that there are not enough guarantees of peace, the British note says much trust is placed in the fact that fifty-six nations signed the Kellogg anti-war pact. It declares that if a beginning is not made in naval reduction the world will be forced again to trust only in military forces.

As to the distinction which the French note draws between the Kellogg pact and the covenant of the League of Nations, the British reply is that the two documents may be considered as complementary.

The French suggestion that there should be a special Mediterranean naval treaty, including France, England, Italy and Spain after the manner of the four-power Pacific treaty, is met by the British reply to the effect that the League of Nations already provides a counterpart in the Mediterranean of what the four-power treaty affords in the Pacific Ocean.

Two Orphan Boys and Youth Die in Fire; Smoke-Stricken Woman Revived by Police

Two orphan boys and a young man died from inhaling smoke in a fire at 93-08 Liberty Avenue, Richmond Hill, early last evening. A woman who was trapped with them above the flames was rescued unconscious from the fumes, but was revived after a hard fight by police rescue squads and the emergency crew of the Jamaica Gas Company.

The dead were John Harold, 5 years old; Charles Melvy, 6, and William Schultz, 21. Mrs. Martha Schultz, mother of William, was overcome. Mrs. Schultz was boarding the children for the New York Foundling Hospital, Lexington Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street.

The flames started about 6:30 P. M. in the cellar of an A. & P. store occupying the ground floor of the two-story brick building. They spread so quickly through the lower floor that the four occupants of the Schultz apartment on the second floor had no chance to get out.

Patrolman Matthew Smith of the Richmond Hill precinct and several passersby brought out the victims of the smoke. A temporary hospital was organized on the sidewalk. Attempts to revive the two children and Schultz were unavailing, but Mrs. Schultz was revived without any apparent ill effects except shock. She explained that the three who died had been in a small room next to an airshaft, up which the smoke had ascended from the basement. She had been asleep in a front room, she said.

Mary Fisher, 6 years old, another ward of the Foundling Hospital who had been placed with Mrs. Schultz, was playing outside at the time of the fire. Mrs. Schultz had been employed by the hospital as a "boarding mother" for a long time and had been considered reliable, it was said at the institution. The children who died had been under her care for about two years.

Captain Herbert Graham of the Richmond Hill police station and assistant fire marshals from the office of Fire Marshal Thomas Brophy found that the flames had started in a rubbish pile in the basement, apparently from spontaneous combustion. They did little damage to the store and were easily extinguished.

Two Frozen to Death in Arizona Snow; Blizzard Maroons Motorists in California

By The Associated Press.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 12.—Two men were found frozen to death tonight and several others were missing on the Jerome-Prescott highway, as the result of one of the worst snowstorms in the history of Xavapai County. The dead are Timothy Kirkpatrick, manager of a stage company at Jerome, and David King, a truck driver.

They were found three miles from their stalled motor car near the summit of Mingus Mountain.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12.—About 1,300 motorists were reported snowbound in the Sierra foothills between San Andreas and Angels Camp today in the wake of a heavy snowstorm which swept California from the Oregon border to Mexico.

The marooned motorists, on their way to the annual Snow Carnival at Calaveras Big Trees, took refuge in ranch houses. Power and telephone liens were affected, leaving Stockton and adjacent cities without power or light at intervals during the day. In the southern part of the State 500 cabin residents were isolated from outside communication, while new blizzards trapped motorists on the Ridge Route and Cajon Pass Highways.

Relief parties on snowshoes and skiis went to the aid of many women and children, prisoners in their cabins about Arrowhead Lake. In the San Bernardino Range they were reported to have fuel supplies for only another day.

In some localities the snowfall was the first since 1912 and orange groves were whitened.

EMOTIONAL, ATMOSPHERIC Palais de la Méditerranée, Nice, France.—Advt.

...cy France is told she must not carry water on both shoulders with reference to the League by insisting on the exclusive validity of the covenant in some cases and ignoring it in others. The British Government on this point, however, expresses willingness to exchange views on the Mediterranean with all the powers concerned. It is relevant in that matter that Premier MacDonald has just decided that Spanish participation in the London conference would be premature, as the question of the Mediterranean is not likely to come up early in the discussion.

The MacDonald Government also declares its willingness to discuss the possibility of some arrangement based on the French proposal of a compromise between the Anglo-American policy of naval reduction by different categories of ships and the French desire for global limitation without regard to how the maximum tonnage allowed to each nation is to be distributed among its different types of war vessels.

The compromise suggested by the French note was in effect that there be a limitation of the total tonnage of each nation but supplemented by a device for publicity as to how each nation uses such total with reference to the different classes of ships.

England agrees with France that there is interdependence between the nations' sea, air and land armaments, but the British Government does not "take the view that no attempt should be made to deal with one unless all are being dealt with simultaneously."

In conclusion, the British Government expresses pleasure that the French believe that "none of the problems mentioned in their memorandum amount to irremovable obstacles."

THREE POINTS PLEASE PARIS.

Tonnage, Mediterranean Accord and Future Prospects Noted.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The British reply to the French memorandum on naval arms limitation sent to the powers on Dec. 20, was handed to the Quai d'Orsay this afternoon and is under study by French Foreign Office officials, who are constantly engaged in preparing for the London conference.

At first reading the British note does not appear to have brought to solution many of the problems raised in the French memorandum, but has at least brought to France official recognition of her views and assurance that these views will meet with due consideration in the discussions impending. This means much to the French, who at certain times have felt that the conference plans were proceeding with too little preparation. And at times they even felt that the French thesis of navy limitation was finding little sympathy.

Three things in the British note were received by the French with decided satisfaction. First is the statement by the British Government that, notwithstanding the British preference for limitation by categories, it is willing to consider the French proposal for a transitional agreement between that theory and the method of global tonnage. This gives the French hope that when her arguments are heard an agreement can eventually be reached, which will be satisfactory to all the powers upon that score, and it is one on which the French always have felt there has been room for agreement.

Next, the French are extremely pleased to find in the British note assurance that Britain considers a navy accord as only a preliminary to a broad general accord on disarmament, in which land, sea and aviation forces would be regarded as integral. They see in this concession British assent, too, to their contention that the London agreements should be made definitely preliminary to the work of the Geneva Disarmament Commission, and this, perhaps, is the point of the British memorandum which will bring France the greatest reassurance.

Finally, in regard to a Mediterranean pact the French are glad to find readiness for discussion. There is a belief here, perhaps, that the French memorandum conveyed an idea of a much more far-reaching compact than the French intended, and it is believed that perhaps a further exchange of views on this point would clear up the matter.

As to the question of security, the French mind will ever be at variance with the idea of making peace treaties binding without including sanctions. It is doubtful whether it can be made to share the ideas of security advanced in the British note on the basis of the Kellogg treaty. This the French regard as a useful implement in bringing the United States into support of the spirit of Geneva and the Locarno compacts and for its moral effect upon future violators of any of these agreements, but it is doubtful whether they could ever be induced to scale down their defenses upon the basis of any feeling of safety the Kellogg agreement inspires in the French people.

Text of British Reply to French Arms Note

LONDON, Jan. 17 (AP).—The text of the British reply to the French naval memorandum follows:

His Majesty's Government of the United Kingdom has given most careful consideration to the memorandum communicated to them on Dec. 20, wherein the French Government explain their views upon various questions connected with the forthcoming London Naval Conference. His Majesty's Government much appreciate the frank and friendly attitude of the French Government in furnishing them with so comprehensive an elucidation of their point of view and in reiterating their assurance that they are determined to make the conference successful.

In issuing the invitation to the London conference, his Majesty's Government considered that it would not conduce to the success of the conference if the various governments were to entrench themselves before the conference opened in positions, based perhaps on misunderstanding, from which they could not recede; nor in the invitation did his Majesty's Government refer to the obligations contracted under the covenant or to the question of national security and such considerations because they are clearly inherent in all disarmament negotiations and must be in the mind of every nation taking part in the conference.

One of the great advantages in the frequent meetings at Geneva is that governments have opportunities to understand each other's respective positions and problems and his Majesty's Government felt it unnecessary to recite elementary obligations, internal or external, but rather to concentrate upon supremely important problems which have to be faced. Consideration at the outset in such friendly spirit of the French memorandum will, of course, be in the minds of all delegates.

It is true there may not yet have been devised complete machinery for sanctions to enforce the various peace agreements now in existence; but meantime much can be done, and his Majesty's Government place considerable trust in the fact that fifty-six countries have declared their intention to renounce war as a measure of national policy and to resort only to pacific means for settlement of international disputes.

Unless a beginning in the reduction of naval armaments is held to be justified by the measure of security already achieved through the Covenant of the League of Nations, the quadruple treaty relating to the Pacific, the treaties of Locarno, signature of the optional clause of the statutes of the Permanent Court of International Justice by thirty-three countries, and finally by the treaty for renunciation of war, public expectation will be disappointed, a tendency toward expansion in arms, which is only too evident already, will develop, and nations will be taught once more in practice to trust only to military preparations for security.

His Majesty's Government earnestly hope the nations attending the London conference may by agreement on reduced naval strengths register their confidence in the great advance made since the war in the provision for national security by political agreement.

His Majesty's Government observe with interest the distinction drawn in the French memorandum between the Pact of Paris and the Covenant of the League. They would suggest, however, that the two documents may also be regarded as complementary, one of the other.

From that standpoint the pact of Paris by its renunciation of war as a national policy may be held by States which are members of the League of Nations to have completed the structure of peace which the more restricted language of the covenant had for the time left unfinished. His Majesty's Government accept fully and unreservedly all obligations of the covenant, which, however, must not be held to have involved delay in progressive steps for disarmament for which the pact of Paris is justification.

His Majesty's Government note the suggestion by the French Government that it is doubtless due to the absence from the Kellogg pact of any provisions for its methodical application that they have been deterred from contemplating any considerable reduction in naval establishment. His Majesty's Government desire to remove the error upon which this reservation rests. In response to better prospects of peace and of an international agreement, the British proposals as a matter of fact provide for a very considerable reduction in the strength which the British Empire has considered necessary in all categories of combatant vessels, from capital ships to submarines.

For Limits on Categories.

In Part II, Section 1, of its memorandum, the French Government refer to a system of limitation of naval armaments by "global tonnage." His Majesty's Government have consistently expressed preference for dealing with the problem of naval disarmament by strict limitation of the types, tonnages and guns of all categories of warships, since they feel confident any other method of limitation must tend to preserve those elements of competition and uncertainty which will be one of the express objects of the conference to eliminate.

The problem of naval armament involves not only the amount of tonnage but the use to which it is put. Nevertheless, his Majesty's Government has studied with great care the "transactional proposal" to which the French Government refer and are ready to discuss the possibility of some arrangement based on that proposal.

The French Government emphasize in Part II, Section two, of their memorandum that there is close interdependence between various defensive armaments of a country and give reasons why they regard this as a fundamental principle of their policy of national defense.

His Majesty's Government agree that problems of naval, land and air disarmament cannot be completely disassociated one from the other, but they do not take the view that no attempt should be made to deal with one unless all are being dealt with simultaneously. His Majesty's Government consider the approach to disarmament may best be facilitated by attacking the problem in detail as is now proposed in the naval conference.

In the end, a complete disarmament agreement must cover the whole field of arms, and steady and continuous work will be required until that field has been covered. They therefore join the French Government in earnestly hoping that the conference will result in an agreement which will commend itself to all powers represented on the preparatory commission (of the League of Nations) and by facilitating the task of that body hasten the summoning of a general disarmament conference.

As regards Part II, Section three, of the memorandum, his Majesty's Government note with satisfaction that the French Government, while taking due account of the naval requirements imposed by the geographical position of France, will, like his Majesty's Government, continue to observe strict moderation in appraisement of their needs, and that the French delegation will have no difficulty in indicating the extent of the tonnage required to meet the needs of their country.

Stirred by Mediterranean Plan.

His Majesty's Government have learned with interest of the views of the French Government regarding the desirability of a treaty of mutual guarantees and non-aggression between the Mediterranean powers. They agree that the four-power treaty relating to the Pacific, which resulted from the Washington conference, exerted a happy influence upon negotiations of the Washington naval treaty.

His Majesty's Government can only point out at this stage that a treaty such as that suggested by the French Government appears to go considerably further than the Pacific treaty above mentioned, which provided only for the summoning of a conference for settlement of controversies and for joint consultation in the face of aggressive action.

Inasmuch as all Mediterranean powers are members of the League of Nations, it would appear that facilities already exist for joint consultation in event of need. There is a great measure of security in this, but his Majesty's Government will be glad to exchange views on the subject with all the powers concerned.

In conclusion, his Majesty's Government welcome with particular pleasure the opinion expressed by the French Government that none of the problems mentioned in the memorandum amount to irremovable obstacles, and they share entirely in the confidence felt by the French Government that there will be cordial cooperation among the delegations to promote the great aims of the conference and that success will terminate their labors.

LEAGUE WILL SEEK VIEWS OF AMERICA

Council Not to Pass Up Chance to Exchange Opinions With Non-Members.

HEAVY GUARD FOR GRANDI

Police Surround Italian Foreign Minister, but Report of Plot Against Him Is Discounted.

By CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 12.—The opportunity which the opening of the League of Nations Council session tomorrow gives to all powers represented at the London Naval Arms Conference to sound out the United States, since it is a non-League, exchange naval views, is apparently not going to be overlooked. Such quiet naval conversations preliminary to what Arthur Henderson this afternoon called the "all important" five-power conference loom tonight as the outstanding element of this meeting of League statesmen, especially in view of the recent British reply to the French memorandum.

M. Briand, who arrived tonight, is expected to confer with the Spanish member of the Council, Quinones de Leon, over the French proposal of a Mediterranean Locarno, with Spain as one of the signatories. Since Spain is only to be represented in the parley of the Council, the meeting provides a good occasion for the interested naval powers to learn Spain's attitude, and Señor de Leon, who has just made a special trip to Madrid, is in a position to give it.

The importance which the Italian Foreign Minister Dino Grandi—who arrived tonight under heavy guard from the Hague—attaches to the naval talks during the Council session is shown by the fact that he is accompanied by one of Rome's leading naval experts, Commander Prince Fabrizio Ruspoli. The Prince was Italian naval expert at the Versailles conference and during the sessions of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission. The usual practice of the Italian, French and Spanish delegations to stay at the same hotel during Council sessions naturally will facilitate the privacy of their talks this time when they desire it most.

Henderson to Leave Tomorrow.

In the British delegation doubt is expressed that the naval talks will be important, as far as Mr. Henderson is concerned. It is pointed out that he is leaving Tuesday for London and it is arranged that all the chief delegates to the conference will arrive there in time for the preliminary talks Saturday and Sunday. Moreover, Mr. Henderson has already discussed naval affairs with M. Briand in Paris en route here. Incidentally, it is evident that the great satisfaction Mr. Henderson expressed yesterday with that talk was not merely the usual diplomatic statement. There is reason to believe that he found M. Briend's attitude, particularly his reaction to the British reply to the French memorandum, more favorable than he had expected.

Although the British profess no desire to push the naval talks here, it is stated that if signor Grandi and the others desire to converse with Mr. Hendersan he is willing. Since the Council agenda is rather meagre, time should not be lacking for conversations even if the session ends as expected Thursday night to make room for the London parley.

Mr. Henderson, in receiving the world press this afternoon, confined himself to the agenda, alluding to disarmament only to explain it was essential for him to return early to London for he was "very much engaged in the preparations for the all-important naval conference."

The item on the Council agenda which seemed to preoccupy his most concerns Palestine, about which he said: "We have a grave responsibility and a very difficult task," and added that to prevent a recurrence of recent outbreaks no effort should be spared in settling disputed points and in obtaining the acceptance of Jews and Moslems. Referring to the "hesitancy" of the Mandates Commission toward accepting the British proposal—which now comes before the Council—to have the League name a commission to investigate the Wailing Wall controversy, Mr. Henderson hoped a further study would show it to be in accordance with the terms of the mandate. The British are especially keen to put the responsibility for deciding this dispute on the League so as to escape the risk of displeasing either the Jews in England or Moslems throughout the empire, particularly in view of the present situation in India.

Other Items Stressed.

Mr. Henderson also stressed items on the agenda calling for the appointment of a committee of eleven to report to the next assembly how peace pacts for the renunciation of war might be best embodied in the covenant, the convocation of a conference for a tariff truce and pushing the League work to limit the manufacture of drugs to medicinal needs.

Although many here now believe that the alleged anti-Fascist plot to kill Foreign Minister Grandi during the Council session was a false alarm, if not really a frame-up, as some charge, by Fascist agents provocateurs against some of their leading advervaries. Elaborate precautions marked the entry into Geneva of the first Italian Foreign Minister to attend the Council. The public was excluded from the railway station and reporters had to prove their identity in order to pass each of three police cordons thrown round it. The group which met Signor Grandi on the platform was composed chiefly of twoscore of police and plainclothes men. Almost an equal number of police and detectives were posted at the hotel to which he was quickly and unceremoniously taken.

The police official in charge at the station, when asked if similar measures were contemplated for the arrival of M. Briand who was due on a later train, said: "Oh, no, there will be nothing for him." The Swiss police say they have discovered nothing to support the Italian Government's charges of a plot being hatched at Geneva, but since Rome has been demanding protection they seem bent on giving the impression that the Fascisti need even more than the Bolsheviki when they come to Geneva. As for all the statesmen representing regimes other than these two they come and go as quetly as M. Briand did tonight.

That five Foreign Ministers are attending the Council despite the fact that it is sandwiched between the Hague and London conferences and that its agenda is relatively routine is considered here to measure the prestige the League has acquired. In addition to M. Briand, Signor Grandi and Mr. Henderson the others are Augustine Zaleski of Poland, who will preside at the session, and Hjalmar Procope of Finland. It is known that the German Foreign Minister Curtius hope dto the last to continue Stressmann's policy by attending the Council was unable to leave The Hague.

GERMAN JEWS MEET TO URGE WORLD PEACE

Suppression of the War Spirit Stressed at Berlin Gathering—Einstein Sends Greeting.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—Among the greetings addressed to a mass meeting of the Jewish Peace League, held here tonight, was one from Professor Albert Einstein expressing the hope that "mankind is now approaching an era in which peace treaties will not only be recorded on paper, but will also become inscribed in the hearts of men."

Among the speakers who discussed the peace mission of Judaism was Lion Feuchtwanger, the author, who asserted that one of the chief problems confronting pacifism today was the suppression of the war spirit, which by nature was inherent in mankind and the presence of which was not sufficiently recognized today.

"Only one who has actually experienced war can become a true apostle of peace, wherever the creation of men of peace is more important than the League of Nations or peace conferences," Herr Feuchtwanger declared.

Dr. Prinz, well-known Rabbi, believed that the new economic orientation of the youth constituted a serious hindrance to the promotion of peace and that it was the mission of present-day youth to prepare the way for peace from remaining only a futile expression on paper.

"Youth must stand guard and work for consummation," he said. "The fight for war begins with the tin soldier and ends on the battlefield."

Oscar Wassermann, chairman of the Jewish Peace League, stated that the task of promoting world peace was an international undertaking in which Judaism, because of the intimate affiliation of Jews the world over, was destined to play an important role. The German League, Herr Wassermann declared, would seek a closer cooperation with other peace leagues, in order that the present century might become known as the "Century of Peace."

FRANCE TO REOPEN TWO NAVAL BASES

Four Vessels Will Set Forth on Eve of London Conference for Their Stations.

CALLED ONLY COINCIDENCE

Action, However, May Be Expected to Serve in Opposing Italian Claim for Parity.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—On Jan. 15, just a week before the London Naval Conference begins, two French cruisers and two destroyers will set forth to take up their stations at Dakar and Fort de France and so inaugurate definitely the scheme of the French Government to have throughout the seas of the world six naval bases for the protection of its colonial and mandatory possessions.

This scheme is not a new one and has not just been invented for the purpose of having a good position at the London conference. Before the war France had regular stations in the Pacific, in the Far East, in the Southern Indian Ocean, in West Africa and in the West Indies. To these she has added one at Beirut. But in the years since the war the French flag has been seen rarely in these far possessions for the simple reason that she had no ships well enough equipped. It has been only a coincidence, the French Naval Department says, that on the eve of the London conference it should have a sufficient number of tested ships and well-trained crews to take up the old stations.

The coincidence, however, may be expected to serve the London delegation admirably in opposing the Italian claim for parity. For in order adequately to represent the home country in possessions spread so far across the seas of the world the French claim they need 200,000 tons of shipping without counting submarines. It is proposed that two cruisers and two destroyers be stationed at each of the six naval bases.

Needs for Patrol Work.

In addition, three cruisers and six destroyers will be needed for patrol work in the Levant, in the Far East and among the Pacific islands. That provision in itself will bring the 750,000 or 800,000 ton fleet which France has planned to at most 600,000 tons, to be divided between the Atlantic and the Mediterranean.

In view of these commitments the French naturally decline to consider as serious the Italian claim for parity. For Italy is not a colonial power outside the Mediterranean and the figure of her overseas trade, as well as that of her overseas possessions, is enormously less than that of France.

The French Parliament will reassemble Tuesday and there is beginning to be a renewed interest in the naval conference which during the past ten days has been overshadowed by events at The Hague where the French feel their interests are really much more vitally at stake. With this new interest there has arisen curiosity as to who will be the leading figure at the London conference.

It is known that Prime Minister MacDonald is encountering serious opposition in his own country to any excessive reduction in cruisers. The French feel that the Italian case is so poor that it must be negative. With the Japanese they have common interests. Further, M. Briand has the certainty that he has behind him the opinion of all the smaller powers of Europe which are opposed to the creation of any naval hegemony and approve the French thesis that all arms limitation can be done only collectively on the basis of needs.

Confident of Position.

The French, therefore, feel that they are in a specially strong position both for the defense of their own interests and for carrying the discussion on to ground suited to themselves. In his book on America written in 1926 M. Tardieu wrote: "To negotiate, one must be in a position of equality." With the debt discussion out of the way and as a leader of European nations at the League of Nations, France feels that she has regained that position of equality.

M. Tardieu adds, "There can be equality only where these is frankness." And there again the French feel that their position is secure. They say they have been perfectly frank in their acceptance of the invitation to London in their statement of their position and in their memorandum. They have contributed to the preliminary discussion an important suggestion of a Mediterranean pact. It seems, therefore, to those who have been following developments that their position is for the first time clear in the negotiations with the American delegates.

It is not only a claim for an adequate fleet which M. Tardieu will go to London to defend. It is also the European conception of what can and what cannot be done and how it can be done if one is to reach any measure of arms limitation. There is going to be a battle of ideas as well as of figures, and with M. Tardieu at the head of the delegation the French feel that they will meet the other delegates in full equality, whatever may be the proportion of their fleets.

Naval Parley Palace Lacks Steam Heat; Delegates Must Trust to Open Fireplaces

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—American delegates, secretaries, experts, observers, advisers and journalists attending the naval arms conference who call for steam heat in St. James's Palace will be disappointed. Great open fireplaces are the only means of heating the large rooms where the five-power delegations will confer during two of London's chilliest and dreariest Winter months.

The fireplaces are works of art, some of them original Tudor structures, but whether they will throw out enough heat to satisfy the foreign delegations, particularly Americans used to steam-heated homes and offices, is, like naval parity, a subject for discussion.

In the days of George III, during the American Revolution, the King attended church services regularly at the palace; so regularly, the story goes, that the Queen and the rest of the family dropped out one by one, leaving the King, the parson and the King's equerry "to freeze it out together."

On a more historic Winter morning at St. James's, King Charles I, having slept in one of the rooms which will be used for the conference, arose and called for an extra undershirt. He did not want to shiver in the cold.

"The people might think it was from fear," he said.

The King was going over to Whitehall in a few minutes to have his head chopped off.

Predictions are being made that before the conference is over the well-dressed diplomat in London will be wearing flannel underwear, besides taking a hot-water bottle or jug to bed after the English fashion.

NAVAL ADVISERS WIN LARGE PARLEY ROLE

Admirals With Our Delegation on Liner Become Increasingly Important for Negotiations.

GROUP NEEDS MORE MONEY

$200,000 Fund Will Last Only 60 Days and Conference May Go On for 3 or 4 Months.

By L. C. SPEERS.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ABOARD S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, at Sea, Jan. 12.—The American delegation to the London Naval Arms Conference held no meetings today. There were a few informal talks among the individual members and the naval advisers, who, it becomes increasingly apparent, are to have a very important rôle at the London conference.

The executive sessions of the delegation, in which the big issues coming up at London will be considered, begin tomorrow and will continue daily for the rest of the voyage. While the delegates and naval advisers are not talking about matters of policy, the parley agenda or other important phases of the conference, all sorts of rumors are going the rounds, covering everything from battleship replacements to ratios in auxiliary classes among the five nations which signed the Washington naval treaty in 1922.

Submarine Parity Rumor.

One much-repeated rumor is that the Americans are to give serious consideration to the proposition to meet the auxiliary warship problem by recognizing the parity in submarines of all signatories, with the amendatory provision whereby each nation would agree to keep construction within definite limits over specified periods, covering part or all the life of the treaty.

It was said that in the event that all received the right to maintain a total submarine tonnage of 100,000, the agreement would provide that the lesser naval powers would construct only 60 per cent of the permitted total in the next ten or fifteen years. It was argued that this would meet the national spirit of the lesser powers by giving treaty equality in this matter to all the countries involved.

One high-ranking naval officer said when this proposition was called to his attention:

"That is not my story; it is yours."

Most of the members of the American parley group attended religious services this morning. The Rev. J. N. Anderson of Cape Town preached. At the end of the service Secretary Stimson warmly congratulated the minister.

The sea was very rough this afternoon, the ship rolling heavily. The George Washington passed the Berengaria, which was eastbound, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Delegation Needs More Money.

ABOARD S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, at Sea, Jan. 12 (AP).—The large American contingent now steaming eastward to the five-power naval conference in London must either conclude its labors within sixty days or receive more funds.

Budgeting of the present available $200,000 fund tonight disclosed that even with the closest economy in London it would be entirely expended within two months. A congressional appropriation of additional funds to carry the delegation through the conference was regarded as inevitable by financial officials of the party.

In view of indications that the parley may last three or four months, it was expected that Congress would be asked for an additional appropriation of $125,000. Aside from the transportation costs of $20,000, it was estimated that the daily expense of maintaining the delegation in London would be approximately $3,000.

Secretary of State Stimson has been greatly interested in the treatment prescribed by radio by Dr. W. C. Ballard, ship's surgeon, for a seaman on the steamship Western Queen, which is about 200 miles astern. The seaman had suffered an abdominal injury during a storm.

Sunshiny weather today permitted all to sit on deck, although the seas were still high enough to cause heavy rolling.

WOMEN TO ADVANCE WORLD COURT PLEA

Conference on Cause and Cure of War, Opening at Capital Today, Will Intercede With Senators.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Resolutions urging ratification by the Senate of the World Court protocol are being brought to Washington by delegates arriving from all parts of the country to attend the opening session tomorrow of the fifth annual Conference on the Cause and Cure of War, called by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt.

General Jan Christiaan Smuts will be the principal speaker at the banquet tomorrow night. Senator Gerald P. Nye, Dr. John H. Latane and Joseph P. Chamberlain will be the speakers Wednesday afternoon, and Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, will address the conference Friday morning.

Open forums, round tables, and committee discussions make up the program for the four-day sessions, which will end with a business meeting Friday night.

A feature of the conference will be the international discussion of women's part in the world peace movement, in which the participants will be Mme. Marie Louise Puech, of France; Frau Dorothea Von Velsen, of Germany; Miss Kathleen D. Courtney, of Great Britain; Mrs. Tsune Gauntlett, of Japan, and Miss Ruth Morgan, representing the United States.

The overseas delegates will be welcomed tomorrow morning by Miss Henrietta Roelofs of the National Young Women's Christian Association. After this ceremony, the opening address will be delivered by James G. MacDonald, of the Foreign Policy Association, who will speak on the outstanding events of the year.

There will be no march on the Hill, the women going in separate State delegations to the Capitol, but they will arrive at the Senate office building at the same hour, 11 o'clock having been set for the appointments in the offices of the Senators.

The proceedings of the conference will be suspended Thursday morning while the delegates are delivering the World Court resolutions brought from their States to the members of the Senate.

Mrs. Catt, general chairman, will preside at all sessions of the conference.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

o'clock Premier Tardieu offered a new formula saying that in case of a willful German default of the Young plan the former Allies should retain all their previously existing rights as they stood before either the Dawes or the Young plan. The Germans were asked to give a reply tomorrow morning and at midnight they were still discussing the answer to make.

It is evident that the conference will not break down over the sanctions issue, and, with that out of the way tomorrow, as hoped, the moratorium question remains the chief issue before the meeting.

Jackson E. Reynolds of New York and Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago, the American banking experts, arrived at The Hague tonight from Paris. Sir Charles Addis, the British expert, arrived today, and Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, is due in the morning.

Bankers Meet Today.

The bankers tomorrow afternoon will begin discussing the eleven changes in the plan of the Bank for International Settlements proposed by the treasury experts of the creditor nations. When they have finished their work with the experts and after the board of directors of the bank has been named, the members of the committee will meet in London to plan the final details of putting the bank into operation. Two American directors will be named and one of them will be elected president of the bank. This is not expected to be done at The Hague, but elsewhere during the deliberations of the directors.

During the week the bankers will talk over with the government chiefs the plans for the first slice of the mobilization of reparations. The Americans seemed surprised to find that discussions had been going on on the basis of a first issue of $200,000,000, of which America is expected to take one-fourth. Apparently they had expected larger plans.

Discussion of Eastern European reparation still hangs on the issue of the dispute between Hungary and Rumania, which does not seem to be traveling rapidly toward a solution.

While the chiefs of the delegations hope to complete the major issues during the coming week, it is not believed that the conference will complete its labors before the opening of the naval arms conference in London.

Premier Tardieu is going to Paris tomorrow night for twenty-four hours, returning here before going to London, where he expects to arrive on Sunday.

Have Names for President.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 12 (AP).—A list of names of five Americans was brought here today by Mr. Traylor and Mr. Reynolds to be submitted as candidates for president of the Bank for International Settlements. Neither of the Americans would give any indication as to the men they would indorse to the bankers' committee.

Mr. Reynolds told his French colleagues on the bank committee that he had brought back full American subscription to the capital of the International Bank.

The capital stock of the bank had been fixed at 500,000,000 Swiss francs (about $96,896,500), divided into 200,000 shares, of which 112,000 must be subscribed before the bank begins business. Subscription of the total capital was guaranteed by the central banks of Belgium, England, France, Germany and Italy and also by Messrs. "X," acting in place of the Bank of Japan, and Messrs. "Y" of New York. Only twenty-five per cent of the value of each share was to be paid up at the time of subscription.

The hurry-up call issued yesterday by Philip Snowden, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Henri Cheron, French Finance Minister, speeded up the work of the general conference so that big and little delegations gave up their week-end to spend all today in negotiations seeking to end the work preliminary to adoption of the Young plan.

LETTERS LINK MOTHER TO LONG-LOST SON

Clifford Ashley, New Bedford Artist, Gets Identical Facts From Woman and Youth.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Jan. 12.—Through an article concerning Clifford W. Ashley of New Bedford, painter and author, which appeared last April in The American Magazine, Mr. Ashley has received inquiries from two widely separated corners of the country are are expected to result in the reuniting of another Clifford Ashley with his mother after years of futile search for each other.

Soon after the article was published Mr. Ashley received a letter from Clifford Ashley of Mohave City, Ariz., appealing for help in tracing his people. Giving his age as 29 years, the young man told of being reared in an orphans' home at Middletown, N. Y., till he was 10, when he was taken away by a Texas family.

He recalled the visit to the orphanage of a woman who took him to a parade in the town. She may have been his mother, but all his inquiries in subsequent years had been in vain.

On Tuesday Mr. Ashley received another letter which, from corresponding details, may have been from the mother of the young man in Arizona. It was from Mrs. J. H. Russell of 71 South Orange Avenue, Newark, N. J.

Noting a family resemblance in the picture of Mr. Ashley published in the magazine, she told of her quest for her son by an earlier marriage, also a Clifford Ashley, whose father was Samuel T. Ashley.

She stated that after a separation her husband took the child from her and placed him in the Middletown (N. Y.) Children's Home in 1903. The boy was then about 4 years old and now would be about 30, she seid. He was taken away from the home and all her efforts to locate him had failed.

Yesterday Mr. Ashley sent telegrams to the other Clifford Ashley and to Mrs. Russell, informing them of the identical nature of their letters to him.

SEE MOVE TO 'SCARE' CANADIAN PAPER MILLS

Manufacturers Appear Unconcerned Over the Report of Possible European Rivalry.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 12 (By The Canadian Press).—"Why hasn't it been done before?" This sentence crystallizes the rather unconcerned reaction of certain officials of the Canadian Newsprint Producing Industry to the New York report that the American publishers were considering the development of European sources of newsprint with a view to maintaining or reducing the present price.

It is felt by officials of paper manufacturing companies who refuse to be quoted that the report represents only the latest attempt to "throw a scare" into the manufacturers at a time when negotiations over price are at a deadlock.

The amount of newsprint now being brought to the United States from Scandinavian and German sources is comparatively small, it is said, being only 110,000 tons annually compared with more than 2,000,000 tons obtained from Canada.

Manufacturers here are puzzled to know why the American publishers did not resort, in a greater degree, to European sources in the days following the war when prices soared and they paid without nearly as much complaint as that voiced today. It is also remarked that development of a large tonnage supply from Europe will not be easy.

BYRD GREETS BERNIER.

Over Radio From Antarctic, He Hails "Dean of Arctic Explorers."

LEVIS, Que., Jan. 12 (Canadian Press).—Rear Admiral Richard Byrd has sent a wireless message from his Antarctic headquarters to Captain J. E. Bernier, veteran Arctic navigator.

Admiral Byrd extends his best greetings for the new year to Captain Bernier, whom he calls "the dean of Arctic explorers."

TUNNEL PLAN READY FOR LEGISLATURE

New York and New Jersey Officials to Send Bill to Albany in Few Days.

COST PUT AT $62,000,000

Would Be Paid Out of Its Future Revenue and Holland Tube Earnings.

LINK TO QUEENS FAVORED

Boards, Advising Speeding of Work, Say Need for Tube Is Growing Urgent.

The proposed vehicular tunnel under the Hudson from the vicinity of Thirty-eighth Street, Manhattan, to Weehawken would take the form of twin tubes with traffic facilities similar to those of the Holland Tunnel and would provide a direct underground passage from the Manhattan terminal of the already authorized Thirty-eighth Street tunnel to Queens to the new New Jersey State Highway on the edge of the Hackensack Meadows beyond the Palisades and Bergen Hill, according to preliminary plans made public today by the New York State Bridge and Tunnel Commission and the New Jersey Holland Tunnel Commission.

The plan of the tunnel commissions and an almost identical proposal, providing for the construction and operation of a similar tunnel by the Port of New York Authority, will both be presented in the form of bills before the New York State Legislature within the next few days.

Plans Based on Year's Study.

The preliminary plans offered by the tunnel commissions, according to General George R. Dyer, chairman of the New York body, and Theodore Boettger, chairman of the New Jersey body, are the result of a year's study of design, location and traffic conditions across the Hudson River by the engineering staff of the Holland Tunnel. As a result of these studies, the chairman announced, the commissions are now ready, immediately upon authorization by the two States, to proceed with test borings and the preparation of detailed contract plans.

The tunnel proposed by the commissions runs from the vicinity of Thirty-Eighth Street to Weehawken, with entrance and exit plazas on the New Jersey side at Willow Road near the waterfront opposite the Weehawken reservoir, and with an underground extension from that point through Bergen Hill to a junction with the new State Highway. The location of the New York entrance and exit plazas are tentatively placed at Eleventh Avenue and Forty-second Street and Tenth Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street.

These locations of the New York plazas are subject to modification, to be worked out in cooperation with the city of New York so as to provide the most direct connection with the Thirty-eighth Street crosstown tunnel to Queens. This connection may be either on the surface or underground or both. Provisions also will be made to afford easy access to and from the west side elevated express highway which the city is building along Twelfth Avenue.

The need for speed in the construction of a tunnel from the midtown section to New Jersey is exceedingly pressing, according to the studies made by the engineering staff of the commissions. By the Spring of 1932, it is estimated, the Holland Tunnel will have reached its traffic capacity. Even if the midtown-Weehawken tunnel is authorized at once the engineers report that it could not be placed in operation before the middle of 1936, thereby leaving four years during which there will be no relief for the overflow traffic from the Holland Tunnel.

The Hudson River Bridge at 178th Street, which will be opened to traffic in 1932, is too far north, the studies indicate, to have any effect on traffic crossing the Hudson River below Central Park. As a result of this increasing congestion, the tunnel commissions estimate that during the first year of its operation the midtown-Weehawken tunnel will carry more than 9,000,000 vehicles, which is greater than the traffic carried by the Holland Tunnel during its first year.

Cost Put at $62,000,000.

A preliminary estimate of the cost of the proposed tunnel, including the Bergen Hill extension, indicates that the amount would be about $62,000,000. It is estimated that this can be paid out of the revenue of the Holland Tunnel and the earnings of the new tunnel.

"New Jersey's net earnings from the Holland Tunnel will be sufficient to completely pay its share of the cost of building that tunnel, with interest, by 1937," according to the plans.

"If the Weehawken-midtown tunnel can be completed in 1936, it will immediately begin to return revenues to the State of New Jersey and as very soon thereafter the Holland Tunnel will have paid for itself, the earnings from both tunnels can then be applied to the amortization of New Jersey's share of the cost of the construction of the Weehawken-midtown tunnel. As New Jersey's share of the earnings of the Holland Tunnel will then amount to more than $3,500,000 per year and the earnings from the Weehawken-midtown tunnel will equal the earnings of the Holland Tunnel during its initial period of operation, it will require approximately five years to completely pay New Jersey's share of the Weehawken-midtown tunnel out of earnings.

"By 1937, immediately following the completion of the Weehawken-midtown tunnel, New York will have received in net earnings out of the Holland Tunnel $30,000,000. As there are no outstanding bonds against New York's share of the cost of the Holland Tunnel, and therefore no interest or amortization charges against this income, it will all be available for meeting New York's share of the cost of the Weehawken-midtown tunnel, less the amount heretofore diverted to other purposes by legislative enactment. This method of financing in New York will eliminate to this extent all interest charges and also relieve the taxpayers to the same extent from any burden in connection with the project."

FREUD SEES AIMS OF MAN AS FUTILE

Psychoanalyst, in New Work, Suggests Civilization Has Very Doubtful Value.

FINDS NEUROTICISM ITS PAY

He Calls Control of Urge to Life and Death Too Great a Price for Well-Being of Man.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 12.—That the standardization of the individual in American culture is tending toward disaster is a view expressed by Professor Sigmund Freud, analyst of soul troubles, in a new work just published, whose title can best be translated as "The Discomfort of Civilization."

"Psychological mass misery threatens most imminently," writes Professor Freud, "where social relations are based mainly on the identification of the participants among each other, while the natural leaders do not attain the significance which should be theirs. The present cultural condition of America gives a good opportunity to study this apprehended cultural damage. But I renounce any attempt to embark upon a criticism of American culture. I do not wish to give the impression that I myself am willing to make use of the American method."

This latest work of Professor Freud is inscribed in his old age. Perhaps that is why the pioneer psychoanalyst, who long ago admitted he beleieved in a hereafter, looks at life through such utterly disillusioned eyes and derives from it no other philosophy than "Vanity, vanity, all is vanity!"

Doubts Civilization's Value.

In this 130-page pamphlet he dissects modern civilization only to question at the end whether all its strivings and achievements are worth the trouble they cost. Their blessings, he finds, are counterbalanced by the harm they do to the mind and heart of mankind. He questions whether the whole human race has not grown neurotic under cultural influences, and, in fact, whether civilization itself is not a "community neurosis."

Why do we feel uncomfortable in our modern civilization? asks Professor Freud and answers: "Primitive man was free from civilization and free also from all the feeling of guilt which today poisons the life of the individual and race. Primitive man lived carefree, merry and innocent, without reflecting or philosophizing. But conscience makes cowards of modern men, who may not satisfy their instincts because that inner voice revolts against the robust and naïve existence such as would allow them to live untroubled by neuroses. They have conquered nature, but not achieved happiness. To bear the sorrows of disappointments of life they must have palliatives and diversions, such as work and science; substitute satisfactions such as art and narcotics."

Among palliatives given is religion, but Professor Freud does not say to which of the three listed categories it belongs. But he cites Goethe's Dictum: "Whosoever has science and art has also religion; whosoever has neither should have religion."

Self-Control the Price.

Professor Freud recalls earlier epochs when civilization was regarded as a source of suffering, and mentions in this connection the early Christian period and the sentimental raptures over nature current in the eighteenth century, with its shepherd idylls. Today there are also, in the back-to-nature movements, evidences that man feels something wanting in civilization.

The trouble, explains Professor Freud, is that civilization means renunciation of instinct. Man must control, he argues, his natural amativeness and his inborn feeling of aggression, two instincts which rule his relations with his fellow-men, but which would endanger that community life which is the basis of culture. The result of this difficult repression of instinct, he says, is that men live in a condition of inner complaint which is hard to bear. Will they find ways to overcome this feeling of depression and fear. That socialism or communism will provide a solution, Professor Freud does not believe. Man's instinct of aggression antedated property and would survive the abolition of property, the psychoanalyst asserts.

Instinctive Righteousness Questioned.

That instinctive differentiation between good and evil was rooted in primitive man Professor Freud finds unlikely. Foreign influences taught him to differentiate, and he since has found himself in a state of social fear or bad conscience, says Professor Freud. Especially when misfortune overtakes him, it is asserted, he becomes introspective and punishes himself with penances.

Professor Freud recalls hearing Mark Twain tell a story of "the first melon I ever stole."

The first melon was accidentally unripe. After Mark Twain had announced the title he paused and questioned himself, as though in doubt: "Was it the first?" When he said that he had said all.

A weighty criticism is leveled by Professor Freud against the modern education of youth, with its concealment of the rôle played by sex in the life of an adolescent and its total want of preparation for the aggressions to which he will be subjected by his fellow men. Such education sends youth into life as ill-prepared as would be a polar explorer dressed in Summer clothes and equipped with a map of the Mediterranean, according to Professor Freud.

Education would not damage ethics if it said "So should men behave in order to be happy and do well. But one must reckon that they will not."

Instead, he says, youth is allowed to believe that everybody else is virtuous, and for this reason is required to be virtuous on his own account. The precept "love thy neighbor," he said, is the strongest check against human aggression and at the same time an example of the unpsychological procedure of culture, since it was impossible to carry out. Culture glosses over it, according to Professor Freud, but nevertheless he who abides by this precept today puts himself at a disadvantage compared with the neighbor who disregards it.

No Valuer of Civilization.

Professor Freud refuses to value civilization. He, as the disillusioned investigator, can bring comfort neither to the believer nor to the revolutionary. "A fateful question for mankind seems me to be," so concludes his book, "if and in what measure cultural development will master the human instinct for aggression and self-annihilation. Our epoch is worthy of special interest in this sense. Men have brought mastery over nature to such a degree that with its help they can easily extirpate each other to the last man. Men know that; hence their present unrest, unhappiness and fear."

Professor Freud can perceive only two "heavenly powers," the reproductive instinct, and the death or annihilation instinct. Man's mastery over the forces of nature having brought him to the brink of an abyss, Professor Freud concludes, "now it is to be expected that the other of the two heavenly powers, eternal eros, will make an effort to maintain himself in the fight against his equally immortal enemy."

SETS AIR SPEED RECORD.

Frenchman Flies From Paris to Brussels in 55 Minutes.

PARIS, Jan. 12 (AP).—Lieutenant Michael de Troyat, famous aviator, today set a record of fifty-five minutes for the 172 miles between Le Bourget Field here and Haeren-Brussels Air Field at Brussels. The former record, held by Fernand Lasne, was one hour and three minutes.

De Troyat took off at 11:13 A. M. in a 420-horsepower monoplane and landed at Brussels at 12:08 P. M.

BELIEVES MAJORITY UPHOLD PRESIDENT

tion of public action—the discovery and promulgation of truth. No real believer in democracy questions the sureness of public judgment—if the public is given the truth—but there is a time element in the triumph of truth.

When we look back over history we see the periods of either moral, social, economic or political stagnation while the truth was en route and some variety of demagoguery occupied the scene. We can and must, however, greatly increase the production of truth and we must know the truth before the grave interest of 120,000,000 people is involved in government policies.

We can sometimes speed up production before the demagogue awakes to his opportunities. Facts are bad for his digestion and the truth makes misrepresentation uncomfortable. And the truth, as you say, is hard to discover; it must be distilled through the common judgment of skilled men and women from accurately and patiently collected facts and knowledge of forces before the extraction of the essence of wisdom.

"Clamor of Half-Truths."

The materials themselves are also hard to come by; it takes time and patience, especially as our many inventions have forever banished the simple life.

In the meantime, a vast clamor of half-truths and untruths and injured facts will always fill the air and intoxicate people's emotions. The President himself cannot pretend to know or to have the time for rigid investigation. But the fine minds of our citizens are available and can be utilized for the search.

So you will know why, when you hear of more and more temporary committees, commissions, conferences, researches—that they are not for executive action (for which they are anathema), but are one of the sound processes for the search, production and distribution of truth. And they are more.

They spread cooperation with government among our best citizens, not only in finding truth, but also they aid to spread it and to get action upon it. Our great American experiment has demonstrated that the people will, of their own initiative, take care of progress if the government can remove abuse and help put the signs on the road, stimulation to all of which is the part of the job of Presidents.

Refers to Lincoln's Formula.

Of Lincoln's great formula, the most important one-third is "government by the people" and they will govern themselves outside the government when they see the light. It is from too much emphasis on "government of the people" that we get the fundamental confusion that government, since it can correct much abuse, can also create righteousness.

And now all this was not intended to bore your holidays, but just to indicate to you that my resolutions for the new year include a continued effort to keep pure the wells of wisdom and to reassure you that I have faith that the people want the truth determined, even if it takes time and patience. I wish to you and Mrs. Thompson all of the season's greetings.

Your faithfully,

HERBERT HOOVER.

Dr. Thompson's Letter.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 12 (AP).—In his letter to the President, Dr. Thompson asked that "I be indulged in extending my good wishes into a bit of counsel growing out of a half century of observation," then he continued:

"For some time we have had a highly agitated people. The quiet hour seems to have gone. Men do their thinking while walking the street, newspapers in hand. Publicity stirring superficial emotions has developed a mob-mindedness eager to hear some new thing. The press, the hustings and even the pulpit resound with empty echoes of falsehoods for which there is no excuse. Do not permit these things to dishearten you even though they discourage.

"The open door of the White House in which we all rejoice makes it possible for all classes to approach you. The wonder is that any President can retain his sanity. Many come to gain favor, place or position at any cost of self-respect; many, honest and sincere, hesitating to disconcert the plans of the President occupied with the greater issues of his office, neither add information nor bring comfort.

"The manifest self-interest of some who seek your favor or service must annoy you as it displeases all good citizens. Such people violate the sanctities of genuine friendship, are blind to the teachings of a refined moral preception and all too often furnish the support for public officials who betray their trusts and lead citizens situated as I am to wonder whether the men formerly trusted and esteemed have suddenly been transferred from normal citizens into untrustworthy parasites who prey upon the public and annoy you.

"Do not be disturbed by such characters. Politics as a profession is a noble concept, but politics as a business has made possible all sorts of unholy and corrupt combinations with which you must be all too familiar.

"May I also add that millions who have no means of publicity—millions that lack my temerity in writing you—are not enthusiastic over the antics of the agitators, but quietly believe that Mr. Garfield was correct when he said that the great issues of our country were finally settled at the fireside and in the home."

SEARCH FOR EIELSON NARROWS IN SIBERIA

The Nanuk Is Sending Plane and Dog Teams to River on Which Reports Place Him.

WRANGEL ISLAND LENDS AID

With Finding of Reid Party, Fliers in Alaska Press Efforts to Join in the Hunt.

By MARION SWENSON.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ABOARD MOTOR SHIP NANUK, NORTH CAPE, Siberia, Jan. 12.—Bit by bit, as information trickles in from various sources, we are piecing together the puzzle of where Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland are down. Today we are more confident than ever that we have located within an area of a few miles the spot where the two American fliers landed when they disappeared Nov. 9.

While I am writing in the warm cabin of the ship, Joe Crosson is outside in the bitter cold, working on his plane and keeping one eye on the skies. Harold Gillam is helping him. Crosson hopes to get off later today and explore the area where we feel certain Eielson will be found.

Tazret Berdieff and the native dog driver also are outside, harnessing their animals for a second trip to the reindeer camps. They will be leaving in a few minutes with the two teams.

The place where Crosson and the dog drivers hope to find Eielson's plane is on the Ekeatap River, which is the first river east of Cape North. It empties into the lagoon about twenty miles from here.

Plane Was Heard Up the River.

According to native information, the river is about ninety miles long. At places where tributaries join it flows through wide valleys. About fifty miles from its source there is a wide area covered by a huge glacier formed by the overflow of the river. At the head of the river and between there and the coast to the westward there are low rolling hills.

We have just had information that it was along the upper stretches of the Ekeatap that Eielson's plane was last heard. The natives said that when the plane flew over on Nov. 9 it was commencing to get dark and was snowing. There was a very light wind blowing.

The usual conditions are that the Arctic coast line is more stormy than the interior, but while there is less wind in the mountains there is more snowfall.

We have dropped the idea that Eielson overshot his mark and flew westward beyond the Nanuk. Information has come in from as far as Cape Shaltagsky, 240 miles west of North Cape, that the plane was neither seen nor heard in that direction. There are native camps all along the coast. The wireless station at Kolima is working on a regular schedule with the Soviet trading ship Stavropol, frozen in three miles from us, and reports that there is no news of the plane in that section.

These facts add to our belief that Eielson is on the Ekeatap River, for we have traced his progress all the way from Teller, Alaska, to the eastern tip of Siberia and all along the coast line to the Ekeatap. There the native reports of hearing or seeing the plane stop. Our hopes are high.

Wrangel Island Sends Dog Sleds.

MOSCOW, Jan. 12 (AP).—Governor Peter Mineev of Wrangel Island reported by radio today that four dog sleds were being sent from there toward Cape North to assist in the search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland.

Word was received from Krasnoyarsk, Siberia, that Pilot Valerian Chukhnovsky expects to leave for Cape North on the same mission by airplane on Tuesday.

Seek to Get Alaskan Planes Off.

By ALFRED J. LOMEN.

Director of Aviation Corporation's Eielson Relief Operations.

Special to The New York Times.

NOME, Alaska, Jan. 12.—With Captain T. M. (Pat) Reid and his party safe, we turned our efforts today to getting the two Fairchild planes on their way to North Cape, Siberia, with all possible haste that they might take up the search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland before it is too late.

Reid, a Winnipeg flier who volunteered for the search, pulled himself out of a tight place after being missing for a week with William T. Hughes, also a Canadian, and James Hutchinson, a veteran Alaskan aviation mechanic and guide.

Word has just come through from Unalakleet that Reid and his companions are on the Ungalik River, about 150 miles due east of here and seventy miles in an air line north of Unalakleet. The Ungalik empties into Norton Bay.

Reid's Fairchild plane is down at almost the exact spot where it became separated from the other Fairchild flown by Matt Niemenen a week ago yesterday in a snowstorm. In landing on the river ice, a wing of Reid's plane was damaged and he and the two others worked until Thursday making temporary repairs. They could have flown to Nome then, but the weather held them up.

Soon after they dropped from sight a dog team was sent out from the Bonanza Road House at the mouth of the Unaglik to search the river valley for them. The dogs came into Unalakleet yesterday with news that Reid had been found.

Reid to Fly to Nome.

When Reid disappeared on the flight from Fairbanks to Nome, Niemenen turned back and landed at Nulato. In Niemenen's plane were Sam Macauley, Canadian mechanic, and Major H. C. Deckard of Farmington, N. Y., representative of the Fairfield Company. Niemenen flew over Unalakleet yesterday morning, according to a message I received from there, and presumably returned to Nulato.

Deckard at Nulato got in touch with Reid and has sent a message saying:

"Reid notifies me plane can be dragged to slough, and with favorable wind for take-off he will fly to Nome, where permanent repairs can be made."

Deckard is seeking a plane in which to return to Fairbanks on his way back to Seattle. There are two Standards and a Stinson at Teller, fifty miles north of here, but I believe they are storm-bound.

Pilot Ed Young has been trying for days to get away from Teller with much needed supplies for the Nanuk at North Cape. Frank Dorbandt flew there the other day to see if he could be of any help and apparently is unable to return.

Crosson at the Nanuk reported by radio last night his plans to hop off today on another search for Eielson and Borland and arrangements for the dog teams to start out again.

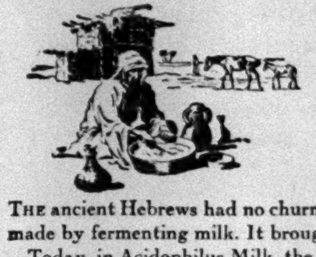
The butter of Biblical times was a fermented milk



THE ancient Hebrews had no churns. Their butter was really clotted cream, made by fermenting milk. It brought strength to the tribes of Israel.

Today, in Acidophilus Milk, the medical world has discovered a new and scientifically prepared health-beverage. This milk contains favorable bacteria which attack the putrefactive germs of the intestinal tract. Unless counteracted, it is possible for these harmful germs to poison the whole body.

By drinking Acidophilus Milk you destroy the dangerous germs, replacing them with beneficial bacteria. To assure results it is necessary to drink Acidophilus Milk three times a day for at least a month. When ordering, ask for Lederle's. It has been carefully prepared under exact laboratory control, which insures its purity and effectiveness.

Accepted by Council on Pharmacy and Chemistry of the American Medical Association.

HOMERIC FARE

The heroes of Homer were men covered with iron and brass, and their terrible blows dealt death and desolation;

Yet Athenaeus pictures them reposing after their exploits and —O, happy simplicity—partaking of a dish of beans.

Evidently the heroes of Homer, like the patrons of CHILDS, knew and appreciated the great nutritive value of beans.

And their delightful flavor when properly prepared and cooked.

Your Health

may be a matter of luck — but—more likely — the result of personal decision

Measures for improving health and thereby preventing illness and postponing death constitute what is called hygiene. There are two main branches of hygiene, public hygiene and personal hygiene.

Public hygiene is protection by the State against disease by providing clean streets, pure water, pure food, quarantine, and the like. Personal hygiene consists in the practice of healthful living habits by the individual himself.

Public hygiene is of chief importance in preventing the acute or infectious diseases like scarlet fever, typhoid fever, measles, diphtheria and smallpox.

Personal hygiene is of chief importance in preventing the chronic or degenerative diseases, such as diseases of the heart and circulation, tuberculosis, cancer, apoplexy, kidney disease, diabetes, nervous prostration and insanity.

Study the 16 Rules of Health over which you have some control

AIR

1. Ventilate every room you occupy.
2. Wear light, loose and porous clothes.
3. Seek out-of-door occupations and recreations.
4. Sleep out-of-doors if you can.

FOOD

5. Avoid overeating and overweight.
6. Avoid excess of high protein foods, such as meat, flesh foods, eggs; also excess of salt and highly seasoned foods.
7. Eat some hard, some bulky, some raw foods daily.
8. Eat slowly and taste your food.
9. Use sufficient water internally and externally.

POISONS

10. Secure thorough intestinal elimination daily.
11. Stand, sit and walk erect.
12. Do not allow poisons and infections to enter the body.
13. Keep the teeth, gums and tongue clean.

ACTIVITY

14. Work, play, rest and sleep in moderation.
15. Breathe deeply; take deep-breathing exercises several times a day.
16. Keep serene and whole-hearted.

The Life Extension Institute was organized in 1913 with the cooperation of a large group of nationally known scientists, physicians and professors of medicine to provide for men and women everywhere yearly health examinations and information on healthful living.

The Home Office of the Institute is at 25 West 43rd Street, New York City, where the Institute has assembled, to assist physicians selected to examine its members, the most modern and complete examination equipment and every scientific facility necessary to the making of these critical and highly standardized health examinations. There are special departments for women and children at the Institute's Home Office with both men and women examining physicians in attendance.

For those desiring a most complete and searching examination the Institute has arranged a service which is called the "Unlimited Examination." This includes, first, a critical physical examination of the whole body, together with many important tests as a routine part of the service, and thereafter any recommended X-ray examination, laboratory test or special examination which it is within the power of the Institute to furnish at its Head Offices. The cost of this examination has been placed at a very low price considering the many valuable and expensive tests included.

For those who do not desire such an expensive examination, the Institute has arranged a service known as the "Standard Examination." This includes a critical physical examination of the whole body, detailed reports, periodic urine tests, mid-year review, keep-well leaflets, monthly health journals, and other privileges.

These "Standard" examinations are available everywhere as the Institute has medical examiners in all the principal cities and towns in the United States and Canada and in several foreign countries. If you will send in the coupon below, the Institute will send you complete information together with many interesting free scientific reprints on health and hygiene.

Only registered and ethically accredited physicians, highly trained and experienced in this work, are selected by the Institute to examine its members. The Institute renders no treatment, performs no operations, but makes a scientific survey of your whole life and body to determine the need for medical treatment for correction of defects, or better regulation of the ways of living. Every man and woman should be examined at least once a year, either by their own physician, through the Life Extension Institute, or by any other accredited scientific agency where the work can be competently done. OUR STAND ON COURT ANALYZED IN GENEVA

America and 53 Members Must Ratify Protocol by September for Us to Vote for Judges.

FULL BENCH TO BE CHOSEN

Importance to Us of Taking Part Held to Answer Those Seeing No Harm in Delay.

ADVISORY OPINIONS FEWER Fears Here Are Held Groundless, Especially With Compulsory Jurisdiction in Ascendency.

By CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 1.—Discussion in the United States of adherence to the World Court, which is to go before the Senate for ratification, seems to be neglecting three points to which some importance is attached here. They are:

1. The fact that the terms of all the judges of the court will end in September and the whole bench will have to be renewed then by election.
2. The fact that the United States now, as a non-member of the court, is not in a position legally to prevent the court from entertaining a request for an advisory opinion in a question in which Washington claims a third-party interest.
3. The fact that the rapid spread of the court's compulsory jurisdiction is working a revolution in international law and that one of its effects, in the view of some jurists who have had much to do with the court, will be to diminish the usage of the very advisory opinion machinery to which most objection is raised in America.

The First Point.

The first point rises in connection with reports from Washington that Senate leaders see no advantage to the United States in hastening ratification of the three court protocols that America recently signed, especially since the United States cannot enter the court until each of the fifty-three members of The Hague institution have ratified the special Root protocol on American adherence. Since the Senate insisted, in its second reservation, that the United States should have equal rights with States members of the Council and the Assembly of the League of Nations in the election of the judges of the court, it is assumed here that Washington does regard participation in such elections as a distinct advantage and that the Senate leaders must be unaware of the importance of the coming one.

The election in September will mark the first time since the founding of the court that its entire bench will have to be filled. Not only will the terms of judges who have been in the court since the beginning end then, but so also will those of judges, such as Charles E. Hughes, who were elected to fill vacancies.

The bench, under the court statute now in force, consists of eleven full judges and four deputy judges. If, however, the protocol for the revision of this statute comes into force by September, the bench to be elected will consist of fifteen full judges, who, moreover, will have to devote all their time to the court, instead of part time as at present. Whether the election is under the present or the revised system, all the judges will be elected for nine years, as in the past.

Issues to Be Determined.

Whichever the system, issues of considerable importance to the development of the court will be determined in the September election. One of them will be whether the majority of judges should continue to be drawn from the more academic fields of jurisprudence or whether greater emphasis should be placed on practical experience in domestic courts.

On another issue an even sharper fight is certain. Warning of it was served last September when Sir Cecil Hurst and Henri Fromageot, legal advisers respectively of the British and French Foreign Offices, were elected to fill court vacancies. The elevation to the World Court bench of men who knew all that their countries had written between the lines of their treaties, since they had drafted them themselves, and who during most of their careers had been in the habit of acting as counsel retained by their Foreign Office, was then severely criticized on principle by representatives of a number of States.

Among the smaller States, in particular, it is feared that if the great powers succeed in establishing this practice the others, in self-defense, will have to conform to it, and the result will be that the court will become primarily a political body and will lose much of the authority it has acquired as an impartial judicial institution.

United States to Have 2 Votes.

If the United States wishes to emphasize the judicial character of the court, it could, of course, as a participant in the election, set an example for the other great powers and otherwise play a very influential rôle in determining the result in this issue. But to have any voice whatever in this matter, or in the broader question of how the bench of the World Court shall be constituted for the next nine years, the United States must be a member of the court by September. If it is a member it will have a double vote. A judge, to be elected, must be approved by both, the Council and the Assembly, voting separately and simultaneously, and the United States by the Root protocol will have a vote for each body.

To be a member of the court, however, the United States as well as each of the fifty-three members of the court must ratify the Root protocol. If the United States wants this done in time for it to participate in the September elections the question boils down to one of tactics: What is the best way to hasten ratification by all the court members? Will they act the more quickly if the United States holds up its own ratification until all or most of them have ratified, or if the United States takes the lead in ratifying?

If the United States adopts the former method the chances of its being a member of the court by September are considered here to be practically nil. Some States may ratify without waiting for Washington, but it is extremely improbable that all of them will do so in the next eight months. States are proverbially slow to ratify; strong incentive must be given them to hasten action, and, in the question of American entry into the court past experience has given many of them an incentive to wait and see what the Senate does.

Speedy Action Necessary.

The only hope seen here of the United States taking part in the September election lies in the second method, in the Senate ratifying the protocol without delay, for eight months is so short a time in which to obtain fifty-three ratifications that every day counts. By thus taking the lead the United States, in the opinion of observers of international psychology here, would not only remove the chief existing reason for court members to delay ratification; it would give those who are in a position to pull informal but powerful strings in such matters the argument they need to get the various States to act. Word would go out to them to this general effect:

"The United States has shown its good-will by losing no time in ratifying. You signed the protocol and you intend to honor that signature with a ratification eventually. Why wait, then, when by waiting you may find yourself alone in the position of preventing America from taking part in the September election? Other States are hastening to ratify because they see that the United States wants to have a voice in the renewal of The Hague bench, and it is only fair that it should. Do you want to take the responsibility of being the stumbling block?"

Obviously, for this method to succeed time must be allowed for action before the Parliament of any of the fifty-three States adjourns.

Advisory Opinions.

As to the second point: The argument of some Senators that the Root protocol should not be ratified on the ground that it does not absolutely prevent the court from giving an advisory opinion on a question to which America objects, puzzles observers here. It implies that the protocol diminishes a veto power that the United States already has, but if the United States has any legal right to veto whatever, outside of that which the protocol will give it when in force, no one here knows of it.

The court has already given sixteen advisory opinions. Had the Root protocol been in force the United States would have had to be consulted on each of these questions and it might have prevented any of them from reaching the court. Since the United States, however, had no connection with the court it was not consulted on any of these questions; it had no chance to assert a third-party interest in the dispute before the Council decided to refer it to the court, let alone exercise a veto power. In short, we have had no means of interfering with advisory opinions in the past, we have none now and we will have none in the future until the Root protocol comes into force.

Whether the rights the United States will gain when the protocol is ratified include the right of absolute veto over requests for advisory opinions is another question—a question of opinion. For all practical purposes it does give this right, in the view of observers here, and no one can long follow Council and Assembly sessions in Geneva without being impressed by the fact that practice wins over theory every time. The consistent practice here is that if any great power strongly objects to any proposed action, that action is not taken. Consequently no one here fears that Washington, to prevent the League from asking the court's advice on any question to which the United States objects, will ever even have to go so far as to threaten to use the right the protocol gives it to withdraw from the court. Like any great power, it is felt, it will merely need to say "No."

Losing Its Importance.

It is difficult, moreover, to get excited any longer in Geneva over advisory opinions. The reason (which brings us to the third point) is that the whole advisory opinion mechanism seems here to be about on a par with the Model T Ford. Like the Model T, it was useful in its day; like the Model T, use no doubt will stilll be found for it for some time to come; but though its merits may still be discussed in remote regions, the talk among the up-to-date is now all of the Model A. The Model A in the machinery for the pacific settlement of international disputes is the optional clause for the compulsory jurisdiction of the World Court in all these disputes of a legal character.

The optional clause strikes at the raison d'etre of the very class of advisory opinions with which the Senate reservation is concerned. One of the basic principles of international law has been that no sovereign State can be haled into court without its consent. The advisory opinion serves chiefly to provide a possible means of getting around this principle while saving the faces of the disputants. Thus, if a dispute arises between two States and one or both do not want to go to the court for a judgment, the Council or Assembly of the League, on behalf of the world community, can ask the court to give its advice on the legal points at issue.

When the jurists who framed the court statute were putting this advisory opinion device into its charter, one of them, Elihu Root, foresaw that the principle of international law that made this device necessary, need not always exist. The time might come when it would be as natural for States as for their citizens to submit their disputes to the courts. The ingenious idea occurred to Mr. Root that, though it was impossible then, in 1920, to get all the States to take this step, it was possible to provide a means for any of them to take it whenever they might desire.

Root's Optional Clause.

To this end Mr. Root got into the Statute, Clause 36, which differs from all the rest in that it is optional. Any State that stops to accept that clause binds itself thereby to submit all its legal disputes to the court for judgment without further ado. Obviously, each State that thus accepts in advance the court's jurisdiction as compulsory for it in any case that may come up throws overboard, so far as it is concerned, the old principle that it can not be haled into court. Consequently, the roundabout system of advisory opinions is no longer needed for it—the direct road to a final judgment is opened.

When the Committee of Jurists was considering the Root protocol here in March, the writer asked a representative number of them for their opinion on what the effect of the spread of the optional clause would be on the type of advisory opinions aimed at in the fifth reservation of the Senate. All agreed that this advisory opinion mechanism was already unnecessary among the States that had accepted the clause and that it would become practically obsolete when all the States had consented to the compulsory jurisdiction of the World Court. At that time the Italian and Japanese jurists said that if ever Great Britain accepted the optional clause it would be very difficult for their countries not to follow suit.

It is significant of the speed with which this new principle is spreading, that when these jurists spoke—less than a year ago—only sixteen nations (including one great power, Germany) were bound by the optional clause, though eleven others had signed it subject to ratification. Now nineteen nations are bound by it, and the number of those that have signed it subject to ratification has swelled to twenty-two. Britain is among the latter, and no sooner had she and all her Dominions taken this step then Italy (as her jurist predicted) and France signed, too. That Japan will follow before long seems likely.

Compulsory for a Third.

The result is that while America has been talking about advisory opinions as if the old principle that a State cannot be compelled to submit a dispute to the World Court were as strong as ever, the jurisdiction of the court has already become compulsory for about one-third of the States of the world—with excellent prospects of this being true soon for two-thirds of the world. At this rate the advisory opinion mechanism, if the jurists are right, is likely to be practically obsolete before the United States, unless it hurries, gets in a position to use the elaborate machinery the Root protocol provides for such cases.

Indeed, in all the recent discussion of advisory opinion it seems to have escaped notice that requests for the court's advice are distinctly on the wane, while the number of disputes submitted for final judgment are on the increase. The court, so far, has given sixteen judgments and sixteen advisory opinions in the eight years since its first session in 1922. In the first four years it received six requests for judgments and twelve for advice.

Since advisory opinions thus outnumbered judgments two to one down to 1926, it is obvious that the Senate, when it made its reservations then, had some reason to be concerned over advisory opinions. But in the last four years the situation has completely reversed itself, for since 1926 judgments have outnumbered advisory opinions two and a half to one, the court giving ten of the former and only four of the latter. Moreover, no advisory opinion has been asked of the court now for more than a year.

In such circumstances it seems in Geneva that it is not about advisory opinions that Washington needs to worry now, but how to get everybody to ratify the Root protocol in time for America to have its say in September on what men and what type of men shall fill the court's bench for the next nine years. After all, not only written protocols but the early judges—the John Marshalls—count in a court's development.

BELGIAN ROYALTY HOME.

Family Returns to Brussels After Wedding of Marie Jose.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Belgian royal family arrived home this morning from Rome, where they went for the wedding of Princess Marie José and Crown Prince Humbert of Italy. They were greeted by members of the government, army officers and the provincial and communal authorities.

The reception lasted barely two minutes. Then the royal family proceeded to Laken Castle, except for Prince Leopold and his wife, the former Princess Astrid of Sweden, who will join their aunt, Princess Charlotte, at Ostend.

CAIRO, Jan. 12.—The Cabinet has sanctioned the execavation of the site of the Nebi Daniel Mosque at Alexandria, traditionally supposed to be Alexander's tomb, following the recent discovery of a granite pillar in the vicinity.

This is held by scientists to point a possible clue to the locality of the Royal Ptolemeian Necropolis. The work will be entrusted to the Royal Archaeological Society.

$200,000 Fire in St. Stephen, N. B.

CALAIS, Me., Jan. 12 (AP).—The business section of St. Stephen, N. B., across the St. Croix River from this city, was swept by fire today with losses estimated at more than $200,000. Seven buildings in the retail dry goods district on Water Street, along the river, seventy-five yards from the International Bridge, were burned or seriously damaged.

SHOE SALON—SECOND FLOOR

UPHEAVAL FACING RUSSIAN VILLAGES

Wide Socialization Scheme Means Revolutionary Changes in Peasants' Lives.

COLLECTIVES GAINING FAST

But Officials Admit Bloodshed on Both Sides—Huge "Farm City" Planned.

TO COVER 500,000 ACRES

Completely Industrialized as Well as Communized Agricultural Settlement Is the Aim.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Jan. 12.—The coming months will witness an upheaval in the ancient "dark" Russian village life on a greater scale than the villages have known for centuries. Wars, civil and external, famines and rebellions ever and again have scarred the face of the Russian land, but never yet has the whole enormous territory been subjected to such a storm of change.

The speakers at the congress of the lower Volga provinces, which cover an area about as large as New England, last night declared that 72 per cent of the farms in that region had been collectivized by Jan. 1. The region includes the German autonomous republic on the Volga, the "more civilized" in the population of which, German agronomists recently declared, were profoundly opposed to the collective movement and would emigrate sooner than accept it.

Speakers Admit Bloodshed.

The speakers admitted that this Socialist success was not achieved without bloodshed—murders, attacks and arson by the kulaks (rich peasants) and suppression by the authorities. They declared, however, that the great mass of the peasantry was now fully alive to the advantages of the new system and were merging the small collectives with the bigger units and changing the earlier forms of loose cooperative associations into "ortels," in which all the property and profits are pooled, or into "communes," in which the members not only pool their property but use communal dwellings, kitchens, nurseries, schools, and the like.

In this connection it is interesting that the Moscow Agricultural Academy has just "adopted" a huge 500,000-acre collective, called Budenovitz, on the lower Volga, and is planning the first "farm city" for its 50,000 inhabitants. The farm city will include jam canning and cheese plants, slaughter houses and all the industrial processes connected with agriculture, including machine repair shops but not machine production plants.

Life there will be wholly communized—that is, there will be one central kitchen which will feed the whole town, and there will be communal baths, schools, nurseries and hospitals. The children will not live with their parents.

Objections to Scheme Answered.

Your correspondent heard this ambitious scheme discussed yesterday in mixed society. A foreigner objected that no single kitchen could serve 50,000 people. A Russian replied that a new communal restaurant on the northern outskirts of Moscow served 16,000 lunches daily and sent out 10,000 more to neighboring factories. Why could this capacity not be doubled at the farm city, or branch kitchens added? he asked.

Another foreigner said the people would never accept separation from their children. The Russian replied: "Have you ever lived with five or six children in a Russian cottage? Or have you ever read Christopher Morley's 'Thunder on the Left'?"

A third foreigner said human beings wanted individual homes and property and that, whatever the Russians might accept now, Western nations would never admit full socialization. To which a distinguished foreign diplomat replied:

"What about the Berengaria or the Leviathan. I have crossed the Atlantic on both those ships with perfect comfort in entire socialization, including nurseries and the narrowest quarters in which I have ever lived. No one complained, and both my wife and I agreed that Atlantic crossings, unless too rough, gave us perfect rest."

Music Broadcast to Schools Endowed by Bok Before Death

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12.—Edward W. Box, before his death in Floria, set aside a fund to provide for concerts by the Philadelphia Orchestra to be broadcast during school hours for pupils in the United States and Canada.

A survey of the application of radio to the educational field had been made for Mr. Bok. Details for the hook-up were being worked out at the time of his death.

The plans involved publication of the programs in advance to permit teachers to describe each number.

SHIPS IN AUSTRALIA LOAD FOR WHEAT RACE

The Hergozin Cecilie, Winner for Last Three Years, Challenges the Pommern of Finland.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ADELAIDE, AUSTRALIA, Jan. 12—Many of the best-known sailing vessels in the world are now loading wheat in Australian ports in preparation for the annual race to Europe. The stiffest contest is most likely between the Finnish four-masted barque, Hergozin Cecilie, Captain Erickson, and the Pommern, a similar vessel, whose master is Captain Cranith.

The Hergozin Cecilie has won for the last three years homeward but Pommern, making an eighty-seven-days' run beat her to Australia by ten days on a recent voyage, and Captain Erickson has challenged Captain Cranith to race to Falmouth. Both vessels are loading at Wallaroo, the Cecilie taking nearly 5,000 tons of wheat and the Pommern 4,000. The Cecilie will sail in about a fortnight and the Pommern a week later, both via Cape Horn.

Other ships leaving soon give the race additional interest. The Arracan is expected to leave Port Lincoln this week, carrying 86,000 bags of wheat for South Australian Wheat Pools, Ltd. The Archibald Russell, which probably will sail toward the end of February and the Melbourne, which is loading 4,250 tons, may leave together for Europe. The barque Lawhill will leave Port Lincoln this month.

A wheat race to Peru is being arrangede between the Hougogmont and the Ponape, sailing from Port Pirie next week.

REVOLT IS REPORTED IN NORTHERN URUGUAY

Montevideo Hears It Has Been Proclaimed by Saravia, Son of Late Nationalist Leader.

By The Associated Press.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 12.—Unconfirmed reports received here today said Nepomuceno Saravia, son of the late General Aparicio Saravia, leader of the Nationalist party, had proclaimed a revolution in the Rivera Province of Uruguay, near the Brazilian frontier.

Official circles refused to comment on the reports, but several army detachments were mobilized in rural departments and the National Administration Council ordered funds withdrawn from the internal revenue offices in the provinces. The Bank of the Republic ordered rural branches to transfer all reserves to the larger cities where regular army garrisons are stationed.

The Nationalist party issued a manifesto denying support of any armed revolt. Leaders said Nepomuceno Saravia lacked followers of prestige in the party ranks. Some believed he only wanted to obtain the freedom of his uncle, José Saravia, who is in prison in Treinty Tres, and who yesterday was ordered transferred to the penitentiary here.

Reports from the interior said Nepomuceno Saravia had summoned his followers to the hamlet of Blanquillo and that a meeting was held with about 600 present. Regarding what happened at the meeting there were contradictory rumors. Some said there was no disorder, although speakers favored certain modifications in the Constitution, which has been in effect since 1917. Other reports intimated that the meeting was held to recruit for a revolutionary movement planned in the State of Rio Grande in Brazil.

Dutch Railway Tracks Sink.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 12.—After the last train had passed between Utrecht and Rotterdam Saturday night it was discovered that the track near Giessen-Niewkerk was slowly subsiding. Thousands of tons of sand to reinforce the dyke were moved today, but engineers say it will be some time before the track is safe.

SOVIET INDUSTRY IS BEHIND PROGRAM

Output Fails to Make Gains Set in Program, but Holds Those of Last Year.

SOVIET PRESS IS INDIGNANT

Foreign Trade Figures for the First Quarter of Fiscal Year Show Favorable Balance of $8,750,000.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Jan. 12.—An alarm is being raised in the Soviet press over the "threatening, unsatisfactory, dangerous and shameful" figures showing that the industrial program for the first quarter of this fiscal year has not been carried out in full. The economic periodicals today declare the first week in January showed little improvement, and V. I. Mezlauk, vice president of the Supreme Industrial Council, who was in New York last year, has been dispatched post-haste to the Donetz Basin with orders to set things right.

But this hullabaloo seems rather exaggerated. The increase in production and the decrease in costs thus far this year have been about equivalent to last year's average, but the Bolsheviki demand more. To maintain the previous tempo is not enough; it must be speeded up from month to month.

Thus one of the most pessimistic articles in the press today is from the textile centre Ivano-Voznesensk, where, the Economic Life correspondent writes, the January figures are only a fraction better than a year ago, which is quite "inadmissible." The correspondent says, "Nobody seems to know the reasons why the tempo has slowed down," and he proceeds to state the reasons as "mismanagement, slackness on the part of the workers' organizations, absence from work, drunkenness" and, last but not least, "delay and shortage in deliveries of raw material, machines and other supplies by the departments responsible."

These factors can be reduced to three fundamentals—supply shortage, bad management, poor labor discipline. From all three Soviet industry has always suffered and will continue to suffer for years to come. The Kremlin is trying to meet it by injecting enthusiasm through labor "shock troops" and Socialist competition.

Izvestia today carries a report from the Ural coal district that the workers of a certain mine who voted to join the shock troops en masse had changed the October and November shortages to a 20 per cent gain over the program in December. There is little doubt also that the efforts being made to develop rural collectivization and a link between the workers and peasants by sending labor shock troops to the villages has weakened the factories by the removal of the most energetic and enthusiastic workers. The minimum of 25,000 ordered by the Communist Central Committee to go to the villages for the Spring sowing campaign will doubtless be nearly double that number.

But that has been the history of the Soviet revolution since its beginning, when the front against General Denikin was stripped to meet Admiral Kolchak; then Petrograd (now Leningrad) was left unguarded to meet General Denikin's drive, and then the troops were rushed back northward to check General Yudenich at the gates of Petrograd.

The foreign trade figures for the first quarter, published today, show a balance in favor of the Soviet of 17,500,000 roubles (about $8,750,000). Exports totaled $110,400,000 and imports $101,650,000. Both were about 22 per cent above last year's figures.

KING OPENS THE RIKSDAG.

Gustaf Forecasts Swedish Parliament Will Aid Agriculture.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 12.—The Swedish Riksdag opened yesterday with the usual ceremony and in the presence of the diplomatic corps.

King Gustaf, who was accompanied by a number of royal persons, read the speech from the throne, foreshadowing proposals for approving the international agreements signed by Sweden against the use of poison gas in war time. The King emphasized his anxiety concerning the serious situation of agriculture in Sweden, especially during the last part of 1929. He said he considered the necessary measures would be passed to increase the consumption of Swedish grain and also to improve prices.

The King foreshadowed the reduction of income and capital taxes.

The Swedish budget, introduced today in both houses, shows a total expenditure of 808,000,000 kroner (about $216,544,000) and proposes a tax reduction of 6,000,000 kroner (about $1,608,000).

Egyptian Onions Hit by Tariff.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, Jan. 12.—The Egyptian onion market has been demoralized by the receipt of news from the United States of the further raising of import duties on onions, which is believed likely to deal a fatal blow to the trade.

MOORS EXPECTED DINOSAUR TO ACT

Report Creature Died Ages Ago Disappoints Them—Scientists' View Discounted.

HOLD IT FELL FROM ARK

Arab Says Monster Found at Tetuan Was Drowned—Others Think Sultan Bought It.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TANGIER, Jan. 12.—The Moors are a little surprised at the publicity given to the discovery of the skeleton of a dinosaur on the sea beach a few miles from Tetuan.

At first, on the assumption that the creature had been found alive and would soon be on show at a small charge, they awaited developments with pleasurable expectancy. No doubt they thought the dinosaur, like the elephant that appeared a few years ago in a traveling circus, would stand on his hind legs—if it had any, for the Moors were divided as to whether it was a bird or a fish—on a barrel and drink beer out of bottles with his trunk—again if it had one, which was held doubtful. But the news that the monster had been dead for many years—variously stated at 100 to 50,000,000—caused a wave of disappointment.

Then the rumor spread that its value lay in the fact that its bones might contain ambergris, which the Moors were vaguely aware had been found concealed in some portion of the bodies of stranded whales and which they knew to be rare and expensive. This they considered must account for the attention paid to the poor dead dinosaur by the Spanish authorities.

In the interests of science, it was explained to the native population—and it is hoped it will be confirmed by the Madrid scientific mission—that the great importance of this discovery lay in the fact that no species of this particular dinosaur had ever been found either in Europe or Africa and that it had been believed to have inhabited only the western mountainous districts of the United States. Explaining how it got to Morocco, the scientists state Europe, Africa and America no doubt formed one continent at that early period and that this unfortunate dinosaur—grazing on the Rocky Mountains—lost its way probably in a fog and wandered across what is now the Atlantic Ocean to Morocco.

The Moors have a simpler explanation. They say that one of the recent Sultans bought a living dinosaur, probably at Hamburg, and that it died and was buried at Tetuan on the way to the court at Fez.

It is, however, the theory of a young Arab scientist of Tangier that meets with general acceptance. He is convinced the dinosaur found at Tetuan is one of the two embarked on Noah's ark and that it fell overboard and was drowned. It cannot be denied there is evidence to support this theory. First, he asks, how did the dinosaur get to Morocco if it did not come on the ark? Secondly, he says the fact that the skeleton was found near the seacoast is taken to indicate drowning as the cause of death. Finally, he argues, if one or the other of the two dinosaurs on the ark had not perished the species would have survived and the people of today would be possessed of flocks of dinosaurs as well as of oxen and sheep.

ARAB CRISIS REPORTED.

Three Members of Executive in Palestine Resign.

JERUSALEM, Jan. 12 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—A crisis in the Arab Executive is reported by the Arab newspaper Felestin, published in Jaffa.

Muza Kazim has resigned as chairman and Maughanam as secretary of the Executive. Jacouv Faraji (a Christian Arab), Vice Mayor of Jerusalem, also resigned as vice chairman of the Executive. Nashashibi, the Mayor of Jerusalem, and Auni Abdul Hadi, one of the Arab counsel at the Inquiry Commission, resigned from membership in the Arab delegation which had been selected to proceed to London.

Arab leaders are making strong efforts to heal the breach. In commenting upon the breach, the newspaper says that the leaders, who at present rule the Arab community, do not benefit the people by strife among themselves.

Street Cars in Mecca Included In Ibn Saud's Plans for Hedjaz

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JEDDAH, the Hedjaz, Jan. 12.—The surrender of the rebel sheik Feisal ed Dowish will enable the Wahabi King, Ibn Saud, to continue the constructive policy he has begun in the Hedjaz, including the provision of electric street cars for Mecca. All parts of the country are now linked by radio and automobile transport is being rapidly developed. In four years 1,200 automobiles and trucks have been brought to Jeddah for the transport of pilgrims to Mecca and Medina.

The Hedjaz Government is now studying two important schemes. The first is for the installation of an electric plant midway between Jeddah and Mecca to supply both cities with electricity and later run electric tramways. The second is for the provision of harbor works at Jeddah and lighthouses and beacons along the Arabian coast. The government is also legislating for the improvement of education, agriculture and public health.

LONDON NEWSPAPER GETS COAT OF ARMS

Right Conferred Upon The Times Is First Given in History of British Heraldry.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—For the first time in the history of British heraldry the right to bear a coat of arms has been conferred upon a newspaper company. The company achieving this distinction is the Times Publishing Company, Ltd., publishers of The London Times, which hereafter may bear the crest authorized by the Crown on "seals," shields or otherwise according to the laws of arms."

The coat of arms assigned by the College of Arms, or Heralds' College, incorporated by King Richard III, consists of an argent shield striped with black like a printed page and a superimposed caduceus, or staff of Hermes, representing the news-bearing function of The Times. Above is a device showing an arm issuing from a golden crown and wielding a thunderbolt, while the motto chosen is "Tempus Fuit Est et Erit" [Time was, is and will be], an adaptation of the words "Times Past," "The Times" and "Future," which appear daily in the headpiece of the editorial column.

The College of Heralds exercises powers vested by the Crown in the Earl Marshal, the Duke of Norfolk, with regard to all state ceremonials and the granting of armorial bearings.

ARRESTS STIR YUGOSLAVIA.

Italian Detention of Two Belgrade Men Aggravates Ill Feeling.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Jan. 12—The strained relations between Italy and Yugoslavia were aggravated today by the news received that two prominent Yugoslavians had been arrested and confined for a week in a fortress without explanation of their offense, if any. As a result, it is reported that the Yugoslavian Government will protest to Italy and movement has been started to boycott Italian tourist resorts.

Mika Dimitrijevitch, director of the Belgrade branch of the Siemens Company and Nomchilo Doyinovitch, a director of the Campagnic Internationale des Wagons-Lits, were off the Simplon Express while traveling from Paris to Belgrade and confined in the oFrtress Domodossola. Finally, after a protest by the Yugoslavian consul at Milan and by the Simens Company, they were escorted to the forntier. It is said there have been other similar cases of groundless detainment of Yugoslavians in Italy.

VIENNA OPERA GIVES REVISED VERDI WORK

Werfel's Version of "Simone Boccanegra" Is Brilliantly Mounted by Roller.

TUNEFUL MELODIES HAILED

Clemens Krauss Directs Performance Which Is Minor Triumph in Music "War" With Berlin.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 12.—A minor engagement in the contest which poverty-stricken Vienna is waging with wealthy Berlin for the musical supremacy of Europe was won by the Vienna State Opera tonight with the première presentation of a forgotten Verdi opera, "Simone Boccanegra," as rewritten by the poet and novelist, Franz Werfel. It was a double victory for Vienna, since the performance not only anticipated the Berlin production of this work by a whole month but it was given in spite of the efforts of Director Tietjens to induce the publishers who hold the Verdi copyrights to prohibit the appearance in Vienna. The publishers, Ricordi of Milan, declined to intervene.

Werfel, the biographer of Verdi, declared that, of Verdi's neglected operas, it had been his ambition to redeem "Simone Boccanegra" for the stage:

"I regard 'Simone Boccanegra' as an opera which was well in advance of its time in dramatic depth, psychological delicacy and weight. It was my endeavor to rewrite the libretto in more concise and comprehensible form. To this end I tried not so much to alter the text as to retranslate it in terms of the music."

Singers Redeem Outmoded Plot.

The performance tonight was brilliantly conducted by the new director of the Vienna opera, Clemens Krauss. It was evidence of Werfel's success as an adapter. The opera, like others of Verdi's, is founded on early Italian history. It is old fashioned in plot and music, but for the modern eye and ear it is lifted from the routine aria opera by Professor Alfred Roller's beautiful stage pictures, Lothar Wallenstein's masterly handling of the crowd scenes, and Verdi's lovely melodies.

The setting of the first act, with its towering, heavy masses of church and palace against the gently swelling, phosphorescent sea, gives a colorful background for the revolutionary uprisings of the opera. Marie Nemeth's radiant if not too flexible soprano and Wilhelm Rode's nobility of voice and presence as the revolutionary who has become a Venetian Doge redeemed the naïveté of the plot, the complexities of which could be resolved only by killing off both the villain and the hero in the final act.

But, above all, it was a victory for Verdi. His melodies enabled the audience to forget their modern duty of listening only with their brains and to live again in the days when Italian opera was supreme and Verdi was its chief exponent.

Had Première 72 Years Ago.

"Simone Boccanegra," with book by Piave, especially composed by Verdi for La Fenice in Venice and produced on March 12, 1857, was a total failure, though the prologue and last act have been ranked among his most powerful creations. The failure has been ascribed largely to a dull and confused libretto, as well as a bad interpretation.

Both book and music were afterward altered, the former by Arrigo Boito, and the opera was revived with success in Milan on March 24, 1881.

VICAR OUSTS CONGREGATION

Calls In Police When Britons Protest Unheated Church.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The Rev. T. Caleb, negro vicar of St. Michel's Church of Lumbinrosendale, Lancashire, caused his congregation of about seventy persons to be ejected by the police today when they persited in interrupting his service.

Trouble between his congregation and Caleb began some months ago and parishioners petitioned the Bishop of Manchester to have him removed. The church was not heated today, so the half-frozen congregation kept up a steady stamping of feet against the pews, punctuated by bouts of sneezing and coughing.

The vicar's patrolled the aisle and warned that if the noise continued she would call the police. She spoke sharply to a girl who began to cry. This caused a further demonstration and the vicar left the church. He returned with a police sergeant and two constables, who began to clear the pews, leaving only those indicated by the vicar. With the exception of about six, including the vicar's wife, daughter and maid, the church was emptied, the police taking the names of the ringleaders of the disturbance, who were ironically singing the hymn "Fight the Good Fight."

FIND PREHISTORIC CARRIAGE

Yugoslavians Unerrth Votive Vehicle Linked With Bronze Age.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Jan. 12.—A unique example of a votive carriage, dating from prehistoric times and unearthed in the village of Dupljava in Vojvodina, has been lodged in a safe at the Belgrade Museum. The three-wheeled carriage bears an effigy of a bird-headed deity, apparently a sun god. It is made of baked clay.

Dr. Josip Petrovitch, curator of the archaeciogical section of the museum, says the carriage belongs to the end of the bronze age. Extensive investigations will be undertaken next Spring in the neighborhood of the discovery and also in South Serbia, where at Stobi once flourished a Macedonian city. It is hoped to unearth a second Pompeii there.

BARLOW ASKS HALT ON SALE IN CUBA

He Requests State Department to Act in Forced Disposal of 32 Havana City Blocks.

CUBAN BANK IS ACCUSER

He Traces Reported Court Order to Sell Property to an Attempt to Destroy Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jna. 12.—Joseph E. Barlow, American citizen who has been a resident of Cuba for many years, has asked the State Department to take steps to stop the forced sale of thirty-two city blocks in the centre of Havana, known as the Manglar de Urrutia, in which he claims ownership rights.

Mr. Barlow urged the department to ask Ambassador Guggenheim to stop the sale until his matters are adjusted, declaring that a certain Cuban bank "owned by Machado and Gomez Mena" is trying to destroy him.

News of the purported sale was received by Barlow, who is here pressing claims to large properties which he says the Cubans seized years ago, from his wife in a cablegram.

The message read:

"Banco Comercio has your note attached to Buena Vista bonds. Judge of court of first instance has ordered your rights inf Manglar sold to satisfy same in eight days. Combination of Gomez Mena and government to eliminate you. Their lawyers are Vazques Bello firm. Will notify Ambassador."

In his representations, contained in a letter to the Secretary of State, Mr. Barlow stated that the note referred to in his wife's cablegram was given to H. Upman & Co., Havana bankers, and was guaranteed by bonds of a company which he owned.

"Mr. Upman sold the note to some New York bankers," Mr. Barlow said in his letter, "and borrowed $100,000 on some bonds for which he was trustee."

He charged that Upman had no legal authority whatever to use the bonds.

"Upman was put in jail for theft, but on account of his assistance to Zayas, then President, and Gomez Mena in robbing me of the Manglar property, an amnesty law was passed and he was relieved after having stolen from me in addition to looting his own bank of millions."

Mr. Barlow said the value of the Manglar de Urrutia, which was a "swamp" when he "acquired" it, had been estimated at from $8,000,000 to $20,000,000. He acquired a 40 per cent interest from a group of Cubans in 1919, he says, and later bought them out, paying a total of approximately $130,000 and a mortgage for $300,000. Bonds were issued against the mortgage, he said, with the understanding that —they should not become due until all litigation had been settled and he was in secure possession of the property.

METHODISTS LIST DRY LAW DEMANDS

Board of Temperance Calls on Congress for Legislation, Money and Men Needed.

BACKS THE SHEPPARD BILL

Administration of Law by Its Friends and Action Against "Rebel" Wets Are Urged.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—On the eve of the presentation to the House of the treasury-postoffice supply bill, providing funds for prohibition enforcement, the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, issued a formal statement tonight petitioning Congress to vote for whatever measures, money and men may be needed to assure effective enforcement of the prohibition law.

The statement, issued by Bishop James Cannon Jr., chairman of the board, and Dr. E. L. Crawford, secretary, emphasized the position of the General Conference that the results of the prohibition law have been "exceedingly beneficial."

It characterized the Eighteenth Amendment as "the high-water mark of social legislation in the United States or in any other country," and as "the expression of the determination of the overwhelming majority of the American people to promote the general welfare." The issue no longer is enforcement of the prohibition law, the statement said, but maintenance of the constitutional government.

For Action Against "Rebels."

"Rebels against the constitutional government," the statement said, "must be treated as rebels and made to understand that, even though they do not like the prohibition law, they cannot defy the Government of the United States.

"President Washington sent Light Horse Harry Lee with government troops to suppress the Whisky Rebellion in Pennsylvania; President Jackson declared his purpose to take similar action to maintain the authority of the government in South Carolina. If, running true to form, there should be a whisky rebellion in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, Rhode Island or anywhere else, it is the duty of the government to suppress such a rebellion.

"The question of the modification of the provisions of the Volstead act, which is statutory legislation, may be properly debated, and such amendments be adopted as have for their purpose the better enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, but such amendments only. But the effort to destroy the purpose of the Eighteenth Amendment by nullifying amendments to the Volstead act, by withholding adequate appropriations for men and equipment or by open rebellion cannot be tolerated.

Attitude on Enforcement.

The board's attitude in regard to enforcement was outlined as follows:

First—Representing the general conference, this board hereby petitions Congress to vote for whatever measures, money and men may be necessary to secure effective enforcement of the prohibition law, by strengthening and improving the personnel and the working equipment of all governmental prohibition agencies, including the federal courts and their officers, the customs officials, the Coast Guard and the officers and field force of the prohibition department. It is not a question of dollars and cents $25,000,000, $50,000,000, $100,000,000 or $200,000,000. From the financial standpoint alone the cost of enforcement is small compared with the great economic benefits which have come from prohibition, even at its worst. But we positively insist that when men openly flaunt their determination to violate any law of our country, the government must suppress anarchy and compel obedience to the law, absolutely regardless of cost.

Second—In the name of the general conference, we petition that the law shall be administered by its friends.

Call for Passage of Sheppard Bill.

Third—We petition Congress to pass the Sheppard bill, which holds the purchaser and the seller of intoxicants equally guilty.

Fourth—We urge Congress to pass such legislation as the President, after investigation by commission or otherwise, may decide to be vital and necessary to make his enforcement program effective, not only for the country at large, but to make the capital city of the nation the "model city" in respect to enforcement of law.

Fifth—We favor the inauguration and prompt, extensive development of an educational policy by the government in support of the Eighteenth Amendment.

6. With no purpose to be invidious, we hereby place on record our high appreciation of the unquestioned sincerity, persistent activity and unusual efficiency shown by Dr. J. M. Doran, the Commissioner of Prohibition. His task is exceedingly difficult, especially the formulation of an efficient program to handle the manufacture and distribution of industrial alcohol and medicinal liquor, both of which are sore spots, and both of which must be brought under proper control if prohibition enforcement is to be successful.

Assails the Press.

The statement deplored the "ceaseless clamor and insolent bitterness" of the metropolitan press, the "vicious, hypocritical assaults" of Representatives in Congress from districts with large foreign-born populations; and the "ever-increasing assaults of some of the leaders of the Roman Catholic Church."

"The recently declared determination of the President and of dry leaders in Congress that the law shall be enforced," the statement said, "and the gradual steady tightening up of enforcement agencies have caused the liquor traffic and its slaves to rise up in murderous rebellion, even to hold mass meetings, proclaming liquor smugglers as martyrs, government officials as murderers, and openly declaring that the prohibition law shall not be enforced. These threats of rebellion and anarchy have been broadcast throughout the nation by speeches of certain blatant Congressmen, but especially by certain metropolitan newspapers, which have from the beginning led in the circulation of defeatist propaganda, not only denouncing the law (which they have the legal right to do), but attacking government officials because they were faithfully trying to enforce the law, with, however, not only no word of condemnation for bootleggers, rum-runners or hijackers, or for that social element which inconsistently and foolishly flaunts its defiance of that particular law, but, on the contrary, with clearly indicated sympathy for such lawless activity in both news and editorial columns. "Many of these papers have not simply fought the prohibition law, but they have been traitors to the fundamental elements of constitutional government, criticizing government officials, from the President down, for their efforts to comply with their oaths of office. The most baneful influence in the public life of the nation today is that section of the press which opposes every form of legislation which has for its object the protection of society from the excesses of 'selfish individualism,' recently so absurdly extolled by President Butler as 'higher lawlessness.'"

TWO KILLED, 17 HURT IN NEW BRITISH GALE

WIND AT 120-MILE FORCE

Boy Blown Off Pier Drowns—Two Ships in Distress—Wind Hurls Tree on Motor Coach.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—A sudden gale which reached a force of 120 miles an hour at Beachy Head tonight caused widespread havoc in Southern England and parts of Ireland. The Cunard liner Antonia from New York was unable to enter the Queenstown harbor and proceeded direct to Liverpool with her passengers and 200 bags of mail. Both the passengers and the mail were to have been disembarked at Queenstown.

The English Channel was lashed to a fury and the Walmer lifeboat, after having been launched in response to an SOS from the Italian steamer Liana, was thrown back on the Kentish Coast by the tremendous seas. A tugboat later succeeded in passing a hawser to the Liana. A boy watching the departure of a Ramsgate lifeboat to go to the assistance of a vessel reported to be ashore in the South Goodwin sands was blown off the pier and drowned.

Many main roads and railroad tracks were blocked by débris. A large tree at Putney Vale was blown down and crashed through the roof of a motor coach, eight occupants of which were taken to a hospital. Another motor coach crashed into a fallen tree at Kingston, Surrey, and five persons were injured. A woman was killed and her husband seriously hurt by a falling tree at Muswell Hill, South London.

The gale was the worst England has had this Winter. It is estimated to have traveled 500 miles in eight hours from its origin over the Atlantic.

Railway passengers had many thrills tonight. The locomotive of the Bournemouth-London express carried an uprooted tree some distance along the track, but luckily the train kept to the rails. The engine and a passenger car of a train were derailed near Rochester, Kent, after the locomotive had struck a tree blown across the rails. At Ponders End, Middlesex, railroad passengers were scared when a signal came down, ripping open three coaches and injuring three persons.

After evensong the steeple of St. James's Church at Whetstone, Middlesex, crashed through the roof, but injured nobody.

A huge wave, said by some passengers to have been higher than the vessel's funnels, struck the cross-Channel steamship Biarritz while she was between Folkestone and Boulogne. The wave washed clear over her.

DOVER, England, Jan. 12 (AP).—A steamship, urgently asking for help, early today was driving helplessly before the gale between Beachy Head and Dungeness. Her name was said to be Amphea but that could not be verified.

LOFT PRESIDENT REPLIES.

Miller, Responding to Guth, Denies Claiming Control of Candy Concern.

Alfred R. Miller, president of Loft, Inc., candy and ice cream merchants and manufacturers, made public yesterday a letter to stockholders in reply to criticism of the management by Charles G. Guth, vice president, who failed recently in an action to obtain a mandamus order for examination of the company's books.

Mr. Miller denied that he claimed control of the company, saying that he and his friends owned somewhere between 200,000 and 300,000 of the 1,022,842 shares of stock outstanding. Mr. Miller defended several contracts made by the company, which had been criticized by Mr. Guth. He added that he had used his personal resources to protect the company's stock during the recent market slump.

ARMY FLIERS HELD BACK.

Majority Remain at Minot, N. D., to Await Those Delayed.

MINOT, N. D., Jan. 12 (AP).—The army's midwinter air tourists on a cross-country flight were kept here today by motor trouble. They had been scheduled to hop off for Great Falls, Mont., the next overnight stop.

Seventeen of the original starters from Selfridge Field, Mich., arrived yesterday and decision to remain until tomorrow was due in part to hopes that the other craft would catch up so all could proceed together again.

Three of the delayed planes arrived during the day, making twenty now here. The whereabouts of two others was not known by Major Royce.

BILL FIGHTS CURB ON MEDICAL LIQUOR

Senator Hastings Preparing Measure to Lift Restrictions on Doctor's Prescriptions.

HOLDS STATE HAS RIGHT

Dr. S. W. Lambert Says Present Law Hampers Proper Treatment of Many Cases of Illness.

State Senator John A. Hastings of Brooklyn announced yesterday that he would introduce in the Senate a bill to amend the medical practice act to permit physicians to prescribe liquors and wines without limitation as to the quantity or restriction as to time. He said his aim was to emancipate the medical profession from unreasonable government interference and repression. If the courts hold such an amendment unconstitutional, he said, he will sponsor legislation authorizing the State to engage in the manufacture of alcohol as a drug and permit its distribution through licensed physicians.

The proposed bill has the approval, Mr. Hastings said, of prominent doctors, among them:

SAMUEL W. LAMBERT, former president of the New York Academy of Medicine and president of the Association for Preservation of Constitutional Rights.
T. C. CHALMERS, former president of the Society for Medical Jurisprudence and the Greater New York Medical Society.
WARREN COLEMAN, Fellow of the American College of Physicians.

The bill is based, according to Mr. Hastings, on the principle sustained by the United States Supreme Court that "'obviously direct control of medical practice in the State is beyond the powers of the Federal Government.'"

Sees Usurpation of Rights.

In a statement Mr. Hastings said:

"The Federal statute limiting the physicians to the prescription of not more than one pint of spirituous liquors in ten days to a patient, whose condition in the judgment of his attending physician may require more, is a usurpation of and an interference with the State's right to protect the health and lives of its inhabitants, the preservation of which is the one great justification for the existence and maintenance of organized State government.

"The Federal statute limiting a physician to 100 authorized liquor prescriptions in ninety days is an unfair and unjustified restriction upon his professional obligations where he may require the use of a greater number in that period of time.

"The Federal statute in so far as its restrictions affect the practice of medicine, either hinders the physician in the proper treatment of his patients or makes of him a criminal in the interest of the health or life entrusted to his professional care.

"The Federal restriction of the prescription of liquor as medicine by licensed physicians is an unjustified and inexcusable aspersion upon the professional integrity and honesty of the medical profession in this State.

"It constitutes, also, an unjustified and unwarranted encroachment upon the State's right and power to regulate the practice of medicine and to provide punishment for those, licensed and authorized to engage in the healing arts, who have culpably violated the ethics of Hippocrates.

"The regulation of the practice of medicine is purely an internal affair and the power to regulate it, as such, is inherent in the State of New York."

Mr. Hastings made public a letter from Dr. Lambert in which the latter said the good-will of the whole medical profession and its best wishes for success would follow the Senator in this "new fight for the correction of an evil."

Dr. Lambert in praising the effort to amend the law wrote in part: "It is a stimulus to further effort in this direction to discover that a Senator of the State of New York has the courage of his convictions to take up this important question in medical practice and to endeavor to enlist the power of the Empire State to secure relief from the unjust, even if legal, prohibition which now hamper the physician in the proper care of many cases of illness except he ask his patient to resort to subterfuge, to the patronage of a bootlegger or to the kindness of some friend who may be the happy possessor of a pre-Volstead cellar."

17 SEIZED IN DRY RAIDS IN THEATRE DISTRICT

Detectives Accompany Federal Agents on Visits to 10 Night Clubs and Speakeasies.

Seventeen waiters and clerks were arrested in raids on ten night clubs and cafés in the theatrical district early yesterday morning. The raids were made by detectives of Inspector Patrick S. McCormick's staff and Federal agents on search warrants signed by United States Commissioner Cotter. The prohibition agents had obtained evidence against most of the resorts on previous visits. All those arrested were charged with the sale and possession of liquor.

The first raid was directed against the Toto Club at 148 West Fifty-sixth Street, where Jack Berlin, Philip Holstein and Louis Cohen, clerks, and Harry Kahn, Harry Keepers, Samuel Green and Joseph Miller, waiters, were arrested.

Others arrested were Edward Lanot, waiter, at 308 West Fifty-third Street; Samuel McCully and Hugh McCarty, waiters, at 367 West Fifty-first Street; Michael Ryan, waiter, at 148 West Fifty-fourth Street; George Taylor, waiter, at 254 West Fifty-fifth Street; Narriel Engelhardt, waiter, at 312 West Fifty-third Street; Charles Smith, waiter, at 246 West Fortieth Street; John Collins, waiter, at 246 West Forty-eighth Street; Harry Goldman, waiter, at 78 West Forty-seventh Street; Louis Brennan, waiter, at 57 West Fifty-eighth Street.

WILL ASK $1,000,000 FOR DRY LAW SURVEY

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

haustive, searching study by earnest men of the highest capacity."

Proposal Linked With the Report.

Mr. Andrew's proposal is regarded as reflecting the growing feeling that, after a decade of what President Hoover has called a "noble experiment," the time has come when there should be a comprehensive survey by impartial investigators to get at the bottom of the turmoil and determine whether the Volstead act and related Federal laws require change.

The proposal has especial immediate importance because it is aimed to invest the law enforcement commission with definite statutory authority and to continue it in office for another two years. The Andrew bill dovetails into the situation which the commission's first report is certain to create when it is laid before Congress tomorrow.

The commission is not acting under any statutory authority other than an item in an annual appropriation bill authorizing its expenditures for an investigation of law observance and enforcement, including prohibition. President Hoover appointed the commission to undertake the investigation within the limit of expenditure provided. The Andrew measure appears to invest the commission with a definite statutory status.

It is regarded as certain that the bill will stimulate the agitation over the question: "Can prohibition be enforced?" That agitation developed after a rather protracted period of quiet on the part of the wet forces, from Senator Borah's declaration on Christmas Eve that prohibition never would be enforced unless there was a cleaning out of the present Federal enforcement administration "from top to bottom. Since then the merits of enforcement have been debated with vigor in and out of the House of Representatives, but in the Senate, an agreement by all factions to keep the tariff bill under consideration until it is disposed of has caused that body to observe an unusual quiet on a matter of such outstanding public interest.

Text of the Andrew Bill.

The text of Representative Andrew's bill follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement, appointed by the President of the United States under the provisions of Section 1 of the first deficiency act, fiscal year 1929, approved March 4, 1929 (Statutes at Large, Seventieth Congress, Session 2, Chapter 706, Page 1,613, third paragraph), is hereby authorized and directed to inquire into and report to Congress at the earliest practicable date what changes, if any, are necessary or desirable in the system of dealing with intoxicating liquors in the United States or in the laws relating thereto, and, for this purpose, it is authorized to sit at such times and places as it may deem desirable, to send for persons and papers, to administer oaths, to summons and compel the attendance of witnesses and to employ a disbursing officer and such secretaries, experts, stenographers, messengers and other assistants as shall be necessary to carry out the purposes of the commission.

The commission shall have the power, through subcommittee or otherwise, to examine witnesses and to make such investigations and examinations in this or other countries of the subjects committed to its charge as it shall deem necessary.

Section 2. That in order to carry out the provisions of this act and to pay the necessary expenses of the commission and its members, $1,000,000 is authorized to be expended under authority and by direction of the President of the United States, which sum, or as much thereof as may be required, shall, when appropriated, become immediately available.

Section 3. That this act shall expire by limitation two years from the date of passage of the act.

Points to Commission's Stand.

In explaining his purpose Representative Andrew mentioned the understanding that the President's commission had not undertaken and did not contemplate undertaking an investigation of the merits of the prohibition system as provided for in his measure.

"Many had doubtless hoped," said Mr. Andrew, "that the Hoover commission—the ability and character of whose members command great respect—would attempt such an investigation, but either from lack of authority or for some other reason this does not seem to be their intention.

"This bill is designed to give the commission full authority to enter upon a fundamental and thorough inquiry. It proposes to allow them to employ any experts or assistants whom they may choose, and to carry on their investigations anywhere and everywhere, either in this country or abroad, as they may see fit.

"It proposes to give them a million dollars to cover their expenses and to allow them two years in which to complete their task. The time and money involved are insignificant when compared with the magnitude of the benefits which would come to the people of the United States if a satisfactory remedy for the present distressing situation could be found.

"Twenty years ago this country was confronted with a problem of vast concern and ramifications which seemed equally insoluble. Something was hopelessly wrong with our banking system, which from time to time suffered sudden and complete collapse, entailing the annihilation of every kind of credit, the wrecking of businesses of every size and sort, and nation-wide unemployment.

"Yet there were as many different diagnoses of the malady and as many suggested remedies as there were people giving thought to the problem. The future development of the country and the welfare of millions of people were at stake, but Senators and Congressmen, editors and economists wrangled in bitter disagreement both as to cause and cure.

Recalls the Monetary Study.

"Finally, in 1908, following the panic of the previous Autumn, when every bank in the country had suspended payment and tens of thousands of firms had gone to the wall, Senator Aldrich succeeded in referring the problem to a commission with sweeping authority and ample funds, the so-called National Monetary Commission.

"For three years that commission pursued its investigations, not only in this country but in England, Germany, France, Italy, Sweden and, in fact, throughout the world. They employed, or consulted with, the most expert talent to be found. They proceeded in a scholarly way with open minds and without preconceived ideas to analyze the difficulties and to find their correctives, and after three years they were able to agree upon both and to report a plan which ultimately became the basis of the Federal Reserve act.

"Under that legislation the country weathered the outbreak of the World War, our entrance into the war, and every other emergency of the succeeding years without a single recurrence of bank suspensions and without ever experiencing another banking panic or industrial crisis.

"This experience of a generation ago would seem to point the way to a possible solution of one of the most difficult, vexing and important problems of our time."

Representative Andrew was at one time Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. He served in the French ambulance service in the World War, and when the United States entered the conflict he gave his services to the American army.

Britten Plans Call of House Wets.

WASHINGTON, Jan 12 (AP).—On the eve of a report to Congress by President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission, Representative Britten, Republican, of Illinois, today denominated prohibition's "present control by fanatics, intolerants and simple-minded followers" as its greatest enemy.

Mr. Britten, who last week was chosen by the wet bloc of the House as chairman of an executive committee to nominate a chairman for the group, said he would call a meeting early this week. Representative Linthicum, Democrat, of Maryland, present chairman of the group of anti-Prohibitionists numbering about 100, and Representative Beck, Republican, of Pennsylvania, are the outstanding candidates for the chairmanship.

The present "general disgust" manifested throughout the country over the prohibition law, Mr. Britten said, together with an awakening of members of Congress to the situation, made "enough work for both of these outstanding members of Congress" in the anti-prohibition group.

Mr. Beck's reputation as a constitutional lawyer, Mr. Britten said, "which undoubtedly would add great weight to anything he might say on the situation," was a large contributing factor to the suggestion of his candidacy.

"The fact that these two men seek the place of chairman of this informal group," asserted Mr. Britten, "indicates that the movement for temperance is on the upgrade, while the costly, unsatisfactory prohibition movement is being swamped by its own wash."

DIVISION IN SENATE WIDE ON SUGAR DUTY

Viewpoints Cut Across Party Lines, With Opposition to Any Increase Strong.

VOTE DUE EARLY IN WEEK

On Prospect of Speedier Action, Senator George Predicts Tariff Bill Decision in 30 Days.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The Senate will return to debate on the sugar schedule of the tariff bill tomorrow with the prospect of action on this part of the measure within the next three days. What the outcome of the vote will be no one would seriously attempt to predict here.

First specific action will be on the pending motion by Senator Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi, to retain the present duty of 1.76 cents a pound on Cuban sugar and 2.20 cents on sugar from other countries, in place of the Senate Finance Committee recommendation of 2.20 cents and 2.75 cents, respectively. Mr. Harrison's position is supported by Senator LaFollette, insurgent Republican, of Wisconsin.

Chairman Smoot of the Finance Committee has the backing of many Republicans for the committee rate, but there is no clear division between any of the Senate groups. The Democratic members from Louisiana, Messrs. Ransdell and Broussard, have led in a demand for the still higher rates of the House bill, 2.40 cents on Cuban sugar and 3 cents on world sugar.

Senator Copeland, Democrat, of New York, has joined Senator Borah, Idaho insurgent, in urging a bounty for domestic sugar growers and no tariff increase which would result in higher prices to the consumer.

May Affect Final Vote on Bill.

The votes of Eastern Republican Senators are expected to be decisive as to the rate, but opposition to an increase is consolidating. Threats were heard today that some in the Senate will vote against final passage of the bill if it includes a higher sugar duty.

With the end of the sugar fight in view, hope is expressed in some quarters that final action on the tariff bill is not far distant. Senator George of Georgia, Democratic member of the Finance Committee, said in a statement issued through the Democratic aNtional Committee that the present rate of procedure should see the measure in conference within thirty days.

"The big fight in conference will not be over duties and rates, but over the debenture amendment and the Simmons-Norris flexible provision," said Senator George.

A statement from the People's Legislative Service during the day assailed any increases in the sugar tariff as a "scandal" against the interests of the consumers.

United States Leads World in Road Mileage With 3,016,281 Miles, or 38 Per Cent of Total

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The present road mileage of the world is 7,805,629, and the United States, exclusive of Alaska and outlying possessions, ranks first with a total of 3,016,281 miles, or 38.7 per cent, according to a survey just completed for the Department of Commerce by Frank B. Curran and B. R. Root, highway specialists.

Excepting the Aegean Islands, Germany, Russia, Spain, Switzerland and the United Kingdom, for which detailed statistics were not obtained, the United States ranks first in hard-surfaced roads with 167,155 miles and is the only country with more than 100,000 miles of this type.

Although the United States ranks first with 38.7 per cent of the world's total road mileage, this percentage shows a marked decrease from last year, when it had 46 per cent.

Russia is second with 776,712 miles, or 9.9 per cent, followed by Japan with 575,325 miles, or 7.4 per cent; France 405,028 miles, or 5.2 per cent; Canada 381,977 miles, or 4.9 per cent; Australasia 300,000 miles, or 3.8 per cent; India 283,506 miles, or 3.6 per cent; Germany 216,672 miles, or 2.8 per cent; United Kingdom 179,095 miles, or 2.3 per cent, and Poland 139,631 miles, or 1.8 per cent.

SENATOR NYE LAUDS TARIFF COALITION

Because of Its Work the Bill Will Be Fairest Ever Enacted, He Declares.

REPLIES TO MOSES THRUST

Admits Westerners Have Been "Jackasses" for Paying Rates to Aid New England.

Speaking last night at the Labor Temple, Second Avenue and Fourteenth Street, Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota lauded the activities of the coalition of Senate Progressives and Democrats in whipping the pending tariff bill into shape.

Due to the work of the members of this coalition, Senator Nye avowed, the bill when the Senate finished with it within a month would be the fariest of its kind ever enacted. The Senator devoted a good deal of his address to an ironic reply to Senator George Moses's characterization of Senate insurgents as "sons of wild jackasses."

"I'll frankly confess," he said, "that in a sense we Westerners have been jackasses. Year after year we have gone on paying high tariff rates for the benefit of New England and her industries."

Senator Uses a Parable.

Using the parable of Balaam and his ass, Mr. Nye remarked that, as Balaam's eyes were finally opened by the Lord, so it might not be too late "for our tame Jackass party bosses" to open their eyes and see that they are riding the party to destruction.

He said the original tariff proposals offered no assistance to the agricultural interests of the country because of numerous industrial increases which he said were not justified.

"The delay in the passage of the tariff bill," he said, "is occasioned by the mere fact that the committee drafting the bill was not representative of the wishes of the majority of representatives of the people in the Senate.

"There perhaps has never been a more determined stand taken in opposition to a tariff bill than that which has been prevailing. The coalition formed by the Progressive Republicans and the Democrats has forced amendment after amendment to the bill to such an extent that there is every promise that when the Senate finishes with the bill, perhaps this month, it will be a tariff bill of such fairness as has never before been passed by a Congress.

Seeks Only Parity for Farmers.

"It has not been the purpose of the coalition to defeat any tariff legislation. It has not been the purpose of the coalition to deny to those industries which were confronted by emergencies the help which could be afforded through a tariff. It has been the whole purpose of the coalition to so guide the making of the bill that it would respond definitely to the needs of agriculture and afford so far as possible that parity for that industry which is so necessary and so generally conceded to be so essential in weighing agricultural needs as they are related to the tariff."

Senator Nye charged that several employes of the Federal Power Commission are in the employ of power interests and are hampering the commissioners in their work of trying to discover "true conditions." He said that "some very interesting things would be revealed" within the next few weeks concerning this situation.

TO CONFER ON AMBULANCES

Dr. Greeff to Meet Brooklyn Hospitals' Representatives Wednesday.

A conference between representatives of the Brooklyn hospitals operating ambulances and Dr. J. G. William Greeff, Commissioner of Hospitals, will be held Wednesday, according to statements given out by Dr. Greeff last night.

Formal agreement to support the commissioner's plan to have the city take over ambulance service in Brooklyn was reached by representatives of the hospitals at a meeting Saturday evening in the Nurses' Home of St. John's Hospital, Brooklyn. The committee had nothing to say after the meeting with regard to details of the plan, however.

Dr. Greeff declined to comment on this action last night, adding that he would have nothing further to say until after Wednesday's meeting.

EUROPE'S BEST YEAR SINCE WAR WAS 1929

Steady Progress Made on Constructive Lines—Continuance of Upward Trend Forecast.

IMPETUS GIVEN OUR TRADE

Depression Is the Exception, With Industrial Activity Increasing in Nearly All Countries.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Europe as a whole had in 1929 the best year since the war, a year marked by steady progress along constructive lines, and the prospects are for a continuance of the upward trend in 1930, according to a survey just made by R. M. Stephenson, chief of the European section of the Division of Regional Information of the Department of Commerce. For the United States this progress in Europe, he says, "means a better, though a highly competitive market."

Most of the European countries, the survey states, experienced a severe credit stringency in 1929, bank rates being repeatedly increased and money for investment, especially from the United States, being absent, but this situation was eased by the collapse in the American stock market. Funds were repatriated in large amounts and discount rates fell to normal levels abroad. European industry "is expected to benefit greatly from the greater availability of capital during 1930, and a resumption of loans from Americans is anticipated.

"Progress toward the settlement of international questions such as reparations and disarmament," the survey continues, "will very greatly stimulate business and confidence. Present uncertainties, particularly as to the future of reparations, are still exerting a deterrent influence, in Germany especially.

"As was to be expected, improvement in European conditions has been reflected in our trade. On the basis of statistics for the first ten months of 1929 it appears that United States exports to Europe were about 3 per cent higher than in 1928 and our imports from Europe about 10 per cent higher. If proportional gains were maintained in the last two months exports were in value the heaviest since 1925, while imports were the largest on record.

"The process of amalgamation and combination in industry, so conspicuous in recent years, was continued in 1929. This tendency toward the formation of larger units in the interests of greater economy in production and selling was prevalent in all industrial countries."

"In contrast with recent years, depression is now the exception rather than the rule. Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, the Netherlands, Sweden and Switzerland appear to be generally prosperous, though in varying degrees and with, in each, many unsatisfactory elements."

In nearly all European countries industrial activity increased in 1929, with the newer industries, such as chemicals, electrical equipment, automobiles, rubber and rayon, continuing in general at high levels of production. An encouraging development was the pick-up in the "heavy industries," with iron and steel production in England the highest of any post-war year.

Unemployment responded to industrial improvement, but remained a grave problem in Great Britain, Germany and Austria. In other countries unemployment sunk to more or less normal seasonal proportions, while in France and Belgium there is even a shortage of available labor.

SHOWS WARD MANOR AS HAVEN FOR AGED

A. I. C. P. Report Pictures the Beauty and Advantages of Estate in Dutchess County.

$250,000 A YEAR FOR WORK

Association Uses Sum for the Home and Other Aid to the Elderly—New Apartment House Here.

In a report, entitled "In and About a Gray Stone Manor House," the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, 105 East Twenty-second Street, describes four years of work on its Ward Manor property at Red Hook, in Dutchess County. The 1,000-acre estate, with its group of buildings, was given to the association by the late William B. Ward, president of the Ward Baking Company, as a memorial to his father, Robert Boyd Ward. Through the Robert Boyd Ward Fund Mr. Ward gave with the estate a home for elderly people.

The report, made public yesterday by C. N. Bliss, president of the A. I. C. P., was written by William H. Matthews, director of the association's family welfare department, who is also chairman of the committee in charge of the development of Ward Manor. The figures disclose that the average age of the inmates of the home is 75 years.

The principal buildings are occupied by the elderly persons as their permanent home. The other buildings have been converted into camps for boys and girls. Several new buildings have been erected, including a large summer vacation home, Sunset Lodge, for elderly persons who live in New York City in Winter and work in the Crawford Shops, maintained by the A. I. C. P.

Spending $250,000 a Year.

The association is now spending at the rate of approximately $250,000 a year on Ward Manor and other instrumentalities which it has developed in the past four years for the care of the aged. Nearly half that sum is given to elderly men and women in the form of monthly allowances to enable them to maintain themselves in their own modest homes in the city. The association has just opened a new sixty-room apartment house on Tompkins Square where rooms may be rented by elderly persons in modest circumstances. The association owns the building.

"For ten years or more no one save a few solitary caretakers had occupied the property," says the report referring to the gray stone Tudor building and other houses that had been the property of Arthur Gordon Hammersley in 1914. "The exquisitely wrought iron doors of the grey stone manor house opened neither for host nor guest. From the windows on the east no one looked as the morning sun wove tangles of light and shade through leaf and branch of stately oaks. From the balustraded western porches no one watched as river and mountain seemed all afire in evening glow. From the leaded casement windows on all sides there came no gleam of lights to pierce in later hours the darkness of the night. As silent, cold sentinels the tall limestone chimneys seemed to rise from the red tile roof."

"Bill" and "Jerry," two of many who during the four lapsed years had found a place in the manor household, do the work around the place. One cares for the garden, the other for the canaries. Another inmate, "Albert," with paint pot and brush wanders around the place retouching doors and fences in need of paint. A second "Bill" cultivates the flowers, and "Dickie" with a bucket and mop keeps the porches and steps spotless.

Beauty in the House.

"Should a visitor choose to wander through the house," the report says, "he would find there much of beauty. Rugs, tapestries, books, pictures—bits of loveliness from far away lands, gifts of visiting friends who have found their way to the gray stone manor house."

The report tells how one of the barns, through the generosity of a friend of girls, was transformed into Greybarns, a Summer camp for girls. Two additional farmhouses were reclaimed for girl camps through the generosity of other donors.

"Sunset Lodge, also a memorial, differs from the gray stone manor in that it is a Summer living place only," it is explained, "a vacation home for old folks who still struggle in the city. Each year some of this group pass from Sunset lodge to the gray stone manor house."

The report also describes the transformation that has been made of the island that goes with the property, of the boys' Summer camp, "Island." The boys' baseball field is in full view of the old folk on the porch of the manor house. Another section of the estate is called "Bungalow Hill," and has five holiday bungalows.

The committee in charge of Ward Manor includes besides Mr. Matthews Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Bliss, Mrs. James A. Burden, Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. E. Roland Harriman, Mrs. John H. Prentice, Mrs. William B. Ward, Dr. Haven Emerson, Ralph H. Kent, Henry Barbey and Samuel Keyser.

MRS. ZUCKERBROD BURIED.

Welfare Worker Died After Giving Birth to Daughter.

Funeral services were held yesterday for Mrs. Minnie Zuckerbrod of 440 Sixth Street, east side welfare worker and sister of Harry Schlacht, former Welfare Commissioner at Ellis Island, who died on Saturday in Lying-In Hospital, East Seventeenth Street and Second Avenue, after the birth of a daughter.

The funeral was largely attended and messages of condolence were received by the family from Mayor Walker, Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee, Borough President Julius Miller of Manhattan and many others, while representatives of a large number of Jewish and civic organizations also attended. Interment was at Mount Hebron Cemetery.

Though they're making the money smaller these days, it's got a bigger value than ever in our clothing!

STUDY FORD WAGES AND COST OF LIVING

Investigators 'Prepare Budget' to Compare Standards Here and in 17 Cities Abroad.

AIM TO LIFT FOREIGN LEVEL

Federal Bureau Cooperates With Twentieth Century Fund in Work Backed by Geneva Labor Office.

The international investigation of the cost of living in relation to wages, sponsored by the International Labor Office at Geneva, which may have far-reaching effects on the wage policies of European countries, was begun last week in Detroit, it was revealed yesterday in an announcement from the offices of the Twentieth Century Fund, 11 West Forty-second Street, by Leifur Magnusson, representative of the International Labor Office in the United States.

The Twentieth Century Fund, of which Edward A. Filene is president, is financing the investigation in part.

Agents of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, with whom J. W. Nixon, Chief Statistician of the International Labor Office is cooperating, began the study by undertaking a survey of the purchasing power of Ford Motor Company employes' wages, which will be used as the basis for the investigation. Their object is to formulate a "commodity budget" which will represent, in terms of food, clothing, housing, light, and heat, the yearly purchases of the average automobile worker earning $7 a day—the minimum wage recently established at the Ford works. This budget will then be "priced" in 17 European cities of thirteen different countries to show the amount of money necessary, in the currency of each nation, to maintain the standard of living possible with the $7 wage in Detroit.

Fund Backs Inquiry.

The trustees of the Twentieth Century Fund, including Newton D. Baker, Henry S. Dennison of the Dennison Manufacturing Company and Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard Law School, made an appropriation last June sufficient to underwrite the investigation in the belief that its results would give impetus to an increase in the purchasing power of European nations, which in turn would raise the general level of prosperity throughout the world.

According to the schedule laid out by the International Labor Office, the Detroit commodity budget will be priced in the following European cities:

Antwerp	Cork
Copenhagen	Rotterdam
Helsingfors	Genoa
Paris	Trieste
Marseilles	Warsaw
Berlin	Barcelona
Frankfurt	Stockholm
London	Constantinople
Manchester

When the Detroit budget is compiled investigators will determine, through studies in each of these cities, how much it would cost to buy the commodities listed. The total cost in each case will represent the yearly wage equal, in terms of purchasing power, to the $7 a day Ford minimum.

Suggestions for the study came after a request by Sir Percival Perry, chairman of the Ford Motor Company of Great Britain and head of the Ford interests in Europe, to the International Labor Office for data which the Ford company might use to bring the purchasing power of wages in the company's European plants in line with that of its employes' wages in the United States. When it was announced that the Labor Office did not have sufficient information and that its budget did not allow for the investigation, Mr. Filene announced on behalf of the Twentieth Century Fund that the necessary financial support would be guaranteed by the fund.

See Benefit to the World.

The fund offered to aid this study, it was announced, because its trustees believed such an investigation would transcend the interests of the Ford Motor Company. Any increase in the purchasing power of the mass of the people of any nation, they held, would benefit not only that nation but the world, while the facts about relative living costs in various nations would be of great public interest and of value to business concerns with plants and connections abroad.

The program of the Labor Office provides for cooperation of economists and statisticians in each country to insure the accuracy of the results. Following this policy Mr. Magnusson and Evans Clark, director of the Twentieth Century Fund, have arranged for the cooperation of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics and the National Bureau of Economic Research in computing the basic commodity budget in Detroit. The Bureau of Labor Statistics undertook at its own expense to compute the Detroit budget.

While the choice of the cities to be covered was based upon the present or intended location of Ford plants, the cities are considered typical industrial centres of each of the leading European countries.

The Twentieth Century Fund was established by Mr. Filene, who is president of William Filene's Sons Company of Boston. Mr. Clark is director and Robert Moore treasurer. Besides Mr. Filene, its trustees include:

NEWTON D. BAKER, Cleveland.
BRUCE BLIVEN, New York.
HENRY S. DENNISON, Framingham, Mass.
WILLIAM H. DUNBAR, Boston, Mass.
JOHN H. FAHEY, Boston, Mass.
MAX LOWENTHAL, Brooklyn.
JAMES C. McDONALD, New York.
ROSCOE POUND, Cambridge, Mass.
OWEN D. YOUNG, New York.

The fund has been active in support of organizations and projects to increase scientific management in industry and to diffuse prosperity more widely.

BY THE MAKERS OF THE

SOHMER PIANO

our Faith
our Principles
our Purposes

HARRY J. SOHMER
FRANK J. SOHMER
PAUL SOHMER

Family tradition and love of craftsmanship mark the Sohmer Piano of today, when so many distinguished piano names are but shadows of the past. It is a Sohmer product, owned, controlled and made under the personal direction of members of the Sohmer family who have devoted more than half a century of experience to the making of fine pianos under the Sohmer name only.

our Faith

We have an unbounded faith in the artistic and cultural future of America. In this the Piano must play a fundamental part. The Piano is the basic musical instrument. Without it all other forms of musical expression and instrumentation fail completely. Despite the failure of large corporate management, which has left but a shadow of many time honored names, we believe the preservation of name integrity and the maintenance of the quality that created that name prestige will bring the reward of service well performed.

our Principles

To build the finest piano that human ingenuity, skill, knowledge, craftsmanship and family tradition can possibly produce. To utilize the world's markets to procure the best materials regardless of cost. To maintain that quality unswervingly and never to sacrifice one iota to gain an added profit, no matter how great. To preserve the integrity and individuality of the Sohmer institution free from outside affiliation or influences. To be governed always and under all circumstances by sound principles and never by expediency.

our Purposes

To be forward-looking and to serve the music loving public with the most advanced scientific ideas that may in any way add to the glory of the piano as the supreme musical instrument. To be loyal to our Faith and our Principles at all hazards. To merit the support of the Public by the quality of our product, the fairness of our dealings, the reasonableness of our prices and the effectiveness of our service.

ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR MEDICAL UNITS

New York Hospital-Cornell Body Gives Details of Buildings to House 1,000 Employes.

LARGE SERVICE FACILITIES

East River Structure for 500 Nurses, Each With Private Room—Garage for 250 Cars to Avoid Congestion.

The New York Hospital-Cornell Medical College Association made public yesterday details of two projected buildings to house 1,000 nurses and employes, as well as service and power facilities, plans for which are to be filed tomorrow with the Municipal Bureau of Buildings.

The new development will occupy most of the block between Seventieth and Seventy-first Streets, York Avenue and Exterior Street. Tunnels under Seventieth Street will connect it with the two-block plot to the south, where excavation is already under way for the main buildings of the New York Hospital, the Cornell Medical College and their three special institutes for maternity, pediatrics and psychiatry.

The new plans "call for the most extensive housing and service facilities ever designed for a unified private project for care of the sick, research and medical education," according to the association's statement. When complete they will form the northernmost units of "six solid blocks of purely medical development along the East River," being adjacent to the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research on the south.

The hospital nurses will be housed on York Avenue between Seventieth and Seventy-first Streets, with accommodations for more than 500 nurses. Each nurse will have a private room with a window facing the outside of the building. A swimming pool, gymnasium, central living room and a social hall will be included. Five top floors of a central tower will be devoted to apartments for senior members of the permanent nursing staff. Two five-story wings will include kitchens, a dining room, administrative offices, an assembly hall, a library, laboratories and other educational features. The New York Hospital Graduate Nurses Club will have quarters near by, according to the statement.

A second tower "will be superimposed upon a broad base of a compound four-story structure made up of the power plant, the laundry and the garage which will serve the medical centre," it said. The power plant will provide heat, light, power and refrigeration for a community of 3,000 persons. The laundry will have a capacity of 4,420,000 pounds of linen a year. A feature of the structure will be a garage occupying five floors and accommodating 250 automobiles. A courtyard will be roofed over to shield patients from the noise of supply trucks. The roof will be used as a garden.

The architects are Coolidge, Shepley, Bulfinch & Abbott of Boston. Excavation is to begin at once under the supervision of Marc Eidlitz & Son, Inc., builders. The new buildings should be ready for occupancy in 1932, the statement said.

"Although the New York Hospital and the Cornell Medical College will preserve their separate identities," it added, "the centre is to be operated as a united institution under the joint administrative board of the association." The members of this board are Edward W. Sheldon, chairman; William Woodward, Frank L. Polk, Dr. Livingston Farrand, J. Du Pratt White, Dr. Walter L. Niles and J. P. Morgan.

FEDERAL CHIEF NAMED FOR FORESTRY SURVEY

C. M. Granger Will Begin Nation-Wide Project, Authorized by Congress, in the Northwest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The promotion of Forester C. M. Granger of the Pacific Northwest District to be head forest economist in charge of the nation-wide forest survey now being started by the Federal Forest Service was announced today by the Department of Agriculture.

The survey, authorized by the McSweeney-McNary act of 1928, will be a comprehensive appraisal of existing forest supplies and conditions, growth and requirements, and present and future trends, all of which, when properly coordinated, is expected to constitute an economically sound basis for determining Federal, State and industrial forest policies and programs. Congress authorized a Federal contribution of $3,000,000 to the project.

Success in the project depends upon the cooperation of Federal and State authorities with industrial and other private agencies, according to the Forest Service. Phases of the survey such as the forest resource inventory and the study of growth, will be handled by the regional forest experiment station under the general direction of Mr. Granger.

Because of its outstanding forest problems, the Pacific Northwest was selected as the region for the beginning of intensive work. The study will be extended as rapidly as possible to cover the entire country.

Another step already taken is a canvass, in cooperation with the Census Bureau, of the wood requirements of the wood-using industries.

"Those who finance building operations know that Copper, Brass and Bronze are important factors in minimizing depreciation"...

ARTHUR LEHMAN

ARTHUR LEHMAN
Partner in the Firm of Lehman Brothers, Investment Bankers, New York.

A HOME that is protected against depreciation is a prime investment for its owner. One that depreciates rapidly is more like a losing speculation. Bankers appreciate this vital truth. That is why such men as Arthur Lehman advise you to build for permanency, with Copper, Brass and Bronze.

Brass or Copper pipe, Copper flashings, gutters and downspouts and solid Brass or Bronze hardware and lighting fixtures do not depreciate in value or service. These metals cannot rust. They serve without repair or replacement for generations. When you build or buy, be sure to specify them.

Their presence adds appreciably to the value and permanence of any structure, whether it be skyscraper or modest home.

The Building Service Department of the COPPER & BRASS RESEARCH ASSOCIATION, 25 Broadway, New York, will be glad to advise you without charge about the uses and proper application of these metals.

Could you use a little more health?

It frequently happens that the level of health is raised by a change of one's intestinal flora. This is the specific function of Walker-Gordon Acidophilus Milk: to replace putrefactive intestinal flora with the benign Acidophilus

YOU, reader, are presumed to be in no need of a physician's care. But the faults of modern diet take their toll; the demands of modern life are heavy. You could use a margin of extra health!

A great factor of health is the so-called intestinal flora—the microscopic plant organisms that flourish in your intestinal tract, and help or hinder digestion.

You had no intestinal flora at all when you were born. Soon, however, appeared the Acidophilus, a friendly organism favorable to digestion. It throve on the lactose in the milk you drank—the natural diet of infancy, nature's most nearly perfect food.

So, when you began to cut down on milk, you began to starve the Acidophilus. At the same time you ate all sorts of other foods that encouraged the growth of putrefactive bacteria, the "germs of decay". This process went on till the Acidophilus were mostly gone, and putrefactive bacteria flourishing.

Replace them with the intestinal flora of sound digestion—the Acidophilus! Normally, you can do this without difficulty.

Drink Walker-Gordon Acidophilus Milk. This is simply a preparation of fresh Walker-Gordon certified milk, scientifically cultured with a hardy strain of Acidophilus bacilli.

Drink it regularly. Start with a quart a day for the first month, to establish a "mass-inoculation". After this is established, a smaller ration will maintain it.

Try drinking Acidophilus—not because you are sick, but to gain an extra margin of health. Borden's milkman will bring you your Acidophilus milk fresh every morning. Phone Walker 7300 (main office) or your local Borden's Branch.

Photomicrograph of intestinal Acidophilus bacilli. Every cubic centimeter (about 15 drops) of Walker-Gordon Acidophilus Milk contains a minimum of 250,000,000 of these health-giving organisms.

MACY ASKS INQUIRY ON CRIME IN STATE

Urges That Legislative Group Led by Whitman Sift Administration of Law.

STRESSES ROTHSTEIN CASE

Sees "Deplorable" Conditions in Prisons—Says Suffolk Members Back Proposal.

A legislative investigation of the administration of the criminal laws of the State, with former Governor Charles S. Whitman as counsel of the legislative committee making the inquiry, was urged yesterday by W. Kingsland Macy, chairman of the Suffolk County Republican Committee.

Mr. Macy, who a week ago demanded the resignation of William J. Maier as Republican State Chairman, indicated that Mr. Whitman, if invited, would undertake the task without pay. He added that the selection of a man who had been Governor for two terms, president of the American Bar Association and a successful District Attorney of New York County, would assure an honest and thorough inquiry.

Leaders to Back Plan.

An investigation of the magistrates' courts in New York City has already been suggested by State Senator Samuel H. Hofstadter, who declared his readiness to introduce a resolution for such an inquiry. The investigation suggested by Mr. Macy would be much broader. The Suffolk County members of the Legislature, whom Mr. Macy has consulted, will urge the party leaders to undertake the inquiry.

In announcing his purpose to seek an inquiry Mr. Macy said:

"After consulting with Suffolk County legislators I am able to announce that they are going to Albany to urge on their associates the introduction of resolutions for a legislative inquiry into the administration of the criminal laws of the State of New York, with particular reference to cases stubborn of solution, like the Rothstein affair with its Vitale connections.

"I believe that ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman can be prevailed upon to undertake this important task and, if invited, he will give his personal services without remuneration. The opportunity of getting Governor Whitman's services should be welcomed throughout the State. Rarely in a crisis of this kind is a man of his importance and ability available. Twice Governor of the State, a former president of the American Bar Association and one of the State's greatest prosecuting officers, he would assure an honest and thorough probe.

Sees Time Ripe for Inquiry.

"The question of investigations has been before the public for the past year or more, due to the prevalence of crime with which the officials under present statutes, have apparently been unable to cope. While Police Commissioner Whalen and District Attorney Crain and other officials are now making their best efforts to deal with the situation, there seems to be a growing conviction in the public mind that something is fundamentally wrong. If our officials and courts are unable to apprehend and convict the perpetrators of crime, there is but one body to whom recourse may be had, and that is the sovereign body of the State represented as it is through the Legislature whose members are elected from every section of the State.

"The time for a legislative inquiry is ripe, as evidenced by the consideration recently given by the Legislature to the deplorable conditions revealed in the prisons of the State. Such an investigation would be into the effect rather than into the cause of present conditions, placing the cart before the horse. Were criminals apprehended and convicted with dispatch, the deterrent upon crime would be such as to diminish the number of criminals relegated to the State's prisons, thereby automatically relieving the overcrowding and congestion.

For Committee of Seven.

"A legislative inquiry, as outlined above, combines all the purposes sought by other investigations and would, I am certain, if prosecuted by Governor Whitman and a legislative committee backing him to the limit, reveal the sources of the present difficulties and provide remedies for the enactment into law by the Legislature to cure whatever defects may be found to exist. If the leaders of the Legislature, on account of their manifold duties, are unable to devote the time necessary to serve upon such a committee, the heads of the two Judiciary Committees, Senator George R. Fearon and Assemblyman Edmund B. Jenks, and others who are fully equal to such an occasion are available. A committee of seven such members, representative of the minority as well as the majority in both branches of the Legislature, should meet requirements.

"With such a committee and such a counsel a necessary and worth-while investigation could be undertaken which I am sure would commend itself to the public and render valuable service to the State by making a comprehensive report back to the Legislature as to the administration and adaptability of the present criminal laws of the State. I respectfully submit the above as a constructive suggestion for the consideration of the party leaders, the members of

The New York Young Republican Club through J. Edward Lumbard Jr., its president, sent a telegram yesterday to Governor Roosevelt asking him to support a legislative investigation of the magistrates' courts.

NEW YORK'S MILITARY EXCEEDS 33 COUNTRIES

Adjutant General Reports Active Strength Totals 24,818—Cost for 1929 Was $7,577,225.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 12.—New York's active military forces on Dec. 31 totaled 24,818, a strength exceeding that of the standing armies of 33 countries of the world, and the potential military man power of the State exceeds that of forty-six nations, governments and free States, it was pointed out in the annual report of Franklin W. Ward, Adjutant General, submitted to Governor Roosevelt today.

Included in the 24,818 total of active forces were the New York National Guard, naval militia, uniformed reserves' forces and independent organizations.

"With the above active strength of organized, equipped and strained officers and men," General Ward wrote in his report, "it is interesting to make a comparison of this force with that of the standing armies of the sixty-two established nations, governments and free States of the world.

"From War Department data we find that the strength of this State's active forces exceeds that of the standing armies of thirty-three of the recognized governments."

MRS. PERRY OSBORN TO SUE

Reno Attorney Says He Will File Action Against Broker Here.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Ann Steele Osborn will file suit for divorce here tomorrow against Perry Osborn, New York broker, son of Professor Henry Fairfield Osborn of the American Museum of National History, it was said tonight by Mrs. Osborn's attorney, Cole L. Harwood, who expected to try the case tomorrow. The papers will be sealed, he added.

It is reported here that Mrs. Osborn plans to marry Edmund W. Nash, New York broker, who came to Reno last Summer by plane and train in an effort to effect reconciliation with his wife, who was making her home on the Nevada shore of Lake Tahoe. He failed in his errand and Mrs. Nash obtained her decree. There has been no confirmation of the report Mrs. Osborn intends to marry Mr. Nash. She refused to discuss the report.

NEW CRIME BUREAU WILL START TODAY

past have expended all their energies toward beating back "spasmodic outcroppings of disorder," instead of attacking crime at its roots.

"There is as much need for crime prevention in our communities as for fire prevention or disease prevention," the report continues.

"The modern police head must attack not only the social swamps and morasses whose existence is more or less patent, but he must seek out and combat sources of criminal infection and contagion wherever they exist in city life. For example, a city district may have an undue amount of juvenile delinquency. The causes therefor may be manifold and may arise from a variety of evil influences in that neighborhood. However, the question on which the conscientious Police Commissioner will want to be informed is the nature and extent in this particular locality of the specific conditions existing which favor the commission of crime. These unfavorable conditions may manifest themselves in disorderly gangs, unregulated dance halls, vicious places of amusement, lack of proper recreation and rendezvous for idlers and quasi-criminals, masquerading as poolrooms and cafés. To these may be traced unnecessary temptations to theft and scores of other crime motives. As important as the arrests of offenders will be the determination, if possible, of the conditions which hatched the present crimes, and the elimination or correction of those which, if not treated, will send out a swarm of new offenders."

Scope of New Bureau.

The scope of the crime prevention bureau is outlined as follows:

"It should be the duty of each crime-prevention officer to become acquainted with the social problems and the social agencies of the precinct to which he is detailed. He should know how to secure contact with needed agencies through the welfare council and other means for the dissemination of information. He should have an intimate knowledge of neighborhood conditions, the representatives of public and private agencies, and all of the forces for good or for evil in the precinct. Most of all, he should know the people of the district, and to those who are in need of his services he should be guide, philosopher and friend.

"Crime prevention officers should take a leading part in the community program of preventive and protective work. They should be alert to discover problem boys and girls, and individuals and conditions contributing to delinquency. They should work in close cooperation with the church, schools and parents, and they should lend their official support to the work of the social agencies in their precinct and be affiliated with their activities.

"Supervising poolrooms, public dance halls and beach resorts, adjusting family difficulties and bringing in contact the boys and girls and the neighborhood recreation resources, giving talks to pupils in the schools, and to groups of teachers and to parents, are among the activities to which crime prevention officers should give their attention. They should have knowledge of the laws affecting children and minors, particularly the wayward minors' act, and they should cooperate actively with attendance officers, probation officers, parole officers and other city officials working in their precinct. Every effort should be made to handle problems by social methods, and recourse to court action should be had only as a last resort.

"Essentially, they should bring to the improvement of conditions in the neighborhood and to the service of the people living therein the skill and constructive friendship of a trained worker, made more potent and effective by the authority of the law."

It is essential that those assigned to the crime-prevention bureau avoid duplicating or interfering with the work that is now being done by child welfare organizations, the Children's Court and its probation staff and the social agencies of the city concerned with juvenile delinquency, the report warns. Instead, it is said, the main objectives should be to "supplement" the work of these agencies and to "lend official support" to their efforts.

FREEPORT (PA.) DEATH LAID TO PARROT FEVER

Woman Victim's Daughter Ill—Germ Found in Baltimore as Maryland Cases Increase.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 12.—Parrot fever is believed to have caused the death yesterday of Mrs. William Shields, 51, a widow, at her home in Freeport, twenty-eight miles north of here. A South American parrot, received as a Christmas gift, is suspected of carrying the disease into the household. A 14-year-old daughter, Elaine, is seriously ill.

When Mrs. Shields became ill two days ago it was thought she had pneumonia. Dr. C. A. Rogers of Freeport, who treated her, said she had "symptoms of parrot fever."

Dr. W. G. MacLachlan of this city went to Freeport today to make a blood test, and on his return said that he felt almost certain Mrs. Shields died from the parrot fever. Blood cultures of the sick girl will be tested in an effort to confirm the diagnosis.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 12 (AP).—Isolation of what are believed to be psittacosis bacilli by Herbert C. Ward, bacteriologist of the State Department of Health, was announced today as three more cases believed to be that of the parrot fever were reported to the health officials. Forty-eight hours of additional study will be necessary for positive identification of the germ.

An organism, similar to that causing typhoid and para-typhoid, was found by Dr. Ward in cultures taken from the blood of three persons ill at Annapolis from the rare disease.

Report of the illness of three persons, Mrs. William J. Witelock and her children, William Jr., 12, and Mary Jane, 4, of Aberdeen, was made to the Health Department during the day. They became ill following the illness of a parrot in the house, and their malady was said to resemble the early stages of the parrot fever, bringing the number of suspected cases of the disease in Maryland to twelve. The parrot has been brought here for study.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Dr. A. K. Boom of this city is sending to the State Department of Public Health particulars on what he believes to have been four cases of "parrot fever" here.

A parrot in a local family, whose name was not given out, recently died. Soon after the bird's death four members of the family were taken seriously ill and Dr. Boom treated them for typhoid fever and pneumonia, the symptoms of which were apparent in each case. All four persons recovered.

Dies on a Subway Platform.

Mrs. Adelaide Van Brunt of 2,420 Bronx Park East, the Bronx, collapsed and died, apparently of heart disease, on the Allerton Avenue subway platform of the Interborough Company's White Plains Division yesterday morning.

Every Pittsburgh Record Broken!

Steadily throughout the year the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette has set new marks for both circulation and advertising gains in the Pittsburgh daily newspaper field.

Circulation figures, as reported in the last publisher's statement to the Audit Bureau of Circulations, show a daily average of

Net Paid Circulation

This is an increase of 10,000 over the Post-Gazette's own total six months ago, and is more than 21,000 higher than its total eighteen months ago. It is almost 60,000 more than the total circulation of any other Pittsburgh Daily Newspaper.

The Post-Gazette leads other Pittsburgh daily newspapers not only in total, but also in city and suburban circulation.

SHARP FIGHT LOOMS ON PRISON INQUIRY

Republican Move, Aimed at Roosevelt, Will Bring a Counter-Attack.

BUDGET GOES IN THIS WEEK

Legislature Will Also Receive Baumes Bills for Reform in Penal Psychiatrics.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—Another verbal battle between Republicans and Democrats over responsibility for prison outbreaks is certain to come tomorrow night when the Assembly adopts the resolution of Senator Knight, leader of the upper House, providing for a sweeping investigation by the legislative finance committees of conditions in the prisons and delays in prison construction.

The Knight resolution was put through the Senate last Monday night. Governor Roosevelt described it as "pure, unadulterated politics." An appropriation of $20,000 is provided for conducting the inquiry.

Republican leaders have admitted the resolution is the result of Governor Roosevelt's intimation in both his annual messages and his special prison message that present conditions in the prisons were due to the failure of previous Legislatures to make adequate appropriations for prisons. Not only have the majority party leaders denied this, but they point to the fact that an extra $1,000,000 was allowed in the budget for prisons last year.

Assemblyman Steingut of Kings, spokesman for the Democrats in the Assembly during the illness of Assemblyman Hamill, the minority leader, declared on the floor of the House that "when the proper time arrives we will prove the Republican party is responsible for present conditions in the prisons." He and other Democratic Assemblymen are planning to make a bitter attack on the Republicans when the Knight resolution is called up for action tomorrow night.

Will Call Auburn Guards.

The investigation probably will get under way within the next two or three weeks. Colonel Greene, Commissioner of Public Works; Dr. Kieb, Commissioner of Correction, and William E. Haugaard, State Architect, are expected to be among the first witnesses. Guards from Auburn prison, where the last riot occurred, will also be summoned to tell what they know about prison conditions.

Part of Governor Roosevelt's special prison program has been approved by the Legislature, including an appropriation of $350,000 to establish five convict camps to relieve overcrowding, eighty-one additional prison guards, higher pay for guards and better food and clothing for convicts.

Approval of the Governor's recommendation for the creation of a prison guard corps, modeled along the lines of the State police, with the elimination of the guards from the civil service, is also scheduled for approval soon. As soon as this proposal is approved the Governor plans to draft Captain Albert Moore of the State Police Training School at Troy to organize a training school for prison guards. All guards now in the prisons will have to go through this school, and if they fail to qualify they will promptly be replaced.

To Get Governor's Budget.

Committees in both Senate and Assembly are expected to get down to work this week. On Wednesday the Governor will transmit the executive budget to the lawmakers. The cost of Government for the next fiscal year will, it is expected, total about $311,000,000, an increase of approximately $46,000,000 over the present fiscal year.

Two bills relative to psychiatry will be introduced tonight by the Baumes Crime Commission. One sets up an examination and establishes qualifications necessary for the practice of psychiatry. The other provides a method for determining the sanity of a person under indictment.

"There is coming to be a general demand for the use of psychiatry," said a statement issued by the Crime Commission, "not only in testing the sanity or insanity of a defendant charged with crime, but in connection with the administration of probation in the courts and classification or segregation of prisoners, and their release from prison on commutations or paroles as well as in the investigation and supervision of juvenile delinquents in our children's courts and truants in our schools.

"It is fundamental to any reform in the procedure to determine the sanity of a defendant charged with crime, as it is a prerequisite to the use of psychiatry in the investigation and disposition of those convicted of crime as well as of those juveniles headed toward careers of crime, that the competency of those to be entrusted with the performance of such highly scientific functions, so vital to the welfare of the people of the State, should be determined and certified by the State.

"The license bill provides for such examination and certification of psychiatrists by a State board composed of the State Commissioner of Education, Commissioner of Health and Commissioner of Mental Hygiene.

"The procedure bill sets up a method of determining the sanity of indicted defendants which, while it preserves the constitutional rights of a defendant to select his own witnesses and have their testimony considered by a jury if he so desires, nevertheless will, it is believed, be effective in remedying the present frequently disgraceful scenes in our criminal courts on the trial of capital cases in the matter of contradictory psychiatric and expert testimony.

"The commission believes this can be accomplished in the following manner:

"By eliminating financial inducements to evolve fanciful deductions through the payment of enormous fees.

"By organizing the witnesses into a scientific body or board to analyze the defendant's mental condition and determine it as a scientific problem in accordance with accepted scientific methods.

"By eliminating controversy over the physical and obvious data that form the basis of deductions and conclusions, through examination of the defendant by the expert witnesses jointly.

"By excluding opportunity for attorneys and experts to connive and formulate a 'convenant theory' of the case.

"By obviating the necessity of proving on trial the qualifications of each expert.

"By having the court represented by a disinterested, impartial expert.

"By keeping the procedure under the surveillance of the court."

Hearings on these bills, the commission said, were held in various parts of the State last Summer and they were approved by individuals and organizations familiar with the subject, including lawyers, penologists and psychiatrists, the mental hygiene committee of the State Charities Aid Association, the National Committee on Prisons and the State commissioners of public health and mental hygiene.

CAUTIONS FARMERS ON DAIRY OUTPUT

Federal Farm Board Endorses Warning of Dairy Committee Against Overproduction.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The Federal Farm Board today approved a resolution adopted by the dairy advisory committee warning against overproduction of dairy products and asking farmers to use their own butter and other dairy products in their homes, and also a resolution cautioning farmers to beware of promotional schemes for the construction of processing facilities.

The farmers were advised by the resolution to consider carefully production methods from "an economical and profitable standpoint," and the slaughter of all low-producing and unprofitable cows from the herd was recommended. It also was contended that the farmers were themselves partly responsible for the present condition of overproduction and should help improve the price of dairy products by using more of them in every way that they can be utilized as a food product.

The resolutions said experience had disclosed that producers of farm products often have been victimized by schemes to construct and equip packing plants, creameries and various kinds of factories for processing their products under conditions which did not reflect sound business judgment, and that there was danger that unscrupulous persons may seek to take advantage of the present cooperative marketing movement by introducing similar unsound schemes.

Because of this situation the farmers were cautioned to examine closely all plans of the kind and before entering upon any such schemes to consult the division of cooperative marketing of the Department of Agriculture, which has now been affiliated with the Farm Board.

The dairy advisory commodity committee was selected at the suggestion of the Farm Board by cooperative associations representative of the producers of dairy products.

BACKS STUDY TO CUT COST OF NEW HOMES

Carnegie Fund Head in Report Favors Grant for Wide Survey of Building Methods.

SAYS SCALE NOW IS ABSURD

More Engineering Schools Needed—Teachers' Pensions and Other Gifts Described.

Studies of housing construction costs and of engineering education below the professional level are recommended in the annual report of Frederick P. Keppel, president of the Carnegie Corporation, as two projects of paramount importance which might well be made the subject of foundation aid. The report was made public yesterday.

On the first subject Mr. Keppel asserts that modern efficiency, with its great savings, has not yet touched the field of home construction. As a consequence, he declares, the building of homes has been steadily increasing in cost while almost all other products of modern industry have been just as steadily declining. Contrasting home building with automobile manufacture as a typical example, he says:

"The only reason for this absurd situation is that one industry has profited by first-rate scientific and engineering thought, and the other has not. It certainly cannot be laid to the rising cost of material and labor, since this has affected both industries alike. Here again a foundation devoted to the study of housing problems and equipped to experiment in different types of design and construction would have the chance to make a contribution of inestimable significance toward the improvement of present conditions."

Cites English Trade Schools.

The engineering education problem which Mr. Keppell outlines is based on the contrast between conditions in England and in this country. In the former, he says, reliance is placed almost wholly on schools, almost non-existent in this country, which might be termed technical trade schools, for the "trained personnel required in production and operation." In the United States, fully half of the engineering college students will not remain permanently in that field, he declares, while on the other hand industry "could absorb annually thousands" of men with the type of training given by the English institutions.

In reviewing the grants of the past fiscal year, Mr. Keppel declares the allotting of nine annual instalments of $600,000 each for annuities for college professors, partly to make up the deficit resulting from the readjustment of the pensions of the Carnegie Foundation, was the most important action. In this connection, he notes that colleges employing more than one-third of the professors affected have already taken measures to make up the deficit still left after the corporation grant.

Mr. Keppel explained that the heavy future commitments of the corporation, aggregating well in excess of $20,000,000, made it impossible to allot more than the $600,000 annually provided. Even this amount, he states, will prolong for at least two years the "lean years" which the corporation has been going through recently, and during which reduction of charges against future income must be a primary consideration.

The report comments on the relative merits of perpetual foundations as against those of which the trustees are permitted to distribute principle as well as income. Citing the $34,000,000 Julius Rosenwald Fund and the $10,000,000 James Couzens Fund as recent philanthropies which have focused public attention on the issue, Mr. Keppel admits that there is room for both types, and suggests that for some foundations at least, it is just as well that the future is insured against complete loss through unfruitful undertakings.

In his general comment on foundation policy, Mr. Keppel also speaks of the need for publicity in all instances. Many "family foundations" and others do not now make it a practice to make public annual statements of income and a complete record of all grants made, he asserts.

"The fact that any organization is exempt from taxation," he concludes, "should be sufficient evidence that its operations are affected with a public interest, and public confidence in foundations in general may depend to a larger degree than is at present realized upon public knowledge of their operations."

Annual Income $6,228,296.

According to the report, the principal of the corporation amounts to $132,853,646.95. The anual income is placed at $6,228,296.50. These figures are based on the situation following the reinvestment of $90,000,000 in United States Steel Corporation 5 per cent bonds, which were taken up by the corporation at the call price of 115. The net return under the new investments is 4.69 per cent, representing an increase of .34 per cent after the increased principal resulting from the difference between the call price and the par of the steel bonds is taken into account.

The total grants for the year were $7,729,750, of which the professors' annuities fund represents more than two-thirds. The largest individual grants are three of $200,000 each—to the Pan American Union building program, the Vanderbilt University endowment and the California Institute of Technology endowment.

A total of $445,500 was allotted to library service projects, divided among approximately fifty institutions, and including dental school libraries, library school support, college and university libraries, and library projects in Rhodesia and South Africa. The sum of $141,000 was allotted to adult education projects in this country, including a group of studies of various phases of these, as well as grants to civic undertakings and projects of colleges which plan to work with their alumni.

The $557,700 devoted to research and publications includes $50,000 to the American Historical Association, with which a start will be made on a study of needed changes in the teaching of the social subjects, under which are classified history, civics, economics, sociology, and geography. A preliminary inquiry was made in 1927, and similar studies have already been undertaken in the fields of mathematics, classics, and modern languages.

COLUMBIA MOURNS DEAD OF PAST YEAR

IMMORTALITY DEFENDED

Professor Hayes Finds It in Influence of Work Accomplished, and Sees Personal Survival.

St. Paul's Chapel of Columbia University was filled with sorrowing friends and relatives of the Columbia men and women who died during the past year, at the annual commemoration service yesterday afternoon. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, and a large number of faculty members attended.

In his memorial address Carlton J. H. Hayes, Professor of History, said immortality was to be found in the lasting beneficent influence of the work accomplished, which would continue to produce fruitful results long after the brief span of individual physical life was over.

In this sense, he declared, the university is eternal, as it embraces the ideals and aspirations of all those who planned, chartered, supported and nourished it throughout the past 175 years and who within its shadow have taught or learned or speculated on sciences and arts.

"Nothing can be more naïve than the notion that ultimate ideals and hopes are the baseless dreams of subjective fancy," Professor Hayes said, "as if man were self-created and as if he developed his infinite hopes in his finite mind. Extinction has always seemed to the vast majority of human beings less probable than survival after death. All our individual instincts, all the longings of our race for untold centuries, all the demands of social psychology and organization tend toward faith in personal immortality."

Dr. Butler read the list of names of those who died in 1929.

COLUMBIA CHANGES B. A. REQUIREMENTS

Reduces Study in Any One Modern Language to Get That Degree—Stresses French and German.

Changes in the modern language requirements for the bachelor degree at Columbia College, tending to reduce the required study in any one modern language, were announced yesterday by Dean Herbert E. Hawkes. The new requirement will be either three years of college French or German; two years of the equivalent of either college French or German combined with one year of college Greek or Latin, or two years of either college French or German combined with two years of college study of any other language.

Dean Hawkes explained that the new requirements should prove sufficient to enable the student to pursue his own interests in that language thereafter. The idea behind the change is that self-education only is of real value and the study of modern languages should make the process more efficient.

Under the new regulations, French and German will be on a parity, and Italian and Spanish will likewise be on a parity, below that of the two former languages. Hitherto Spanish has been on a parity with French. Dean Hawkes explained that this readjustment was considered justified in the light of the greater cultural contribution of France and Germany compared to that of any other nations. Spanish, it was explained, will remain on a parity with French in the business school.

According to Dean Hawkes, one effect of the change will be to concentrate greater attention on French and German in the preparatory schools. He expressed the opinion that adjustments would be made in many schools so that students would be enabled to anticipate all or part of the Columbia modern language requirements for the bachelor degree.

CITY IN 1930 TO GET 2,000 NEW FIRE BOXES

Dorman, in Review, Hails Growth of Alarm System and Tells Plans for Current Year.

A statement entitled "Accomplishments during the year 1929 and a forecast for the year 1930 in the New York Fire Department" was issued yesterday by Fire Commissioner John J. Dorman. It contains a detailed account of new equipment asked and installed by the department, most of which has already been mentioned in Commissioner Dorman's previously published report to Mayor Walker at the close of the past year.

"In the Fire Alarm Telegraph Bureau during the year 1929," the statement reads, "contracts were awarded for extending the fire alarm telegraph system in the outlying sections of the city to the extent of $718,000.

strengthening and enriching the whole range of his educational opportunities—intellectual, physical and social.

"The changing attitude of our students toward education, the increasing distractions of modern life, both within and without the college, and the gradual disintegration of the class spirit, have all created serious problems.

"We believe that these are best to be met by methods like those now proposed, which promise to restore esprit de corps to the social side of college life, at the same time bringing the undergraduates in small groups into intimate contact with stimulating personalities among the faculty; in other words, to revive, amid the intellectual advantages of the great modern university, the social advantages of the small Yale College of earlier generations."

Appreciation for the Harkness Gifts.

Mr. Harkness's mother, Mrs. Stephen V. Harkness, the announcement concluded, gave to Yale the Memorial Quadrangle, including the Harkness Tower, in memory of his brother, Charles William Harkness of the class of 1883. Mrs. Edward S. Harkness has shown her interest in the university by several special gifts, notably the library's great treasure, the Gutenberg Bible. Among Mr. Harkness's own generous benefactions to Yale are the university theatre, the gift which endowed the department of drama, and large contributions to the Yale endowment fund.

The announcement added the following appreciation of the interest in the university shown by Mr. Harkness and his mother:

"The life of Edward S. Harkness has been devoted to the wise distribution of a great fortune. Mr. Harkness and his mother were the chief benefactors of the medical centre in New York City, a project in which he has been interested for nearly twenty years.

"Recently he provided for the erection and administration of a hotel at the University of St. Andrews, similar to the proposed Yale quadrangle, and he made the great gift to Harvard for its house plan.

"Mr. Harkness is the president of the commonwealth fund originally established by his mother in 1918, which has made large contributions to the promotion of mental hygiene, child health and rural hospitals and has established fellowships by which some thirty British students are brought to this country each year for study in many American universities. He is one of the trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in the Egyptian collection of which he has taken an especial interest."

Activity in real estate purchases on Elm Street, between York, Park and to Howe Streets, on Broadway from York to Whalley Avenue and Goffe Street, and on York Square have led to reports today that the proposed new Harkness dormitories, the new college inn, the new college church, the new graduate school building, or the new gymnasium might be placed on them.

Millions in Harkness Benefactions.

Mr. Harkness, New York financier and philanthropist, inherited $93,000,000 from his mother, the late Mrs. Stephen V. Harkness, who died in 1926. Like his mother, who was the widow of one of the original partners of John D. Rockefeller, he has given away millions to universities, colleges, schools, hospitals and charitable and philanthropic institutions.

With his mother, Mr. Harkness presented a site valued at $4,000,000 to the Columbia University-Presbyterian Medical Centre and made donations totaling $2,000,000 additional to the project. A year ago he pledged $12,000,000 to Harvard University for construction of the various units of the Harvard housing plan. Last year he also contributed $1,000,000 to the Near East College Association.

In 1927 he presented $500,0000 to St. Andrews University in Scotland and in the same year, Mr. Harkness, who is noted for his interest in and munificence to scientific, archaeological and historical projects, gave $300,000 to the New York Botanical Garden.

In 1923 he aided the Public Library Endowment Fund and two years later he presented $1,250,000 to the Union Theological Seminary. He was one of a group of New Yorkers interested in the Bayonne model tenement housing project in 1926, and two years ago he offered to help finance another effort to rid New York of its slums.

Range of Philanthropic Interest.

He contributed large amounts to flood relief work in the Mississippi flood area and to the relief of the sufferers in the regions devastated by the Florida hurricane. Other institutions or organizations to which he has contributed large sums include Columbia University, Wellesley, Vassar, Holyoke and Swarthmore Colleges, the New York City Museum, the Neurological Institute of New York, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, the Southern Pacific Railroad, in which he is financially interested, for hospitals for the road's employes, a memorial theatre to Shakespeare at Stratford-on-Avon, the Taft and Hill Schools.

In addition to his gift of $1,000,000 to Yale in 1924, which established the dramatic department there, and other gifts at various periods, Mr. Harkness presented to the university in 1926 the rare tapestries of Elihu Yale.

Mr. Harkness is particularly interested in Egyptian archaeology and has presented to the Metropolitan Museum various relics of ancient Egyptian civilizations. He also presented to the Library of Congress historical manuscripts dealing with the Spanish conquest of Mexico and Peru.

Mr. Harkness's mother inherited from her husband $50,000,000, which accumulated in a few years to an estate of $107,052,494, the largest ever taxed in New York State. Mrs. Harkness, by gifts during her life and by bequests, gave away $36,000,000. The largest benefactor was the Commonwealth Fund, organized in 1918 for general charitable purposes, of which her son is a director.

YALE DEBATERS PLAN SOUTH AMERICAN TOUR

Spanish Speaking Team to Meet Universities There on 12-Week Trip Starting in June.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 12.—Yale will send a debating team to South America in June to meet South American universities. The team will spend about twelve weeks in South America, and will return to the United States in time to open the college year late in September.

The trip will be made with the aid of funds allotted by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. The Yale debaters will be chosen from the membership of the Centro Espanol de Yale, which is composed of students interested in speaking Spanish so they may understand the culture of the "other Americans," and foster friendly international relations.

The Carnegie Endowment has made the allotment with the understanding that the Yale students will explain the work of the International Relations Clubs and, where it is possible, will form such clubs in the South American universities which they visit.

The project is a result of an incident which occurred in April, 1928, when a debating team of students from the University of Porto Rico visited Yale to debate in English. They met some of the students of the Centro Espanol de Yale and expressed a desire to debate in Spanish, if it were possible to find a group of students born in the United States and educated in Spanish solely in the United States schools or colleges. The challenge was at once accepted and the debate took place five days later at Yale.

FLOOD PERIL GROWS IN WEST AND EAST

Towns in Mississippi Valley Are Inundated—Vermont Thaw Threatens Danger.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 12 (AP).—Hopes of the Lower Mississippi Valley that the January rise of its rivers would be only freshets had been washed out tonight by rains which have fallen almost continuously since Monday. Already enough water is in sight on the Mississippi and its tributaries to class the high water as a flood of no mean proportions.

Reports late tonight showed towns in Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky affected by high water and thousands of acres inundated.

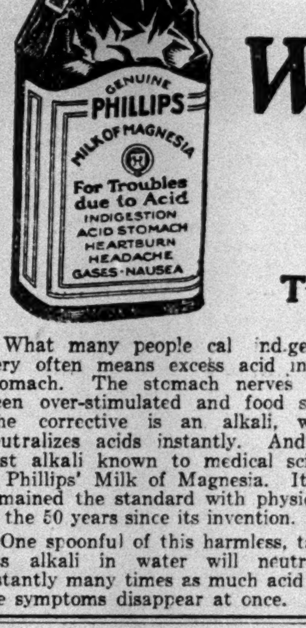
Near Truman, Ark., the villages of Lunsford and Bay had streets flooded and business paralyzed from the St. Francis River, which was threatening the town of Lake City.

Little Rock reported that rains which mean floods continue to fall. A few families on the outskirts of overflowing creeks to leave home.

There was apprehension at Henderson, Ky., as the Ohio passed the flood stage and flooded lands near the mouth of the Green.

SWANTON, Vt., Jan. 12.—(AP)—The danger of a destructive flood rose with the temperature here today as the Missisquoi River, backed up by an ice jam seven miles long and already flooding streets and buildings beside its banks, threatened to tear loose upon this town of 1,500 inhabitants.

The flood waters had reached a level higher than in 1927 when the state was swept by floods, but yesterday the temperature dropped to below zero and last night the water level receded somewhat. Today, however, unseasonably warm weather accompanied the southeast storm and residents who had placed their hope in the dropping mercury are now watching its rise with apprehension.



When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Garden Crowd of 14,000 Sees American Six End Boston's 14-Game String, 3-2

AMERICANS WIN, 3-2, END BRUINS' STREAK

New Yorkers Stop Champions After 14 Victories Before 14,000 at the Garden.

MAKE ALL TALLIES IN 2D

Winners Maintain Lead by Brilliant Brand of Defensive Play in Last 20 Minutes.

BRUINS AHEAD IN FIRST

Miss Scoring Chance in Third When Patterson and McVeigh Are in Penalty Box.

By WILLIAM E. BRANDT.

The fourteen-game winning streak of the Boston Bruins ended at Madison Square Garden last night, where Lionel Conacher's Americans amazed 14,000 fans by beating the champions, 3 goals to 2. The Americans did all their scoring in the second period, maintaining their narrow lead by a brilliant display of defensive hockey in the final twenty minutes.

The Bruins' string reached fourteen straight Thursday night in Pittsburgh. They set a new record for the National League in its ten-team form when they won their twelfth straight. The previous record was eleven straight, held by the Montreal Canadiens.

Penalties in last night's streak-breaking game were comparatively few, considering the speed and fierceness of the hockey, but they were important. The Bruins held a 1-0 lead going into the middle period. The Americans tied the score when the Bruins had one man in the penalty box and scored their second goal when Eddie Shore, keystone of the Boston defense, joined Clapper in the penalty box.

Americans' Penalties Overlap.

But the winning goal was put into the meshes by the star-spangled squadron while Boston had its full strength on the ice. In the third period two of the four penalties imposed on the Americans overlapped. Boston had its golden opportunity when both Patterson and McVeigh were closeted with the penalty timekeeper.

The game reached its apex of excitement at that stage, just before the middle of the last period, when the Bruins sought to make their 6-to-4 advantage equalize the figures on the scoreboard. Roy Worters, guarding the nets for the Americans for the first time at the Garden since his injury in the Rangers game on Dec. 17, was peppered by shots during this barrage by the champions, but blocked every shot that carried as far as his person.

The game was rough and marked by close approaches to scoring throughout the first period. The only tally was a goal by Micky McKay, in 8:08, during a scramble in front of the local goal in which the puck bounced about amid a mass of swirling players.

Boyd Scores on Holmes's Pass.

With Boston a man shy, a face-off to the side of the Boston goal yielded the first American counter in 4:59 of the second period, with the second line working for the locals. Holmes managed the face-off, passing to Boyd in front of the goal. Boyd scored.

Then Shore was sent away for two minutes for tripping Holmes and with two Bruins off the ice, the Americans succeeded in forging ahead, Sheppard scoring on McVeigh's pass in 6:58. The Bruins battled for six and a half minutes before Cooney Weiland followed up Clapper's drive at the local net, caught the rebound and pounded the puck past Worters.

Sheppard became the individual hero by scoring the winning goal in 15:37. The teams had full strength and the game had become a series of thrusts and counter-thrusts. On one of these return attacks by the Americans the Bruin forwards failed to check back fast enough. Himes and Sheppard swirled across the blue line. Himes had the puck, eluded Boston's left defense, then spun the disc in a forward pass that came to Sheppard as Sheppard swooped in on the net from the left.

Tiny Thompson, the Boston goalie, had no chance to parry Sheppard's short-range shot and the goal that broke Boston's streak in 15:37 received the acclaim of 14,000 metropolitan fans. The noise lasted throughout the rest of the middle period and the whole of the third, reaching its apex when the Bruins sought to brea kthrough the four-man American team after Patterson and McVeigh were sent to the penalty box.

Bruins Play Themselves Out.

The Bruin forwards, especially Barry, Gainor and Weiland, played themselves out in dash after dash against the American bulwarks. Shore took the puck up into the mêlée behind the local blue line, only to be spilled again and again. Brydge, Conacher, Simpson, Reiss and the speedy back-checking of the forwards starred in maintaining the narrow margin of victory until the bell rang with Shore shooting at the net from a wide angle and missing.

The saves stood 12 to 9, with Thompson blocking off the most shots in the first period, but in the last two Worters held the majority, 11 to 8, in the middle session and 12 to 5 in the final.

FONSECA TOPS LIST IN LEAGUE BATTING

His Average of .369 Is Best of American Circuit, Official Figures for Season Reveal.

AL SIMMONS IS SECOND

Manush Is Third, While Goslin, 1928 Champion, Is Far Behind —Gehringer Excels.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (AP).—Lewis Fonseca, discarded to the minors four years ago by the Philadelphia Nationals, won the 1929 American League batting championship with the lowest average since Tyrus Raymond Cobb turned the trick way back in 1914.

The veteran first baseman, official averages revealed tonight, batted 566 times in 148 games and collected 209 hits for a .369 average, which was 10 points lower than the championship average made by Leon "Goose" Goslin of Washington in 1928 and one more than Cobb's low mark in 1914.

Al Simmons of the champion Philadelphia Athletics was second with a .365 mark, while Henry Manush of St. Louis, runner-up to Goslin in 1928, finished third with .355. Goslin was far down the list of leaders for the season, his average dropping 91 points to .288.

Jimmy Foxx Gets .354.

Other members of the "big ten" American League hitters and their official averages were Jimmy Foxx, Philadelphia, .354; Tony Lazzeri, New York, .354; Bob Fothergill, Detroit, .350; Earl Coombs, New York, .345; Babe Ruth, New York, .345; Harry Heilmann, Detroit, .344, and Dale Alexander, Detroit, .343.

It was the first odd year since 1919, too, that Heilmann, who now wears the livery of the Cincinnati Reds, failed to win the batting crown.

For the third successive year, exactly fifty American League batsmen hit .300 or better, fifteen of them being players in their first or second year in the big time.

Tigers Top Team Average.

Aided by the big bats of Heilmann and Alexander, the Tigers easily won the team batting championship, hanging up a .299 average, three points higher than the Athletics, who were second, and three points higher than the mark set by the Yankees, who won it in 1928. The Yankees finished third in 1929 with a .295 total.

Although Fonseca came back to top the willow wielders in the junior circuit, the averages disclosed that Charles Gehringer, Detroit star, swung the busiest bat in the league. Gehringer finished eleventh among the leading batsmen with a .339 average; played in the most games, 155; scored the most runs, 131; stole the most bases, 27; led in three-base hits, 19; tied with his teammate, Alexander, for the most hits, 215; tied with another teammate, Roy Johnson, and Manush in doubles with 45, and though he occupied an unfavorable position in the Tiger batting order he drove in 106 runs.

FIGHTS MARK GAME AS RANGERS LOSE

Bill Cook and Somers Receive Match Penalties—Bun Cook and Graham Draw Majors.

DUTKOWSKI'S GOAL DECIDES

Enables Black Hawks to Defeat Rivals, 2-1, Before 8,000 in Chicago Stadium.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Chicago Black Hawks took undisputed possession of second place in the American group of the National Hockey League by winning a furious game from the New York Rangers, 2 to 1, before 8,000 in the Chicago Stadium tonight. The game, probably the roughest ever played in Chicago, was punctuated by three separate fist fights between the players.

Dutowski scored the winning tally for the Black Hawks unassisted 35 seconds before the end of the third period. Gottselig of the Hawks and Boucheer of the Rangers scored the other goals. All three scores came in the final period.

The fist fights all came in the second period and but stopped the game. Somers and Bun Cook engaged in the first one after a hard fight for the puck. They were stopped by officials and players and sent to the penalty box for two minutes. No sooner had Bun Cook returned than he became engaged in a better and bigger fight with Graham, the latest Black Hawk rookie. Players from both sides came to their rescue and they were ejected with major penalties of five minutes each.

Shortly after that Somers had a fist fight with Bun Cook's brother Bill. It was the liveliest of the evening. They fought skate to skate near the Ranger goal, swinging rights and lefts at each other's jaw. They were separated with great difficulty and expelled for the rest of the match.

Graham appeared to be the only man hurt in the mêlée, suffering a stick wound over his right eye. Ching Johnson, Ranger defense star, was forced out of the game near the end in the third period when he fell and injured his forehead. His absence was telling too, for shortly afterward Dutkowski broke through with the winning tally for the Black Hawks.

Players of the Game

Johnny Layton—Master of Three-Cushions

By JOHN DREBINGER.

All rights reserved.

"As a game combining beauty and charm, exacting technique and sustained interest, there is, in my opinion, no form of billiards that equals the three-cushion game, and in its present accepted standard of play it is far better than it would be with any changes that have been suggested."

The speaker was Johnny Layton, who last week successfully defended his world's championship at this difficult angle game of billiards, a cue artist of rare skill and at once an authority on his subject.

That he endorses most emphatically the present method of play should prove of considerable interest to all billiard enthusiasts. For, be it known, billiards, like football, with its point after touchdown and fumble rule, and baseball with its lively sphere, also is deeply engrossed at the moment in a lively family dispute.

Changes in Play Considered.

It all concerns the game of three-cushion caroms and how it ought to be played. At present, in championship competition, each player has his own cue ball which he retains throughout a match.

This, according to one set, is all wrong. The game is too difficult, there is not enough scoring to satisfy the spectator and the system permits too much use of the safety, which still further reduces the scoring. The safety, let it be explained, is an incompleted shot which leaves the opponent with little more to do than scratch his head and hope for better luck in the next inning. To do away with this, some would give the players choice of either white ball or of all three balls on each shot.

Leader Under Any System.

Still another set advocates the elimination of the diamonds, from which has been evolved the diamond system of play whereby the marks on the four rails of the table are employed in calculating angle shots. Their contention is that the diamonds have made three-cushion play more a mathematical science than a game and that they have served to make it more a contest of addition and subtraction than a test of skill.

Times Wide World Photos.

JOHNNY LAYTON.

But Layton answers both with a broadside, and not merely because he happens to be champion at the style he favors. For Johnny can play the game from any angle. He demonstrated this recently by engaging Welker Cochran, a skilled three-cushion as well as balkline player, in a special match which extended over a couple of weeks. They played with the diamonds covered, they played using either white ball for cue ball on each shot and they played at the regulation style. Layton triumphed each time.

"To permit players to use any one of two or three cue balls," says Layton, "spoils all the beauty of three-cushions. For, curious to say, shot-making is not all there is to billiards. Allowing a choice of cue balls at once enables a player to pick out the easier shot, and the game would quickly degenerate into mere mechanical play. Attempts at difficult shots would seldom be made, and few players would waste time studying and practicing them. It is the constant striving for ways and means of making the difficult shots that has done so much toward improving the general play.

Calls Safety a Strategic Move.

"As for the safety, that is a vital part of the game. When a player, in making a try for a shot, leaves his opponent without any shot at all, he has shown just that much more skill. Safety play makes billiards a matching of wits between players of equal or nearly equal skill."

On the matter of the so-called diamond system, Layton is even more authoritative, for Johnny is the inventor of the system, or at least the first of the great players to perfect it to a high degree.

"The diamonds," says Layton, "do make the game a bit mcthematical, but what if they do? It helps the younger players to learn the game and improve more rapidly. Remove the diamonds and you only handicap the newcomers. The older players like myself would not be bothered at all. I have studied them so well I know exactly where they are, even if they can't be seen."

Started as Room Owner.

And thus speaks Johnny Layton, chubby, jovial with sandy, curly hair and a pleasant smile. When one holds in mind the slender, graceful Jake Schaefer, the balkline champion, Layton reminds one more of a prosperous proprietor than a billiard player. As a matter of fact, he began his game as a proprietor. He first opened a billiard hall in his home town in Sedalia, Mo. Then he opened another in St. Louis, but with no great amount of success, and finally chose to become a performer. He chose well, for he soon became the world's pocket billiard champion and later turned his attention to three-cushions.

The diamond system is not the only one of Layton's inventions. He still laughs when he recalls how he startled St. Louis billiard enthusiasts by equipping his tables with metal railings. They gave truer angles but the noise was terrific. It sounded like a machine gun company at target practice, and out of deferencve to his neighbors he finally discarded them.

N. Y. A. C. IS VICTOR AT INDOOR TENNIS

Defeats Penn A. C. in Interclub Matches on Philadelphia Courts by Five Matches to One.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 12.—The New York A. C. indoor tennis team defeated the Penn A. C., 5 to 1, in the interclub match, which started yesterday and was concluded today on the Penn A. C. courts.

The only match the Penn A. C. won was when Fritz Mercur, second ranking player in the Middle States Lawn Tennis Association's 1929 ratings, defeated Herbert L. Bowman of the New York A. C., who was ranked seventh in the metropolitan district by the Eastern Lawn Tennis Association last year, in the feature match.

Twice Bowman carried Mercur to match point and twice the latter rallied, eventually winning the match after an exciting third set. The scores were 6—4, 4—6, 11—9.

Edward E. Jenkins Jr of the New York A. C. came through with a victory over Joe Olhausen of the Penn A. C. in another three-set singles match. After losing the first, 7—5, Jenkins took the next two sets at 6—3, 6—4.

Paired with Eugene McCauliff in the doubles, Jenkins and his partner were extended to three sets to win from Olhausen and Thomas Leonard, 2—6, 6—3, 11—9. In the first doubles Bowman and Perry Rockafeller won easily from Mercur and Joe McGuffin, 6—1, 6—2.

THE SUMMARIES.

Singles—Fritz Mercur, Penn A. C., defeated Herbert L. Bowman, 6—4, 4—6, 11—9; Perry Rockafeller, New York A. C., defeated Joe McGuffin, 6—1, 6—4; Edward E. Jenkins Jr., New York A. C., defeated Joe Olhausen, 5—7, 6—3, 6—4; Eugene McCauliff, New York A. C., defeated Thomas Leonard, 7—5, 6—3.

Doubles—Bowman and Rockafeller, New York A. C., defeated Mercur and McGuffin, 6—1, 6—2; McCauliff and Jenkins, New York A. C., defeated Olhausen and Leonard, 2—6, 6—3, 11—9.

RUTH REACHES FLORIDA.

Says Next Move in Contract Dispute Is Up to Club.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 12 (AP).—Babe Ruth's only comment on his contract disagreement with the New York Yankees as he came into Florida tonight was that "It's up to them now."

Ruth gave his weight as 225 pounds and said it would be the first time in six years that it has not been necessary to pull himself down to his playing weight of 230 to 235. He said all he planned to do was to play plenty of golf and get his legs and arms in shape.

5-MILE SKATING RACE ANNEXED BY JAFFEE

Closing Spurt Enables Him to Win by Inches From Springer at Bear Mountain.

Special to The New York Times.

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Irving Jaffee of Iceland, Olympic speed skating champion, won the special five-mile scratch skating race on the Palisades Interstate Park indoor rink today. This race and four other events took the place of the Inter-State Outdoor Championship events which were postponed until Feb. 16 because of the weather.

Jaffee's victory was gained after a brilliant spurt. He finished about six inches in front of Carl Springer of the Brooklyn Ice Palace. Ray Darmstadt of the Olympic Skating Club was third. Jaffee's time was 17:45.

THE SUMMARIES.

Class A, Half-Mile (Handicap)—Won by Ray Darmstadt, Majestic Skating Club (5 yards); Bill Hisnay, Comet Skating Club (45 yards), second; Allan Potts, Brooklyn Ice Palace (scratch), third. Time—1:27 3-5.

Women's Half-Mile (Handicap)—Won by Miss Elsie Muller, Iceland (scratch); Miss Mildred Mangold, Brooklyn Ice Palace (10 yards), second; Miss Mabel Graham, Brooklyn Ice Palace (65 yards), third. Time—1:41 2-5.

Men's Five Mile (Scratch)—Won by Irving Jaffee, Iceland; Carl Springer, Brooklyn Ice Palace, second; Ray Darmstadt, Majestic Skating Club, third. Time—17:45.

SCOTT'S 65 WINS IN SNOW BIRD GOLF

Returns Low Net Score to Lead Sixth Qualifying Round at Siwanoy Club.

TWO TIE FOR LOW GROSS

Black and Taylor Shoot 81s for Eighteen Holes—Rain Keeps Field Down to Ten.

Douglas Grant Scott with a net 65 was the winner of the sixth qualifying round of the twenty-first annual Snow Bird golf tournament on the Siwanoy Country Club's course in Bronxville yesterday. A light rain, which fell throughout the afternoon, kept the number of competitors down to ten, two of whom did not turn in cards. James B. Black and John Taylor each registered an 81, ten over par, the best gross score.

Scott turned the eighteen holes in 82 strokes, and he had a handicap of 17. Frederick M. Sanders was second with net 66. Sanders also tied Black for the runner-up honors to Wilbert Garrison in the fifth round. Garrison did not play yesterday, nor did C. G. Leuder, Ben Wilson and Dr. Charles Graef, winners of the first, third and fourth rounds respectively. John Morton, victor in the second week's play, finished with a net 68 yesterday, to tie with Black for third position.

Scott went out in 42 yesterday and returned in 40 for his gross 82. Black played the first nine in 43 and came home in 38. Taylor recorded a 40 for the outward route and 41 for the final nine.

The rules of the tournament are that a player must win one preliminary test and compete in three others to be eligible for the match play, which is scheduled to start Feb. 2.

SMITH DOULBE VICTOR IN BOWLING TOURNEY

Defeats Cliffe and Daw in Round Robin—Falcaro Beats Cliffe to Keep Lead.

Jimmy Smith of Chicago, won two mtches and Joe Falcaro of New York, world's match game champion, won one in the second day's play of the all-star round robin tournament at Dwyer's Broadway Alleys yesterday.

Falcaro is leading, having captured all of his three contests. Smith's two triumphs put him in second place. Charles Daw of Milwaukee, former world's champion, is third, with two victories and one setback and William Cliffe is last.

Falcaro bowled brilliantly to defeat Cliffe, 2,283 to 1,835. Falcaro's score is the best of the tourney. Smith won both of last night's matches, first vanquishing Cliffe, 1,965 to 1,812 and then turning back Daw, 2,031 to 1,886. Falcaro's average for the thirty games is 22[illegible].18.

SHUTE'S 147 LEADS LOS ANGELES GOLF

Horton Smith Second With 149 at Half-Way Mark of 72-Hole Open Tourney.

HARD RAIN BOOSTS SCORES

Adverse Conditions Cause Totals of Many Stars to Climb—Hagen Drops Out.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—Densmore Shute, former West Virginia Amateur, now professional at the Brookside Golf and Country Club, Columbus, Ohio, was leading the field in the fifth annual Los Angeles $10,000 open golf championship, with 147, following the second eighteen holes played today in a rain and over a slow, muddy course at the Riviera Country Club. Horton Smith, with a total of 149, was second, and there was no other player with a total under 151.

Shute, an early starter, got around before conditions were at their worst, but Smith played during the height of the driving storm and went out in 35. Other stars who were late starters failed to do as well.

Walter Hagen withdrew on the eighth hole and many others of the most prominent competitors had scores ranging from 77 to 82. Scoring conditions could hardly have been worse than they were this afternoon.

Several Cups Under Water.

The long course, difficult under ordinary conditions, was soggy when play began this morning, following yesterday's postponement on account of flood conditions. The early starters were able to get around without great difficulty, but late in the morning the rain began again. The downpour increased in intensity as driving wind came from the ocean a scant mile away. Pools of casual water collected in many spots and one or two cups were under water.

The Riviera course, with nine par 4 holes of 400 yards or more, was changed from a stiff par 71 to one on which anything under 80 was a good score. The rain stopped shortly before 4 o'clock and a bright sun shone down on the wet course and bedraggled players during the final hour of play.

Because of the soft condition of the turf the tournament committee decided to extend the final thirty-six holes over two days, eighteen tomorrow and eighteen Tuesday, instead of playing both rounds tomorrow. Only those in the first fifty and ties will be qualified for the final thirty-six holes.

Scores of 159 Qualify.

Only scores of 159 or better qualified for the final thirty-six holes. Mac Smith just got in. Stars in addition to Hagen who failed to qualify included Craig Wood, winner of two tournaments held previously this year; Al Watrous, former Canadian champion; Joe Turnesa, Johnny Dawson and Henry Ciuci.

In the national open at Winged Foot last June Shute tied for third. Later in the Summer Denny won the Ohio open championship.

Bethlehem Loses to Nationals, 4-3; Hakoah-Fall River Play 0-0 Tie

New York Team Wins Hard Battle for League Points at the Polo Grounds.

SCORE IS 1-1 AT HALF TIME

Bethlehem Rallies at Re-start, but Victors Forge Ahead to Keep Lead to the End.

The New York Nationals defeated Bethlehem by a score of 4 to 3 at the Polo Grounds yesterday in a hair-raising battle for Atlantic League points before a crowd of 1,500. The ground was in bad shape after the rain, but a hard game resulted, with the issue in doubt up to the final whistle. At half time the score was 1 to 1. Bethlehem forged in front after resuming, but the Nationals soon got even and kept ahead to the end.

The Nationals got off at a fast clip and quickly were swarming around Bethlehem's goal. A shot from Nelson was followed with another by Slaven but Fraser grabbed the slippery ball and cleared well. After a brief visit to the other end the Nationals were attacking again and in a mix-up Gibson handled in the penalty area and Warden scored the first goal on the spot kick. Bethlehem drove down with several stinging attacks which called for the best efforts of Souza but he was equal to all calls made upon him.

Stark's Goal Ties Score.

Up and down the field the ball went like lightning, with both goals having several close calls, but at thirty minutes Stark scored from close in to tie the count. From then until half time it was a thrilling battle, but the teams were still deadlocked 1 to 1 at the interval.

After resuming, Stark put Bethlehem in the lead with a great shot, but the Polo Grounders were not long in catching up. Martyn fed the ball up with a long punt and Nelson trapped it to draw Fraser out of position to score. The Nationals then knocked the Bethlehem defense backward with a series of assaults which resulted in two more goals being scored by Gallagher to make the count 4 to 2.

Bethlehem Cuts Lead.

Bethlehem took a turn with a rally which had its rivals defending desperately. Gillespie sent in a long shot at Souza, who could only partially clear the ball and a scramble occurred just on-side the goal. Stark got his foot to the leather to cut down the lead. The excitement was kept up to the final kick, when Bethlehem had the last chance to draw level from a corner, but the whistle blew as the ball soared across the goal mouth.

The Clan Bruce soccer team qualified for the third round of the National Amateur Cup competition by defeating Greenock West of Scotland, 5 to 1, at Payne Oval, Astoria, yesterday. At half time Clan Bruce led, 3-0, and had the game well in hand. Davidson, with two goals, led in the scoring.

SINGER IN RING TONIGHT.

Meets Day in St. Nicholas Arena Ten-Round Feature.

Al Singer, Bronx lightweight title contender, will battle Georgie Day of New Haven in the feature bout of ten rounds at the St. Nicholas Arena tonight. Jimmy Slavin, west side featherweight, and Cecil (Kid) Como, New Orleans, clash in the six-round semi-final. Solly Krieger is to tackle Steve Gotch for six rounds and Jackie Schweitzer is paired with Joe La Bate for a similar distance.

Hubert Gillis, Belgian lightweight, and Eddie Elkins of Harlem will meet tonight in the main bout of six rounds at the Jamaica Arena, Jamaica, L. I. Paul Canamere and Willie Hines, lightweights, are slated for the six-round semi-final. Two other six-round matches and four four-round bouts also are scheduled.

AMATEURS IN RING TONIGHT.

Resume Competition in Met. Title Event at the Garden.

Sixty-three rounds of boxing are scheduled for the metropolitan amateur boxing championships which will be resumed at Madison Square Garden tonight. The semi-finals and finals will be held Wednesday night in the same ring. Of the fifty-six amateurs left in the tournament after Wednesday's preliminary rounds, forty-eight are expected to be seen in action tonght, the remainder drawing byes.

Four heavyweights remain in the competition. Phil Gavriluk and Chester Matan, giant Coast Guard heavyweight champion, are the outstanding favorites to come through, Matan being undefeated this season.

Tilden Victor at Monte Carlo, Beating Rogers in 4-Set Final

MONTE CARLO, Jan. 12 (AP).—Big Bill Tilden defeated Lyttleton Rogers, Irish Davis Cup player, in the final of the Monte Carlo tennis tournament today, 7—5, 6—1, 6—8, 6—0. Tilden played erratic tennis, but always had plenty in reserve when threatened.

HAKOAH-FALL RIVER PLAY SCORELESS TIE

Undefeated New England Team and Champions Battle in Rain at Hawthorne Field.

CROWD OF 4,000 SEES TEST

Fall River Concentrates on Defense in Second Half and Keeps All-Stars From Tallying.

After a tie in Bethlehem on Saturday, the undefeated team of the Fall River Club succeeded in keeping its slate clean in the Atlantic Coast Soccer League by playing a no-scoring match with the Hakoah All-Stars, national champions, at Hawthorne Field in Brooklyn yesterday. In the second half the New Englanders concentrated upon their defense and held the Hakoahs at bay until the final whistle.

Undismayed by rain, a crowd of 4,000 turned out to witness the match. The mud was two inches deep in most parts of the field and made the going hard.

Play started 10 minutes late, and Sternberg stopped a left wing attack by Fall River. A long drive by R. McAulay to the goal mouth was well taken by Fischer. Haeusler was firmly planted in the mud with Ballantyne on top of him. Neufeld and McAulay clashed and Neufeld was upset, but recovered the ball quickly. Hands were called on McAulay and the ensuing play led to the first corner for Hakoah.

Fall River Gains Two Corners.

Patenaude tested Fischer with a good one and then Wortmann shot past. As Sternberg miskicked, Fall River gained a corner on the right, but Priestley's try went to one side. From a pass by Gonsalves, Patenaude hooked the ball quickly to the goalie and Fischer once more drew applause. McAulay took a free kick as a foul was called on Nickolsburger. A second corner for Fall River followed on the right.

Guttman's free kick was futile. Hakoah then set the pace and gained two corners, from which Haeusler headed to one side and Wortmann kicked past. Wortmann was the central figure of a concerted attack that put the Fall River defense upon its mettle. As J. McAuley came through for the visitors, Fischer plunged headlong into the mire and retrieved the ball in good time. Neufeld and R. McAulay got in a mix-up and brought the first half to an exciting finish.

Scramble Before Hakoah Goal.

In the second half Schwarcz, Wortmann and Gruenwald took turns in testing Reder. In a scramble in front of the Hakoah goal, Fall River gained a corner on the left. Hakoah cleared effectively. Schwarcz sent a low drive across the Fall River goal, which traveled outside the upright. From a corner on the right Gruenwald headed over the cross-bar. Try as they would, the Hakoah forwards could not get by for a goal and the game ended in a tie.

The line-up:

Hakoah (0).		Fall River (0).
Fischer	G	Reder
Grosz	R. B.	McGhee
Sternberg	L. B.	R. McAuley

LEWIS BREAKS 100 AT N. Y. A. C. TRAPS

Takes High Scratch Cup With a Perfect Score, Second Returned This Season.

ALSO WINS DOUBLES EVENT

Second Scratch Cup Won by Thomas —Burns Leads Field of 18 at Larchmont Club.

Tracy H. Lewis, who did such excellent shooting on Saturday at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club, continued his good work yesterday and took the High Scratch Cup in the week-end shoot of the Winged Foot Club with a straight string of 100 targets. Only once before this season has a gunner hit every target, S. B. Masten having also returned a perfect score.

The Scratch Cup was not the only trophy that was won by Lewis. He also took the Doubles Scratch Cup with a card of 44 out a possible 50 targets, and also won legs on the Season Cup with 166 out of a possible 175 targets, and the Simmons Scratch Cup.

The second scratch cup went to C. B. Thomas. He had a card of 96 out of a possible 100 targets. Nine gunners tied for the High Handicap Cup. Each had a full score of 100 targets and the shoot-off was won by S. Milligan. J. H. Forseman followed, and the third and last cup was won by F. P. Stevens. The winner of the Doubles Handicap Cup was R. J. Murray, with a card of 40-14-50. The Distance Cup went to B. M. Higginson. Shooting from the twenty-three-yard mark, he had a card of 24 out of a possible 25 targets. S. Milligan won a leg on the Simmons Handicap Cup.

WEST INDIES SCORES 338.

Roach Is Star in Cricket Test Match Against English With 122.

BRIDGETOWN, Barbadoes, Jan. 11 (Canadian Press).—The first test match between a touring cricket team representing England and the West Indies began here today. West Indies won the toss and batted first, putting on the fine score of 338 runs for eight wickets before stumps were drawn for the day. Roach reached three figures, his 122 being a fine effort for the West Indies.

KIECKHEFER, DENTON IN PLAY-OFF TONIGHT

Will Meet to Decide Fourth Position in World's 3-Cushion Championship Tourney.

The first of two special play-offs to decide final standings of players in the world's three-cushion championship, which ended last week with Johnny Layton retaining the title, will be held at Dwyer's Broadway Academy tonight at 8:30 o'clock with Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago and Tiff Denton of Kansas City as the principals.

Kieckhefer and Denton finished the tourney in a deadlock for fourth place with four games won and three lost. The victor of this play-off will be assured of automatically qualifying for next year's championship without being required to compete in sectional play.

The play-off for second place between Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, who lost to Layton in the final game, and Allen Hall of Chicago will be held tomorrow night. Both play-offs will be at 50 points and Albert G. Cutler, who refereed the title tournament, will officiate.

The winner of second place will receive a salary of $3,000 a year and a cash prize of $1,000. Third place is only worth a cash prize of $800. Fourth place is worth $700 and fifth place $600. The gate receipts from the play-offs will be added to the tournament receipts, in which all players share. The division of the prize money will be made on Wednesday.

Harvard Six to Play Tonight.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 12.—Harvard's varsity hockey team will play the fast University Club of Boston in the Boston Garden tomorrow night. Against American opposition Harvard is undefeated to date, having won four contests.

POLO GROUNDS DEAL IS MADE BY GARDEN

Dempsey's Efforts to Acquire Lease Fail as Carey Renews Boxing Bout Privileges.

ALSO HAS THE STADIUM

Three Championship Matches Are Contemplated for Outdoor Season —Sharkey in One Bout.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

The prospects of Jack Dempsey's acquiring the boxing privileges at the Polo Grounds for the next outdoor season were dissipated yesterday when William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, announced that the Garden had completed negotiations for a renewal of the lease the Eighth Avenue arena held on the National League ballyard last Summer.

Carey's announcement revealed another year of monoply for the Garden on Manhattan's only available outdoor sport arenas, for the Garden had already completed arrangements for renewing its lease of the Yankee Stadium.

The terms of the arrangement which again gives the Garden the Polo Grounds and the Yankee Stadium were not divulged, but it is understood the conditions which prevailed last Summer will obtain during the Summer to come. Last year the Garden pooled the rental costs for both parks and paid each organization equally on the bouts conducted, regardless of whether the Polo Grounds or the Yankee Stadium was used.

In announcing his latest stroke Carey revealed that the Garden will hold an option for the renewal of its Polo Grounds lease for the Summer of 1931. Such an option is contained in the Yankee Stadium lease annually.

Matchmaker Tom McArdle's plans for next Summer provide for three matches in which champions will defend their crowns, and a fourth in which a heavyweight titleholder is expected to be produced.

The Jack Sharkey-Max Schmeling match, proposed for the Milk Fund in June, heads the list of prospective bouts. Then there is the possibility of a match between Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, and Al Singer; a meeting between Jackie Fields, welterweight titleholder, and Jimmy McLarnin, and a battle between Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, and Ace Hudkins or some other suitable challenger.

Bat Battalino, featherweight champion, and Maxie Rosenbloom, if the Harlemite wins the light-heavyweight title in the current round-robin, also may be principals in Garden outdoor attractions.

SCHAAF INCREASES LEAD.

Penn Star Scores 36 Points in Interclub Court League.

Joe Schaaf, former intercollegiate scoring leader, increased his lead in the individual race for points in the Eastern Interclub Court League last week by tallying 14 points against the Montclair A. C. In two games he has scored 36 points, enabling him to lead with two victories and no defeats.

The ten high scorers:

SHARKEY IS RANKED AT TOP BY DEMPSEY

Former Champion Selects Best Men in Ring Divisions—Puts Schmeling Next.

Jack Dempsey believes that Jack Sharkey is the heavyweight champion of the world. The former king of the heavyweights ranks the boxers of the world for 1929 in a copyrighted story for The Ring, according to The Associated Press.

Dempsey places Max Schmeling second, Tuffy Griffiths third and Phil Scott fourth. Next he groups seven men in this order: Tommy Loughran, Otto von Porat, George Godfrey, Johnny Risko, Victorio Campolo, Young Stribling and Paulino Uzcudun. The list was compiled before Paulino upset von Porat.

Maxey Rosenbloom heads the light heavyweights with Jimmy Slattery, Lou Scozza and Leo Lomski linked in the second division. Mickey Walker, the champion, takes the same place among the middleweights with Dave Shade, Rene Devos and Ace Hudkins grouped below him. The welterweight class has aJckie Fields, the titleholder, linked with Jimmy McLarnin at the top.

Sammy Mandell, lightweight king, shares honors with Tony Canzoneri, while Kid Chocolate and Earl Mastro outrank Bat Battalino, the champion, among the featherweights. Al Brown and Bushy Graham share the top group of the bantamweights, with Black Bill and Midget Wolgast holding the same positions in the flyweight class.

Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

. . . the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency . . . join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

The strong arm of the law halts the spitter whose vile and vicious habit menaces his fellow citizens. But for every spitter caught hundreds escape . . . hundreds who still work in filthy shops rolling cigars with dirty fingers and spitting on the ends!

Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods developed by the United States Government during the war. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar your physician has in mind when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof . . . immaculate . . . foil-wrapped . . . Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly had in mind when he said, "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

Feature at Oriental Park Is Captured by Mart Malone, With Propus Second

MART MALONE WINS IN HAVANA FEATURE

Highland Stable Entry Captures Hotel Almendares Handicap at Oriental Park.

PROPUS FINISHES SECOND

Andresito Is Third After Victor Wears Down Leaders in Hard Stretch Drive.

HAVANA, Jan. 12 (AP).—Mart Malone, which races for the Highland Stable, ridden by F. Dougherty, accounted for the Hotel Almendares claiming handicap, offered as the outstanding attraction at Oriental Park today. His score came after a hard-stretch drive in which he wore down the leaders and led home A. Trent's Propus, while Andresito, from the Caimito Stable, was third. The race marked the first defeat here for the Cuban-bred Andresito. Andresito showed a good effort but was asked to concede plenty of weight.

The field was ill-mannered at the post and delayed the start. When the break came it was a good one. Propus stepped into command. He was followed by Old Kickapoo, while Aucilla dropped far out. Rounding the turn, Old Kickapoo began to shorten his stride. Andresito moved up on the outside with a challenge to Mart Malone. The latter was treading his way between the field. At the furlong pole he was in a contending position. Propus dropped back. Andresito had shot his bolt.

Mart Malone's time was 1:13 4-5 and he paid slightly more than four to one. Cloudy and overcast skies and a track slowed up by morning showers prevailed.

Dictateur Wins Nice Chase, Leading Illico, the Favorite

NICE, France, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Grand Prix de Monte Carlo, a steeplechase handicap worth $6,000, was won today by Dictateur, owned by Roederer and ridden by Richard Petit. Dictateur, a 6-year-old son of Ukko out of Dragonne, was the public's third choice in the betting and rewarded his backers at the rate of 5 for 1. Illico, the even money favorite, was second and Motrice third. Eleven horses started.

500 TRACK STARS WILL RACE TONIGHT

Mile Duel Between Hickey and Getz Stands Out in Legion Meet at 102d Armory.

A resumption of the one-mile duel between the respective champions of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. and the National Collegiate A. A. will furnish the high spot of the benefit track meet of the New York County of the American Legion tonight at the 102d Engineers Armory. Joe Hickey of N. Y. U., the I. C. A. A. A. A. mile king, and Wilbur Getz, once of Alfred College, but now representing the Millrose A. A., the N. C. A. A. titleholder, will resume their battle for supremacy where they left off on the Yankee Stadium cinders last June. More than 500 athletes have filed entries for the competition.

Then Hickey and Getz were not only contending against each other, but they were also seeking to keep close to the sizzling 4:13 mile that Leo Lermond was blazing ahead of them. Well aware of the utter hopelessness of overtaking Lermond then, they settled down to a spirited contest against each other, Hickey winning out in this private race by three yards in the approximate time of 4:20.

Phil Edwards of N. Y. U., national and intercollegiate half-mile champion, will make his first individual appearance of the season after two successive relay legs in a little over 50 seconds. Edwards will be scratch man in the 1,000-yard run handicap for the Major Gen. W. N. Haskell trophy.

LONDOS WRESTLES TONIGHT

Meets Stocca in 71st Armory Main Event—Romano in Semi-Final.

A program at the seventy-first Regiment Armory tonight and another at the New York Coliseum on Thursday head the wrestling in the Metropolitan district this week. Tonight's card at the seventy-first Regiment will have Jim Londos, Greek grappler, engaging in the main bout with Joe Stocca. The semi-final will bring together Matros Kirilenko and Mike Romano. In other matches, Jim McMillan, former Illinois football star, will meet Jack Washburn, Hans Steinke clashes with John Maxos and George Hagen encounters Gino Garibaldi.

Londos also wrestles at the Coliseum on Thursday, tackling Nazzarino Poggi in the main bout. Garibaldi and Washburn are the semi-finalists. Another bout will have Herb Freeman grappling with Tom Draak, while the opener brings together Steinke and Nino Darnoldi.

Sports of the Times

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By JOHN KIERAN.

If the way to resume is to resume, as a wise man pointed out some years ago, the way to test the one-game-a-year plan proposed or suggested by President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard is to play one game a year. There may be a few protests here and there, but the plan is elemental in its simplicity and could be carried out in a simple manner.

It is an important change that is proposed, however, and there arises the problem of who will bell the cat or start the ball rolling. When Talleyrand was urged to abolish capital punishment in France he replied: "Que messieurs les assassins commencent!" The choice was logical even though the nomination was declined. The anecdote is recalled absolutely "sans rancune, my dear Whistler," in the words of the elegant Oscar, but Harvard, Yale and Princeton certainly were among the leaders, if not the leaders, in making intercollegiate football what it is today, and if a right-about-face is to be made there is no need of going far afield in search of a leader for the return march.

Since the plan was suggested by President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, that institution might properly claim the honor of testing the proposed plan. It's just possible that Yale and Princeton will not contest the election bitterly.

Impassable Barriers.

At less fortunate universities there are practically impassable barriers to the proposed plan. The barriers are financial. No university can afford to cut down the flow of gate receipts if it recently has erected a huge stadium of which the chief architectural detail is an overhanging mortgage. These institutions are in athletics on the deferred payment plan. They can't pull out until they have paid up.

But where a university owns its stadium and playing fields free and clear and has only an academic interest in banking problems, the affair is much simplified. There remains only the minor matter of finding a method of paying the athletic accounts that football annually pays.

There would be one big football game under the new plan. Depending upon the college and the size of the stadium, as well as the natural rivalry of the contesting teams in the game, the income from this game would vary between a few thousand dollars and a quarter of a million. If the plan were made amateur to the bitter end, there might be no gate receipts even there. Admission by card only. In that case there would be just so much more money to find.

Except in scattered instances, football pays the way for every other college sport. The bills run all the way from $12.50 for cartridges for the rifle team to $30,000 or $40,000 for the rowing program. At the bigger universities it is nothing unusual for the athletic disbursements to run to $500,000 in a year.

Simple Arithmetic.

Now it becomes a problem in simple arithmetic. If a large university has an athletic budget requiring $500,000 for the year, the student enrolment should be taken into consideration. Taking round numbers to make easy figuring, an enrolment of 5,000 students at such an institution would mean a payment of $100 by each student to make up the budget. Just tack it to the bill for tuition and let Dad worry back home.

At most of the Western universities, maintained by the various States, the tuition is free. In that case the extra $100 could be attached to the board and lodging account. If the number of intercollegiate contests is to be cut down, the budget won't run so high. The assessments would run lower. At some colleges it would be possible to escape with a per capita assessment of $50, or even less.

In return for that assessment the student would have the run of the diamond, the gridiron, the gym, the swimming pool, the squash courts, the tennis courts and the chess room. Where could a boy find all those athletic facilities outside of college at anything like the price?

The Simple Life.

That would put college athletics on a different plane. No longer would a football coach be forced to send his players through a terrific schedule in order to get the money to meet the second mortgage on the imposing stadium. The drift toward the Roman attitude in sports, deplored by President Lowell, would be definitely halted. Possibly it would even lead to a revival of popular interest in Greek language and literature.

But the plan could be carried out, and Harvard could do it as easily as any university in the country. There are some things that the plan, even if carried out, will not do. It will not end the "recruiting" of high school and prep school stars. The one game a year will have in it the concentrated rivalry that is now divided through a longer schedule of intercollegiate competition. It will mean that much more to win that one game, and the gathering of athletic material for that purpose will be pursued with even more zeal than it is now being pursued.

It will not help intramural sports. One of the important, if generally overlooked, assets of intercollegiate competition is that it stirs up the whole student body to a greater interest in sports. The varsity heroes may or may not be worth much as such, but they are worth something as inspirations. If intercollegiate competition declines, intramural sports can be expected to decline with it.

There are other things the plan won't cover, but a halt must be made somewhere in the discussion.

The Executive Power.

On many academic occasions the president of a college or university has been likened to the captain of a ship. College presidents themselves have been known to draw the parallel with due solemnity. The point is well taken.

If the captain of a ship in troubled waters decides that he is on the wrong tack, he doesn't ask himself whether or not he is drifting into a Roman attitude toward hidden reefs. He doesn't write a report back to the board of directors suggesting that a change in course might be advisable. He simply gives a gruff command in hearty nautical terms and the wheel goes over sharply.

There are many good points in the Lowell plan. With due regard for athletic engagements that are already on the register, a start on a trial of the plan could be set for the not too distant future. All that is required is a president to give the word at a college that can stand the gaff.

It's Harvard's ball in midfield.

PENN FIVE KEEPS LEAD IN LEAGUE

Pace-Setters Maintain Undefeated Record by 32-24 Victory Over Dartmouth.

Scoring a 32-24 victory over the Dartmouth five in the Palestra in Philadelphia last Saturday night, the University of Pennsylvania basketball team won its second straight Eastern Intercollegiate League game and maintained its undefeated record in the circuit play. Penn sets the pace in the league, with Princeton in second place. Penn has won the crown for the last two years and has a fine start toward its third title.

Princeton and Cornell made their league débuts last Saturday, with the Tigers winning the game by 26 to 18. Only once were the Ithacans in the lead, and that was early in the first half, when the count was 8-7. After that Princeton opened its passing game and flew to the front, steadily increasing its margin to the end. Indications are that the Tigers will be very strong contenders for the championship.

Penn had anything but an easy time turning back Dartmouth. The latter team performed well in the first half, once setting the pace, but wilted in the second in the face of a strong Penn rally. The Green was only 1 point behind at half-time and gives promise of developing into a title contender before the season is very far advanced.

Brodbeck Leads the Scorers.

Scoring three field goals against Dartmouth, Al Brodbeck of Mount Vernon, playing right forward for Penn, went into the lead in the league's individual scoring race with a total of 17 points. He has made eight field goals and one foul and has taken part in both the games played by his team.

Two men, also from Penn, are deadlocked in second place. They are Tanseer, a guard, and Ullrich, a forward. Each man has 14 tallies on seven field goals. Ullrich was the high scorer last Saturday, sending the ball through the basket from the floor on six occasions.

Kramer of Dartmouth, playing guard, is fourth with 10 points and Horwitz of Yale, who set the pace a week ago, is next with nine markers. Kramer is a guard and Horwitz a forward. Of course, by the time a few more games have been played, it is quite possible that there will be several radical changes in the first ten men.

Taking the first ten men on the present list, it is seen that Penn is represented four times, Yale twice, Princeton twice and Dartmouth once. Penn has played two games, while the others have played only one and Columbia has not competed.

Four Games This Week.

An interesting schedule has been mapped out for this week. Tonight Cornell will perform at Yale and on Wednesday Princeton will play Columbia at the latter's gymnasium. On Saturday Yale will compete at Cornell and Princeton will invade the Dartmouth court. Marked interest is being shown in the two Yale games, although double victories will not put Yale in the lead.

With Penn idle, Princeton can take the league lead if it beats both Columbia and Dartmouth. This, however, is a pretty hard assignment. The Tigers are full of confidence, though, and believe they will triumph on both courts. Both Columbia and Dartmouth have shown power this year and the Tigers are not going to have anything like an easy time in either match.

Outside of league play, the feature game in the East last Saturday was the one between City College and St. John's. Both teams entered the game undefeated and each was determined to come out on top. After trailing most of the way, St. John's finally won 28 to 23. It was a stirring game throughout.

Pittsburgh is the leader in the East with ten victories and no defeats. St. John's comes next and then Rider College of Trenton, with seven victories. All told, thirteen teams are undefeated. In the group are Army, Lehigh and Amherst.

RUDDY SHOWS WAY IN COLLEGE TANKS

Is High Point Scorer in Swimming and Water Polo in League Series.

KOJAC IS NEAR THE TOP

Shares Second Place in Swimming With Wohl—Sobel Runner-Up in Water Polo.

Ray Ruddy, the young Columbia sophomore who holds all the outdoor metropolitan records from 440 yards to three miles, has made an auspicious entry into intercollegiate circles, for the former All Hallows star is showing the way for individual scoring honors in both the swimming and water polo divisions of the Intercollegiate Swimming Association races.

Ruddy in two meets, the first with C. C. N. Y. and the second with Rutgers, has amassed a total of three first places for a total of 15 points, while in the water polo he is far out in front with 91 tallies.

George Kojac of Rutgers and Joe Wohl, Syracuse performer, who three years ago were swimming on the same team at De Witt Clinton High School, are tied for second place in swimming, 3 points behind the Columbia speedster, while Captain Mike Steffen of C. C. N. Y. and Jorgenson, who wears the Blue and White colors, both fancy divers, are tied for fourth with ten counts each.

Kojac and Wohl, however, have competed in only one meet, whereas Ruddy and Jorgenson have taken part in two and the Lavender leader three. Both Rutgers and Syracuse have meets listed for this week, the former with C. C. N. Y. on Wednesday and the latter with Dartmouth on Saturday, while Columbia is idle, and each swimmer is almost certain to pass the Blue and White tank star.

Kojac, who finished second in the race for individual honors last season and who was undefeated in I. S. A. competition, winning two association titles as well as setting a new world's backstroke record in the N. C. A. A. championships, made an impressive start in this year's race when he won the 50 and 100-yard free styles and swam anchor on the winning relay to help defeat Columbia on Saturday. In both free style events the Olympic star came through with brilliant performances, his 0:23 3-5 in the 50 equaling the national intercollegiate record.

Ruddy and Sobel at present are dominating the water polo race, the Columbia star in two games having tallied 91 points, while the C. C. N. Y. centre forward in three encounters has registered 70. Johnny Howland, Yale swimming captain making his début as a water polo player, scored four touch goals against Penn to collect 20 tallies and take third place in the standing.

The individual scoring in swimming and water polo, standings of the teams and schedule for the week follow:

LARSEN WINS RACE IN LEGION SERIES

Running the Second Race of His Life, He Captures A. A. U. Event on Staten Island.

FISCHER IN SECOND PLACE

Hutton, Running His First Race, Is Third—Six-Mile Test Is Captured by Lamp.

Otto Larsen, who arrived from Norway last Spring and was running the second cross-country race in his life, triumphed over 35 other harriers in the second weekly A. A. U. three and a quarter mile run over the Silver Lake course, Staten Island, yesterday. The race was sponsored by the James J. Tappen Post, 125, American Legion.

In a six-mile run, Max Lamp of the Millrose A. A. beat two other contestants to the tape.

Racing through a heavy fog which hung around the reservoir course, the long-limbed Norwegian surprised the spectators with his capable stride. His time for the route was 16:41, three seconds slower than the time made last week.

In second place was Theodore Fischer of Stapleton, a former star of Curtis High School, and following him was Vincent Hutton, carrying the colors of New Brighton, competing for the first time in a run.

A New Wanamaker Furniture Plan!

FROM THE FOUNDER'S WRITINGS

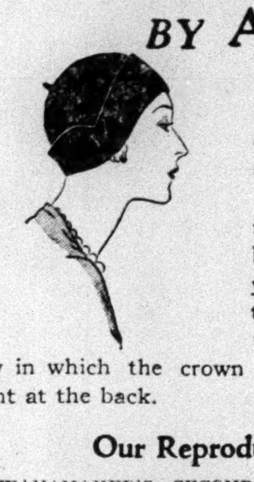
A Home Ruled With an Iron Hand

may be necessary sometimes, so let us be considerate not to misjudge each other and to hold back sharp words and have on hand at all times a full purse of soft words, which may mean more than gold to some sufferer who crosses our path.

John Wanamaker

Just from Paris

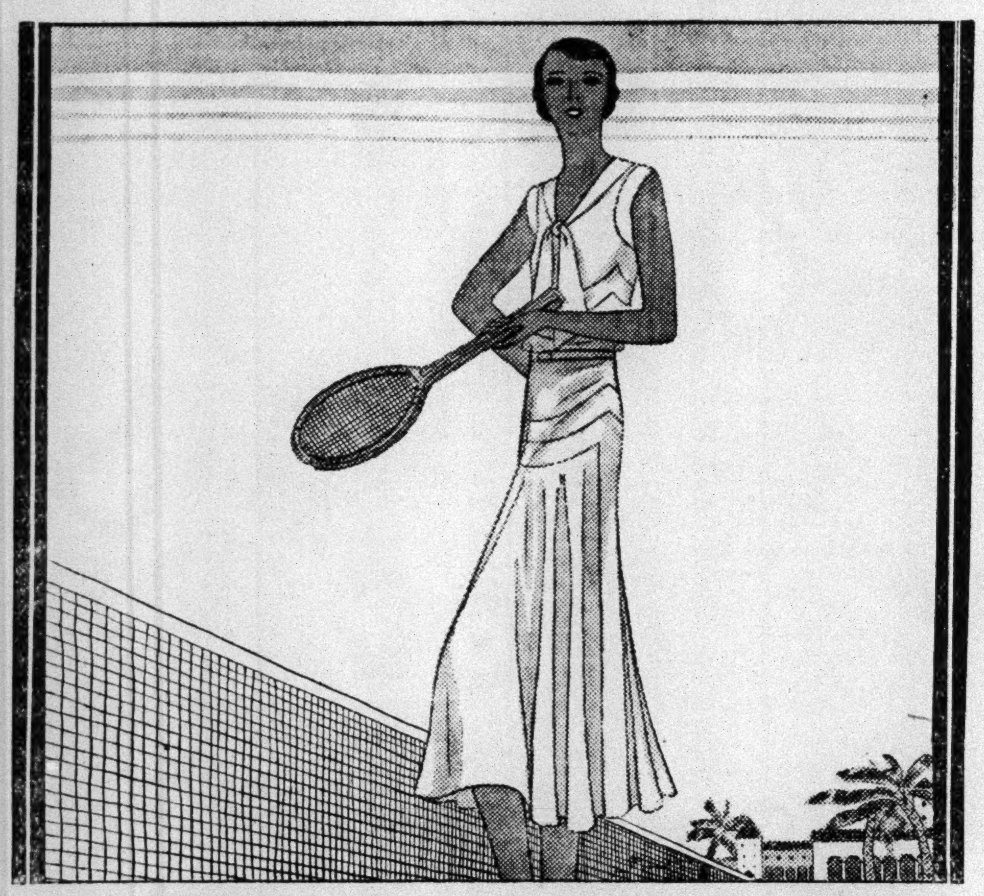
A New Bicorne BY AGNES



When it comes to "little hats that are different" no one has to her credit more successes than Madame Agnes ...and now all Paris is talking about this new little bicorne. It is very simple... yet extremely smart...with that important dressmaker touch revealed in the clever way in which the crown is shirred and drawn to a point at the back.

Our Reproductions—$15

WANAMAKER'S—SECOND FLOOR, OLD BUILDING.



For the Southlands—The Diana Sportswear Shop Suggests

Lelong's New Tennis Frock

Reproduced in Shantung or Crepe de Chine

$16.50

Everybody plays tennis at the Winter sunshine resorts...and many of the smartest women going South are choosing this Lelong model.

It is all the perfect tennis frock should be. Simple...yet a simplicity that is cleverly achieved through very skillful cutting. Very chic...in silhouette typical of the New Mode. Practical...allowing that freedom of movement that is so essential to the success of one's game. And, of course, it has that charming youthfulness that is a distinct characteristic of all Lelong's sports fashions.

The Wanamaker reproductions are made in colors that are exceedingly flattering to suntanned complexions...peach, yellow, tulip green, dusty rose, mauve, petal pink, turquoise blue...white, too.

The Diana Shop Also Suggests—

The Backless Bathing Suit...in wool jersey	$12.50
The New Beach Overalls...in linen	6.50
The Exercise Suit...linen, cotton, crepe, Shantung	16.50
The Candy Striped Boucle Sweater...with beret	19.50
The New London Trade Skirt...reproduced in flannel	5.95
The Meshenette Suit...with French batiste blouse	39.50
The Ondamoussa Coat...in pastel tones	39.50

New Coats—For Madame, $68

With beautiful imported furs

The $98 grade

From one of New York's finest makers...the minute you see these coats you'll realize that they are, indeed, extraordinary at this price!

For travel and spectator sports...or as that "extra" coat that every smart woman needs...coats of distincive tweeds, imported and domestic...with full length tuxedo collars of beaver-dyed or seal-dyed lapin. Green, misty blue, tan, brown or black.

Dress coats, too, of broadcloth...in wine red, green, tan or brown...with unusually full shawl collars and Paquin-type cuffs of beaver-dyed lapin.

WANAMAKER'S—SECOND FLOOR, OLD BUILDING

A Trio of New

Dressmaker Blouses

Beautiful new blouses...created by famous French couturiers for the femme elegante who wears a suit ...and in Paris that means practically every one!

Paquin delights in tucks...and the crescent-shaped tuckings in the front of this new blouse are a tribute to his great genius. Our reproductions...in flat crepe... Paquin green, beige and gray.............$16.95

gives this new blouse a bib-like collar...which, like the cuffs, she faces in a lovely harmonizing color ...and clusters of tiny tucks to mark its high waistline when it is not worn as a tuck-in. It is copied in flat crepe . . . black with white, or rose quartz with Vionnet rose.............$19.50 is another devotee of the two-toned blouse . . . and cleverly introduces a touch of contrasting color in the narrow tie and the triangular motifs on this new model. Reproduced in flat crepe...rose quartz with Vionnet rose, or eggshell with beige.........$19.50

Drecoll

BUY us out of the Furniture now on our floors and we pledge ourselves, with the cooperation of our manufacturers, to offer, at not less than 20 per cent discount, all the NEW furniture that will come into our stocks during January and February.

In the long history of Wanamaker's—not even in the famous Wanamaker 20 per cent deduction sale which became a world-wide sensation—have such furniture values been offered to America.

Discounts of 20 per cent.
Discounts of 33⅓ per cent.
Discounts of 50 per cent.

Choose from any of our furniture stocks—with the single exception of antiques, whose value increases with the years . . .

Make your selections from the great staple year-in-and-year-out furniture stocks . . .

From even the classic Belmaison reproduction furniture . . .

From the contemporary Venturus furniture . . .

From the teak-wood furniture in the Oriental Salon . . .

From the unpainted furniture in the housefurnishing store . . .

From the rarely-reduced office furniture . . .

From mattresses (except one trade-marked line)—

—And you will find no reduction less than 20 per cent whereas in former furniture sales the reductions began at 10 per cent.

This new drastic plan is put in operation in furtherance of President Hoover's leadership to stabilize prosperity, to keep factories going and workers in full employment to keep money and merchandise in motion so that prices to the public may be lowered as far as possible.

We repeat—so that all may understand—furniture buying is now more advantageous even than in the historic Wanamaker 20 per cent deduction sale of 1920 in which the public tried to buy us out of furniture, and almost succeeded.

SEEKS LOST PAPERS IN M'ADOO CASES

Liberties Union Says Property Taken in Two "Illegal" Raids Was Not Returned.

HE SIGNED THE WARRANTS

Complaints Were Dismissed, but Efforts to Recover Documents Failed, It Is Said.

OFFICIAL INQUIRY ASKED

Cases of Birth Control Clinic and Publisher of "Well of Loneliness" Are Cited.

Chief City Magistrate McAdoo, who has been investigating the disappearance of records in cases heard by Magistrate Albert H. Vitale, was asked yesterday to inquire into papers and property missing since they were seized by the police on warrants issued by the chief magistrate. The request was made by the American Civil Liberties Union.

The papers which the union charged had vanished were records taken in the raid on the Birth Control Clinic last April, and copies of the "Well of Loneliness" taken by John S. Sumner of the Society for the Suppression of Vice. Both proceedings were thrown out of court, the union pointed out.

The letter to the chief magistrate follows:

Chief Magistrate William McAdoo,
300 Mulberry Street,
New York City.

Sir:

We notice from the press that you are conducting an inquiry into certain files which have disappeared from a magistrate's court which might be of real moment in connection with the Judge Vitale inquiry.

May we suggest that at the same time you investigate the disappearance of papers in conection with a warrant issued under your own signature and presumably executed under your own personal control? We refer to the scandalous raid on the Birth Control Clinic undertaken on or about April 15, 1929. We are advised that requests have been made to you from time to time to investigate the failure of warrant officials to return the papers seized in that raid. It seems to us that failure to return property taken under your own warrant is even more important than the investigation of documents filed in some magistrate's court outside of your own personal control.

We also call to your attention, with our request for an investigation, the failure of Mr. John S. Sumner of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice to return to Covici, Friede, Inc., some fifty copies of the "Well of Loneliness" seized by Mr. Sumner under a warrant issued and signed by you and presumably executed under your orders and control. Repeated demands for the return of these books have been made without success, following the finding in court that they were not obscene.

We submit that an official inquiry by you would be of great value to the protection of citizens of this community from illegal proceedings accompanying the exercise of warrants. It may even be that such an inquiry might result in establishing generally the practice required by law, but now commonly disregarded, of returning property taken under warrants to persons ultimately held innocent of the crime charged. In both the Birth Control case and the "Well of Loneliness" case, the charges against the defendants were thrown out of court, but the innocent defendants continue to suffer the loss of their property as a result of warrants issued under your own signature.

It seems to us obvious that if warrant officials can illegally retain property taken on a warrant signed by the Chief Magistrate of the city, it would be difficult to secure better treatment of property seized under warrant issued by other magistrates.

We are, sir,

Very truly yours,
AMERICAN CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION.
HARRY F. WARD, Chairman,
ROGER N. BALDWIN, Director,
FORREST BAILEY, Director.

The subcommittee of the Association of the Bar which is investigating the judicial conduct of Magistrate Vitale will meet at the Bar Association Building, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, at 4 P. M. today. The magistrate will be questioned further in the presence of his attorney, Max Steuer.

GRAND JURY TO SIFT DRUG TRAFFIC TODAY

Tuttle Says Inquiry Will Disregard Where Trail Leads or Who Is Affected.

An investigation of the traffic in narcotics will be begun by the Federal Grand Jury today, in an effort to "get at the bottom of the whole subject, no matter where the trail may lead or who may be affected," United States Attorney Tuttle announced last night.

Mr. Tuttle said that "at least 85 per cent of all the principal narcotic drugs smuggled into this country come through the port of New York, which thereby becomes a distributing centre for the rest of the country."

The investigation is expected to reveal "the extent and sources" of drugs smuggling and the responsibility for the traffic. Further indictments may be expected, Mr. Tuttle hinted, and in addition, "all suggestions of corruption and collusion in the enforcement of the laws against the traffic" will be investigated, he said.

The Grand Jury will summon, not only the "ordinary witnesses but also experts who have made a study of this traffic," he declared. The investigation will not be confined to this city, but will take up the national and international phases of the peddling of narcotics.

Mr. Tuttle said that he would welcome information "which may be in possession of welfare organizations or individuals" pertaining to the traffic and would keep the source of such information confidential if desired.

$152 in Contributions in Day Puts Neediest Fund at $321,782

With contributions received yesterday the fund to relieve the Neediest Cases, as published in THE NEW YORK TIMES, came nearer by $152 to the mark of $338,111.01 set last year. Aid has been extended by 12,660 contributors, 381 more than gave last year, but the total gifts still are $16,328.94 below last year's. The present total is $321,782.07.

SEEK CHANGE IN LAW ON ROOMING HOUSES

Keepers Contend the Multiple Dwellings Act Works an Injustice on Them.

OFFER NINE AMENDMENTS

Complain Because Fire Hazard Clause Is Being Enforced Immediately.

Immediate efforts will be made to obtain amendments to the State multiple dwellings law with the object of doing away with alleged injustices to rooming-house keepers of New York, according to a decision reached yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the executive committee of the Furnished Room Owners' Association. The meeting was in the Hotel Hamilton, 143 West Seventy-third Street.

The meeting endorsed proposed amendments to the law and authorized the association's counsel, ex-Assemblyman Solomon Sufrin, to appear in their behalf at the hearing of the Mayor's committee on the law tomorrow.

According to Mr. Sufrin, the association has 1,200 members and voices the will of all rooming-house keepers in the city, with a real estate investment of $100,000,000. The rooming houses, said Mr. Sufrin, house 500,000 members of the white-collar class, and unless relief from the present situation is obtained many rooming-house owners will have to increase the rentals they charge.

One of the greatest hardships, it was asserted, was in the fact that the new provisions regarding fire hazards and requiring extensive and costly changes were being enforced immediately, without giving owners time to make the changes. Mr. Sufrin said that the association gave its support to the present law only on the understanding that a two-year period was to be allowed for these changes. Now, he said, owners were being haled into court for violations and were being fined, solely on the word of a tenement house or building inspector.

The association voted to press nine amendments embodying the relief it seeks.

RUDICH CRITICIZED IN SHOOTING CASE

Improperly Aided Policeman Accused by Wounded Negro Student, Group Charges.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, 69 Fifth Avenue, made public yesterday a letter sent to Chief Magistrate McAdoo assailing Magistrate Mark Rudich of Brooklyn and asking an investigation of his handling of the case of Ralph Baker, negro university student who was wounded on Sept. 9 last by Policeman Walter Lowe.

The patrolman, who was off duty, charged that he had tried to arrest Baker and another student of Lincoln University, William Fontaine, and that when they broke away he had shot Baker to halt his flight. The negroes made counter-charges against the policeman.

"The matter came up for hearing on Oct. 21 before Magistrate Rudich," the letter set forth. "When the first case was called, that of Ralph Baker, a formal complaint having been made against him charging him with assault in the second degree, before the first witness called to the stand had completed his testimony Magistrate Rudich adjourned his court, left the bench and requested the parties with their attorneys and relatives to repair with him to his chambers. It seems extremely likely, therefore, that Magistrate Rudich knew what the case was about and had probably talked to some one about it. He had not, however, talked with either of the attorneys for the two students; these attorneys being Morris L. Ernst and William T. Andrews.

"While in his chambers and in the presence of a high police official—Lowe's father, who is an inspector or lieutenant inspector in the Police Department—Magistrate Rudich urged a civil settlement upon Ralph Baker and his family to drop the matter, the figure most frequently mentioned being $500. He dwelt at length upon the poverty of Policeman Lowe. There was quite a lengthy dicussion, the matter being opposed by the attorneys who represented the students as well as by the relatives of young Baker and Baker himself."

The letter of the association, which was signed by Walter White as acting secretary, said that the organization was of the opinion that "such action" by the magistrate had amounted to an "attempt to compound a crime."

"To put it mildly," the letter said, "at the conference in his chambers he acted more in the manner of Patrolman Lowe's advocate than a dispenser of justice or referee."

A copy of the letter was sent to the Bar Association of Brooklyn, which, at the request of Mayor Walker, is analyzing the magistrate's fitness for reappointment to the bench.

Dr. Ryan Gets Legion Cross.

Dr. George J. Ryan, president of the Board of Education, has been honored by the French Republic for his war relief work for the benefit of devastated sections of France, it was announced yesterday. Word has been received of the award of the Cross of the Legion of Honor by President Gaston Doumergue of France. During the war Mr. Ryan was president of the Queens Chamber of Commerce, through which all the war relief work of that borough was carried on.

OLD-TIME BURGLAR SEIZED, FACES LIFE

Miller, Desperado of '90s, Now a Physical Wreck, Is Caught With 2 Pistols.

HE THREATENS SUICIDE

Special Guard Placed Over Broken Ex-Member of Notorious "German Housemen" Gang.

John Miller, described by the police as one of the few surviving members of the notorious "German housemen" band of burglars, was at headquarters yesterday charged with possession of two revolvers and a kit of burglar's tools. The prisoner, 63 years old and a physical wreck, refused to answer questions.

He has twice been convicted of burglary and once convicted of violation of the Sullivan law. Under the Baumes law, conviction on the latest charge may send him to prison for life. Miller threatened suicide and was put under special guard last night.

Detectives were checking back to determine whether Miller had not escaped from Joliet prison in Illinois. A remark he made to the arresting officers led them to believe that he had broken out of the prison. Efforts also were being made to connect him with more than 100 burglaries in Queens and in Nassau County.

He was arrested late Saturday night by Detectives Andrew Tiernan and Anthony Duane, who saw him standing in the kitchen of a house at 3320 160th Street, Flushing. They moved over to question the man and as they approached he made a quick movement toward his right-hand pocket.

Duane and Tiernan closed in and grasped his hands. They found a loaded revolver in the outside pocket and another suspended on a cord around Miller's neck. Several jimmies, a glass cutter, skeleton keys and flashlight completed the burglar's tools.

Miller gave his address as 270 Bowery. When word of the arrest reached Deputy Inspector Mulrooney he ordered the prisoner to Manhattan headquarters. It was upon Miller's arrival there that he was recognized by Lieutenant George Johnson as one of the "German housemen," a desperate group of men who never hesitated to shoot when detected in robbery. The band was active in the nineties.

Miller, who kept his hat on—an old-timer's trick to lessen the chances of being recognized—merely stared at the lieutenant. The prisoner, shabby and bent, looked hungry and woebegone. His faded eyes were sunk deep in his face and his cheeks were crisscrossed with lines. He gave no sign that he heard the questions put to him. Miller's record as given out by police is:

January, 1916, as Charles A. Grasshill, Queens; assault, Blackwell's Island; Special Sessions.

July, 1916, as Charles A. Grasshill, Queens; burglary; five and a half years in Sing Sing.

May, 1921, as Charles Marshall, Nassau County; burglary; five years; suspended sentence.

April, 1927, as Charles Marshall, Manhattan; violation of the Sullivan law. On the occasion he is alleged to have had three loaded revolvers and the record reads, "conviction—no disposition."

TWO MINERS SEALED IN BLAZING SHAFT

Kentucky Coal Pit Is Closed to Smother Fire After Flames Drive Back Rescue Volunteers.

HENDERSON, Ky., Jan. 12 (AP).—Aaron Bridwell, 33 years old, and Dorris Wood, 38, miners, who were trapped by an explosion yesterday in the Carl Melton coal mine near here, today were sealed in the blazing mine which probably will be their tomb. The sealing of the shaft was the only means of extinguishing the fire which effectually cut off the trapped men from rescue workers.

The two men were working 300 feet back in a slope mine, one that goes into a hillside, when the fire broke out in the entrance, trapping them. Gasoline from an engine pulling the mine car became ignited, spreading the fire and making the mine a blazing inferno. Carl Melton, owner of the mine, Emory Dixton and Pat Cages were working on the outside as the fire started. They attempted to reach the miners but could not get through the flames. Calls for mine rescue crews were sent to Evansville, Ind., and Madisonville and Sturgis, Ky., but it was late at night before they arrived on horseback and muleback. The roads in the vicinity are impassable for automobiles.

The volunteer workers labored heroically to stem the flames, but could make no headway. About an hour after the fire had started, a signal bell, operated by a cable from within the mine, rang once feebly. Watchers on the outside immediately dispatched the car into the flames, but it came out empty. It was then thought that falling timbers from the roof probably rang the bell.

At midnight last night G. P. Powell, Evansville Federal Mine Bureau inspector, announced that there was no chance for the men to be alive and ordered the mine sealed to smother the fire. The sealing was completed today. Inspector Powell said it probably would be at least four or five weeks before the mine could be opened, as the fire was expected to burn that long.

About 350 persons were at the scene early today to offer aid, including twenty-eight members of mine rescue crews.

Bridwell is survived by his widow and a 4-year-old son and Woods by his widow and an 8-year-old son.

$800,000 FOR CHARITY.

Jewish Federation Gets Pledges for Half of Philadelphia Quota.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 12.—A total of $800,000, nearly one-half of the annual quota to be sought by the Federation of Jewish Charities in Philadelphia, was subscribed in advance of a dinner here tonight starting the campaign, the thousand men and women in attendance were informed.

Justin P. Allman, president of the federation, announced that $1,750,000 would be required this year to meet the minimum needs of the more than thirty constituent organizations in the federation.

Policeman, on Crime-Hunt Bent, Finds Parrot Abandoned in Park in Fear of Strange Malady

Patrolman Charles Suss has been a graduate of the Police College for almost a full week. Six nights he has tramped his frosty beat in the cold hours between midnight and 8 A. M. Six nights he has tramped his beat aimlessly, hoping for something to happen. But Macon Street and Howard Avenue, in a far removed section of Brooklyn, were apparently devoid of crime. There was only silence and a little rain.

At 5 o'clock yesterday morning Suss and his still brightly varnished stick swung down Howard Avenue. The patrolman, as usual, was brooding on crime. He had just decided that the girl he was rescuing would have light hair and blue eyes. In another moment they would be in the Marriage License Bureau at the Municipal Building. But before that moment there came a cry from the middle of Saratoga Park.

"Hello, Jake," it said. "Hello Jake! Help! Help!"

Suss and his club streamed into the thin bushes of the park, guided by the racket and the calls for help. Suss remembered his undergraduate days and what he was told to do to gunmen. He grabbed his stick more firmly and plowed on. He was doing a neat bit of broken-field running when he suddenly burst into the clearing whence came the noise.

There he saw, instead of a double murder, a parrot running rampant in a two-foot gilt cage. The bird stopped howling when the patrolman arrived and conversationally remarked, "Hello, Jake."

Ten minutes later Suss had reported his find and was told to bring it to the Ralph Avenue Station. Lieutenant Dolan made a note of it—and then happened to think of the "parrot disease." He suspected that was why it was abandoned, and he more than suspected that was why it should not linger at the station. Hurriedly he got in touch with the property clerk at headquarters, but that individual wanted no parrots.

Dolan's next move was to call the Health Department. Dr. William Walker, brother of the Mayor, went over and examined the bird. He found that its only trouble was cold and hunger, but while he was reporting on that fact to Dolan the bird suddenly addressed him.

"Jake," it said. "Hello, Jake."

Late last night the parrot was in the basement of the station. It had been put in the Captain's room—until the Captain appeared—and into the detectives' room—until they arrived. Then it was taken to the cellar, pending becoming a gift to the Park Department today. It was still telling Jake all about it.

BILL WOULD COMPEL RISE IN TAXI RATES

Traffic Group's Act, Offered to Walker, Proposes 20 Cents for First Quarter Mile.

SETS UP CONTROL BOARD

Three Appointed by Mayor Would Frame All Rules—Smoking by Drivers Would Be Banned.

A mandatory rise in taxicab rates is fixed in a proposed new ordinance for cab regulation in the city which has been presented to Mayor Walker, the Citizens Street Traffic Committee announced yesterday.

Under the new ordinance which would place taxicab regulation in the hands of a board of control appointed by the Mayor, taxicabs would be required to charge 20 cents for the first quarter of a mile and either 5 or 10 cents for each additional one-quarter.

The ordinance has been drawn up at the request of the Mayor that the committee, headed by W. J. L. Banham, incorporate in this form the suggestions based on the findings of its five months' investigation of traffic conditions. The Mayor made this request last week when Mr. Banham outlined the main features of the new regulatory plan.

Franchise Plan Ignored.

At that time the Mayor indicated a belief that the time might come soon when taxicab service in the city would be placed on a franchise basis yielding revenues possibly as high as $10,000,000 yearly to the city. The proposed ordinance declares specifically that it is ignoring any suggestion of granting of franchises.

Mayor Walker advocated some method to replace the present regulation of taxicabs which he termed highly unsatisfactory. He asserted that the taxicab operators, despite the large sums taken in daily, were making very little money. The proposed ordinance, in fixing a definite rate of fare for the first quarter of a mile, departs from the present regulation which fixes a maximum, but the rate is considerably above the prevailing rate.

The proposed ordinance in prescribing rates within the city specifies that "no different rates shall at any time be charged or collected."

The schedule provides a charge of ten cents for each three minutes of waiting time. A maximum hourly rate of $3 and a minimum of $2.50 is also set forth in the proposed ordinance.

Suggests Board of Three.

The board of taxicab control which Mr. Banham outlined to the Mayor last week, would consist of three men appointed by the Mayor. This board would determine all taxicab regulations although enforcement would be left as now to the Police Department.

As one means of limiting the number of taxicabs to fulfill the purpose of the ordinance—the stabilization of taxicab operation in the city—a certificate of convenience and necessity from the control board would be required for each cab. Another section of the ordinance would specifically prohibit taxi chauffeurs from smoking.

Mayor Walker did not indicate any great enthusiasm for the proposed board of control when Mr. Banham suggested it in outline last week but he did profess considerable interest in other suggestions offered.

In a statement issued with a copy of the ordinance, Mr. Banham said that the committee was seeking speedy action on its recommendations that the present zoning ordinance be changed to permit parking structures in congested districts, and on its recommendation that the building code be changed to provide that future industrial buildings be built to enable trucks to unload and load within the property line.

A. F. OF L. IS PRAISED IN FURRIERS' REPORT

Help in Ousting Reds From Unions Especially Noted in Joint Council Statement.

SPECULATION IS ASSAILED

High Cost of Skins, Due to "Mad and Reckless" Competition, Cited as a Cause of Unemployment.

Recommendations to solve the problem of unemployment among New York furriers and the future of the local unions are made in a report of the Furriers' Joint Council, which will be submitted today to the convention of the International Fur Workers' Union in Montreal.

The report, signed by Charles Stetsky, manager of the council, describes last year's campaign which rid the unions in New York of Communist influence. Special mention is made of the cooperation in this phase of the work of the American Federation of Labor, whose special committee, consisting of Matthew Woll, Edward F. McGrady and Hugh Frayne, helped the local furriers to gain their objectives. William Green, president of the A. F. of L., is also praised for his assistance.

Part of the chapter on unemployment deals with the effect of the stock market slump on the fur industry. Other factors which are regarded as having contributed to unemployment are trade speculation in skins and the curbing of credit.

"The high cost of raw materials has brought about a most harmful state of affairs," according to the report. "The best brains in our industry assert with considerable emphasis that the high cost of raw materials is caused simply and solely by a mad and reckless spirit of competition that reigns within the camp of the raw merchants. Left to themselves, without any outward competition, they have driven prices sky high, way beyond and above the intrinsic value of the material, until they have made it practically dangerous for the manufacturers to produce."

The evil of the so-called "cooperation" shops is also discussed. These shops, it is said, employ no workers. A group of men form a partnership, get a little credit from skin dealers and some cash from jobbers. Then they set to work making garments for the jobbers.

"They work all hours, eking out less than a bare living," the report continues. "From an industrial point of view we question their right to existence. Both the raw material men and the jobbers drive hard bargains with these shops. Because he gives them what little credit he wishes, the skin dealer exacts the highest price for his material, and the jobber, because he pays cash, buys the fur garments at the lowest conceivable price. A most beautiful arrangement, as you see. With no overhead expense to speak of and drawing less than a self-respecting worker needs for a living, these 'bosses' manage somehow to worry through seasons to the detriment of the legitimate workers. Perhaps the contracting work that quite a few manufacturers are farming out to them, instead of employing union help, brings in a little money. But we have our doubts on that score."

HONORS RAILWAY VETERAN.

Hoover Greets Worcester Trainmaster Retiring After 53 Years.

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 12 (AP).—Thomas W. Carter, retiring after 53 years as trainmaster of the Boston & Albany Railroad, received a telegram of congratulation from President Hoover during a banquet in his honor here last night.

The wire, addressed to the chairman of the banquet committee, Timothy O'Leary, read:

"Please extend my congratulations to Mr. Thomas William Carter upon his long and faithful service as a railroad man and his useful public services and my best wishes for the future. Yours faithfully,

"HERBERT HOOVER."

The wire was filed from the White House.

Among those attending the banquet were Mayor Michael J. O'Hara and Charles Firth, general agent of the Boston and Albany.

15 COMPANIES QUELL BLAZE ON EAST SIDE

Dorman Travels 6 Miles in 12 Minutes to Fire Menacing Big Coal Pockets.

THREE FIREBOATS AID FIGHT

Flames Destroy Cooperage Yard and Damage Box Factories at 405 East Fourth Street.

Fifteen fire companies from all over lower Manhattan clanged their way through the narrow streets surrounding the juncture of Lewis and East Fourth Streets early yesterday afternoon to put out a fire in a cooperage plant near the Burns Brothers coal pockets on the near-by riverfront. They were aided by three fireboats. Of all the fire fighters to respond to the three alarms which sounded within five minutes of each other shortly after 1:05 P. M. the fastest and furthest traveler was Fire Commissioner John J. Dorman.

Commissioner Dorman was finishing his Sunday dinner in his home at East Twenty-second Street and Avenue M, on the outskirts of Flatbush, six miles from the blaze, when he was called on the telephone by Assistant Chief Joseph B. (Smoky Joe) Martin, who had responded to the second alarm. In twelve minutes the commissioner and his chauffeur, who lives near him, had covered the distance, traveling an almost perfect straightaway course from the fire official's house through Prospect Park and over the Manhattan Bridge, to the lower east side, where they found the fire just being brought under control.

The plant of the Rosenberg Cooperage Company, where the fire started, was on property in the rear of a six-story cement loft building at 405 East Fourth Street, used by paper box manufacturing concerns. The flames were first seen at the rear wall of the loft building by John Pollack of 166 Lewis Street, who turned in an alarm. Firemen found the cooperage yard a blazing heap of barrels, while the fire, which had already engulfed two large motor trucks, was spreading into the second floor of the loft building.

The fire demolished the cooperage yard and then fed on the papier mâché and corrugated cardboard boxes stored in the plant of the Eastern Paper Box Company on the second and third floors of the loft building. Several thousand persons viewed it from neighboring tenements. The blaze was extinguished after a half hour's work.

Damage was estimated unofficially at $50,000, sustained by the cooperage and box companies and by the Service Building Supply Company, which occupies a portion of the rear yard. Commissioner Dorman, who watched the firemen drag hose over the wet pavements from the protection of a large umbrella, said that a greater loss might have resulted were it not for the fireproof construction of the loft building.

He called attention to the "sluice run-offs," utilitarian gargoyles of steel that spouted, scupperlike, from every floor the excess water played on the paper stock by the Fire Department's hose lines. Some years ago, the commissioner said, a frame building unprovided with such "run-offs" and housing, as did the East Fourth Street loft, a paper box plant, collapsed from the weight of water-soaked cardboard.

SIX PERSONS PERISH IN OHIO FARM FIRE

Five Members of One Family and a Visitor Are Trapped Asleep by Flames.

FINDLAY, Ohio, Jan. 12 (AP).—Six persons, including five members of the same family, were burned to death early today when fire destroyed the farm home of Wilson Long, twelve miles east of here.

The dead are Wilson Long, 46 years old; his mother, Nancy Long, 78; his sister, Laura, 52; a daughter, Helen, 17; a son, Leroy, 4, and a friend, Leona Ewing, 14.

The fire started on the first floor of the home, where Nancy and Laura Long and the two girls were sleeping. It was the theory of authorities that a coal oil lamp had been upset and that the flaming oil spread the fire quickly. Before neighbors who discovered the fire could reach the occupants of the house, the structure was a mass of flames. Long and his son were asleep upstairs when the fire started.

After the smoldering ruins cooled late today, searchers found the bodies of the two women and two girls. No trace of the bodies of Long and his son were discovered.

Mrs. Wilson Long was visiting here last night and thus she escaped the fire.

NABS 72 NEW YORKERS IN NIGHT LIFE DRIVE

Bethlehem (Pa.) Mayor Warns Prisoners That Crusade Means End of Wide-Open Town.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 12.—"Your night life in Bethlehem is over," Mayor Robert Pfeifel declared in police court today. The Mayor took office on Monday and at once started a crusade which resulted in the arrest last night of seventy-two young men from New York City.

"We are not after your money, but we propose to maintain a clean city," the Mayor told the prisoners, as he remitted the usual fine of $25 to $50 in such cases, and instead imposed only costs of $2.50.

"But," he added, "while we are thus letting you off easy in order to prove that we are not running a fining mill here, as in the past was the case under the former administration, we intend to impress upon you that we mean business, and that if you must seek what you think is a good time, Bethlehem is not the place."

He ordered the police to take all the prisoners to the detective bureau and fingerprint them.

For several years Bethlehem has been frequented at week-ends by scores of New Yorkers attracted by a wide open city.

Mayor Pfeifel's first act after assuming office was to appoint the Rev. Fred Trafford, an Episcopalian clergyman, who has done considerable social work, as the Superintendent of Police.

Will Rogers in a Hurry To See Whole Nations Disarm

To the Editor of The New York Times:

ABOARD THE STEAMSHIP BREMEN, Jan. 12.—When I was a little boy out in the old Indian Territory I remember seeing a Sheriff disarm some men one time and it always fascinated me, but I had never seen it since, so when I got to New York last Friday and they told me they were going to disarm whole nations over in London next week, why I just grabbed the fastest thing there is, the Bremen, and now here I am away out in the middle of Lindbergh's ocean. All the hired help are on President Wilson's old commuting boat, the George Washington. We will pass them tonight some time.

I am feeling fairly good now, but if it gets rough you won't hear from me till I get my feet on some of the King's domain.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

STATE SOCIALISTS FLAY BOTH PARTIES

Preliminary Campaign Call Centres Fire on Roosevelt as Ally of Tammany.

NOMINATIONS ARE CITED

Republicans Are Assailed as Hopelessly Linked With Power Interests.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 12.—An attack directed at both Governor Roosevelt and the Republican party was contained in a statement issued today by the State executive committee of the Socialist party at the conclusion of its quarterly session.

The statement, which was in the nature of a call to voters of the State, was said to presage a vigorous Socialist State campaign against both of the old parties.

The Socialist statement declared that the Republicans in Albany are giving their "usual exhibition of service to the power trust and other vested interests." Turning to Roosevelt policies, it asserted that the Governor had linked his political fortunes to Tammany Hall, and his appointments of Tammany men were cited. While Governor Roosevelt has agreed to investigate public officials in Westchester and other Republican counties, he has refused many demands for an inquiry into various phases of the Walker Administration in New York, the statement declared.

Says Roosevelt Was Fooled.

The Governor "was fooled into endorsing an ill-advised grant of additional water power of Niagara to the power trust on unsatisfactory terms" and his legislative program is vague and "does not go to the heart of the problem, which is public distribution," it asserted.

The Governor did not act on prisons until after three serious riots, and then acted on a wrong policy; he has failed to advance proposals giving cities the right to tax land values, form public housing corporations and public transit corporations; he is silent on unemployment insurance and his proposals on old-age pensions are "tragically inadequate," were other charges.

The Socialist party, heartened by its showing in New York City last November and by marked increases in party membership and support since, will propose a number of bills on power control, old age, unemployment and general "social" insurance, injunctions, and other subjects in which the party is interested, it was said.

Public hearings and widespread agitation are to be attempted by the party as a groundwork for its campaign in the Fall.

The attack on Governor Roosevelt today was the first effort to line up the liberal and labor voters of the State in the Socialist column, leaders said.

The statement issued by the committee, in part, follows:

"The Republican party, which, in the New York City election, gave its usual exhibition of incompetence and collusion with Tammany, is now giving in Albany its usual exhibition of service to the power trust and other vested interests, yielding only partially and grudgingly to overwhelming demand for decent legislation for the general welfare.

"The Democratic party, which in New York City is the party of the old Tammany unashamed, the party of salary grabs and corrupt courts, at the State Capitol assumes a somewhat liberal mask. Governor Roosevelt, with one eye on Washington, seeks to revive a Wilsonian tradition. But the exigencies of politics force him to ride to power, if at all, on the back of the Tiger. Like the celebrated young lady of Niger, 'they'll come back from the ride with the lib'ral inside, and the smile on the face of the Tiger.'

Appointments Are Cited.

"Of this the Governor's administrative acts give proof. He appointed as his Secretary of State Eddie Flynn, whose real job is to run the Democratic party of the Bronx. He appointed to the important Port Authority McCooey's young man Murray. He was an accomplice in Tammany's discreditable elevation of that wealthy Italian lawyer Bertini, unknown save for his recent fine for smuggling, to the General Sessions bench.

"His legislative program is the usual liberal effort to take as many of the Socialist immediate demands as he dares and to spoil them in the taking. He has added to his demand for public development of water power a demand for public ownership of transmission lines which it seems are to be leased to private concerns. The whole plan is dangerously vague and does not go to the heart of the matter which is public distribution. At the very least a minimum power program requires authorization for municipal and power district authorities to buy or produce and distribute power to the citizens. Such public bodies should have prior claim to State-produced powers, but we should not wait to create them until the vexed legal questions between the United States and Canada, the United States and New York State, and Canada and the Province of Quebec concerning the St. Lawrence water rights are settled.

"Just as the State should authorize municipal and power district action, so should it give cities power to tax land values, to form public housing corporations for the abolition of slums, and public transit corporations. On this comprehensive program the Governor is as silent as the Republicans."

RAIN AND FOG BLOCK HUNT FOR TWO FLIERS

Pilots Stand By Planes All Day Waiting to Press Search for Marra and Kirkpatrick.

HOPE TO GET OFF TODAY

Coast Guard Finds No Clues to Aviators Who Went Up on Altitude Test Flight.

BUT REPORTS POUR IN

Port Jefferson Man Says He Heard Craft Close By on Friday, but Could Not See It in Mist.

Rain, sleet and fog blocked further search yesterday for Pilot Daniel Marra and his observer, William Kirkpatrick, who vanished on an altitude test flight from Farmingdale, L. I. Meanwhile there were reports that the plane had been heard on Friday skimming over the Sound and the north shore of Long Island.

All available pilots stood by their planes yesterday ready to take off on investigations of the reports with the first break in the weather and many stayed at the hangars last night to be able to get off early this morning if it clears.

Messages came pouring in to the Fairchild Airplane Manufacturing Company plant all day yesterday, and the men conducting the search had a huge map before them charting out the areas covered by the stories told. The may has been divided into sections and each section will be assigned to a group of searchers today.

The Coast Guard patrol, which has been conducting an intensive search of the offshore waters, reported no trace of the plane up to a late hour last night.

Unofficial reports came from all quarters of the East in response to the widespread appeal for news of the plane broadcast on Saturday. Rewards for a clue to the plane of the fliers offered by the company and Mrs. James Kirkpatrick of Bloomfield, N. J., mother of the observer, have been increased to $1,000 and $500, respectively.

In addition a woman residing in New York who wishes to remain anonymous has offered a reward of 100 shares of Aviation Corporation of Delaware stock to the person or persons who find the missing aviators, it was announced. This woman made the offer in memory of her son, a pilot, who was killed in an airplane accident.

The search will continue until all points within the range of the plane on land have been exhausted and further hope abandoned, M. G. (Dan) Beard, chief test pilot of the Fairchild company, announced last night. It is expected that the low-pressure area now covering the metropolitan district will move off some time today, making further plane surveys possible.

Beard said that among the most promising clues was one from William Davis of Port Jefferson, L. I., who told of having heard a plane flying low on Friday morning at 10 o'clock, an hour and a quarter after the plane had vanished into the clouds. Davis said that he and a companion had been on Rocky Point on the north shore of Long Island when the plane came from the west across the Sound. He said that the fog had been so dense that although the plane had passed quite close to him he could not even see its outline. The backwash of the propeller disturbed the low-hanging mist, however, after the plane had gone, he added.

The story of Davis and his companion indicated that the plane had turned about and headed back across the water toward Connecticut. The Sound is fifteen miles wide at this point.

Beard is to send a motor boat out at that point this morning to interview the lighthouse keepers on Long Island Sound.

Several planes of the Western Air Express have been over the route between Las Vegas and Salt Lake City since Graham left the Nevada town, it was stated at the air service headquarters here today, but because of the thick weather they were forced to fly "blind."

While there are numerous emergency landing fields between St. George and this city, there are telephones at only a few of them. Graham is said to have been well provided with food and blankets. He was flying an open cockpit plane and carried no passengers.

BACKER'S ARREST ENDS EGYPT FLIGHT PLAN

Sponsor, Who Got Pledge of $25,000, Sent to Bellevue After It Is Shown He Never Was in Air.

An ambitious project to fly from Egypt to New York, to which a wealthy Egyptian was said to have pledged $25,000, came to an end here Saturday, when George A. Clarke, 29 years old, who described himself as an electrical engineer, of 331 East Sixty-fifth Street, pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct before Magistrate Gotlieb in Night Court and was committed to Bellevue Hospital for ten days' observation.

Clarke's arrest and arraignment followed an attempt to induce Felix J. Frazier of 18 West Fifty-first Street, former Lieutenant of Aviation, to aid the scheme. Frazier told the police he had gone so far as to introduce Clarke to his friends, who pledged $15,000 toward the project before his suspicions of Clarke were aroused, and inquiry showed that the supposed aviator had never flown.

Frazier said Clarke admitted that he was a fraud, and in Night Court Clarke said he had no intention of taking any money.

Army to Buy 70 Planes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—One of the largest single airplane orders awarded to an American factory since the war probably will soon be given to the Keystone Aircraft Corporation of Bristol, Pa. It is for the construction of seventy large bombers for the Army Air Corps.

The contract, which will be for more than $2,000,000, has not been approved, but it is expected that final action will soon be taken.

A "COURSE" IN ENFORCEMENT.

While awaiting the special report on prohibition which it is expected will be sent to Congress today by the President's Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement, note should be taken of the elaborate inquiries set on foot by it, as stated by Mr. WICKERSHAM in the summary published on Saturday. So far as the facts are concerned, he gives the country nothing new. He simply tells us that which we all do know. But in order some day to arrive at added knowledge, and to coordinate and apply it, eleven subcommittees have been created and are at work. Most of them are aided by experts. Some of them have blocked out a labor which, at a low estimate, would cover two or three years. And the entire list of subjects to be investigated, tabulated, interpreted and brought to publication after long and intense labors reads like a university curriculum. It is as if the President's Commission had set up a new department, with endless majors and minors and electives, with provisions for research and the writing of theses equal to anything attempted in other branches of human learning anywhere in the world. There is an immense apparatus for "fact-finding," though the chances are that the facts will be so late in being discovered that a new set will have pushed them out of the field by the time they are made known.

No blame attaches to the Commission for the leisurely and comprehensive way in which it has gone about its work. In the nature of the case it was compelled to set up a complicated organization, with a minute division and subdivision of labor. What it was asked by Mr. HOOVER to do was to go over fields of inquiry which had already been thoroughly gleaned by State crime commissions, by committees of lawyers, and by students of courts and penology. To endeavor to grasp and bring together intelligibly this vast body of findings was too much to ask of any one man or of any one commission. The job had to be broken up into many fragments and confided to many hands. If these eleven subcommittees are to be more successful than their predecessors, or are to be able to throw new light upon problems which have been viewed and discussed in every possible light, they will have to exhibit an industry and ingenuity beyond ordinary mortals. And they will have to work longer than is customarily required in order to obtain a university degree. But if the thing had to be done at all, this was the only way to do it. The fear remains that when the volumes of the completed investigation are published, they will merely say, like the preliminary report, undisputed things in a very solemn way.

THE CHURCH AND THE SCHOOL.

The Pope's encyclical sounds a note that will startle Americans, for it assails an institution dearest to them—the public school—without which it is hardly conceivable that democracy could long exist. As was said only yesterday by a critical authority, despite its shortcomings and mistakes, the public school has "already contributed to society more "than all other agencies combined." Under its tuitions not only are the elemental lessons which the race has learned taught to children of diverse traditions, racial qualities and religious faiths, but these children have been prepared to live together as citizens in a self-governing State. If the declaration of the encyclical were scrupulously obeyed by those to whom it is addressed, the public school would be emptied of all its Catholic pupils except as the Bishop in his discretion in special circumstances may permit them to remain. The language of the encyclical is:

> We, therefore, confirm our previous declarations and sacred canons forbidding Catholic children to attend anti-Catholic, neutral or mixed schools, by the latter being meant those schools open equally to Catholics or non-Catholics.

If other churches were to make like claim—that is, that "the educative mission belongs pre-eminently" to them for their children—and were to lay like inhibitions, the very foundations of this Republic would be disturbed.

Probably the Pontiff had Italy specially in mind, but his encyclical is addressed to the world, and must be assumed to have the same authority here in his Church. One wonders whether he, with all his wisdom, does not know with what civic fervor Catholics and Protestants, Jews and Gentiles alike unite to support what he calls "neutral" or "mixed" schools. One outstanding illustration of the championing of the public school by a Catholic is former Governor SMITH's official and personal aggressive interest in the public schools of this State. It is a matter of common knowledge that no Governor in recent times has done more in their behalf or has had a more intelligent and persistent concern for their betterment. Yet the encyclical (which recalls earlier encyclicals and canons of similar import) would, if followed in its letter and spirit, tend to tear down what this Catholic Governor was active in building up. It would, by implication, also forbid a devout Catholic to teach in a school in which Catholic doctrine is not permitted to be taught.

Even if the teaching of religious doctrine is forbidden in public schools, since several faiths are usually represented in every school, "every Christian child" (and every other child of whatever faith its parents may be) "has the right to "be taught in conformity with the "doctrines of the Church." In this State and in many others provision is made in the school program for excusing pupils so that they may at certain hours in the school week attend upon religious instruction outside of the school. Nor does the State oblige any child to attend a public school if satisfactory instruction in subjects deemed by the State essential to citizenship is given it in a private or church school. No claim is made here that the child exists for the State; but the State for the child's sake in manhood and womanhood and for its own sake must see that every child has an opportunity to be "maximally competent" according to its gifts. As EMERSON said, "To make the wise man the State exists"; and that means to help make each capable of his highest wisdom, working through the family and with the spiritual agencies existing within the State.

THE REAL MAYOR CURLEY.

In his canvass for a third term Mayor CURLEY of Boston said that the Good Government Association ought to support him. This was regarded as facetious. That is the trouble with being a wit, a humorist, a multitudinous "mixer"; to be blessed of the Blarney Stone and have a genius for politics. Substance is forgotten in the accidents. Mayor CURLEY knows his business. His third inaugural deals practically with instant problems and looks intelligently to the future. He will invite 350 citizens, representatives of organizations that may be said to mirror the ideal and the material interests of the city, to be advisers of the City Planning Board in making a fifty-year program of municipal improvement.

He may have to plead long with the Legislature to allow Boston to fix her tax and debt limit, even the amount of money she may spend on sewer construction. A Democratic, and therefore wicked, community must be kept in leading-strings by the virtuous ruralists of the General Court. Long, too, before the cities and towns within the metropolitan area agree to the creation, in any form, of Greater Boston. Mr. CURLEY compares the Boston situation with that of London before the establishment of the County Council. A metropolitan government under the borough system or the development of a regional plan for the area should be adopted. He recognizes, of course, that nothing can be done except through the consent and union of the towns and cities which it is hoped to include.

Some of these are of historic name and pride. All inherit a tradition of town government. Brookline, indeed, scorns to be a city and prefers to be ruled by its own wise and good. Minor politicians fear that they will become minus. Finally, whatever the present composition of the population, a strong Yankee trace survives. For instance, how convenient it is for Boston's neighbors to let her pay for that enlargement of transportation facilities which they help cause and profit by.

"Pre-eminently a document of "social and health progress, its "plans are capable of realization," if the city authorities get and respect the private cooperation which the Mayor asks, The Transcript says. The address receives praise from all sides. Mr. CURLEY's acts speak more loudly. Of Mr. SILVERMAN, the new Corporation Counsel, assistant under the old, The Boston Herald, after praising his ability, tells us that nobody knows whether he is a Republican or a Democrat. Former Congressman CONRY is the new Traffic Commissioner. Traffic in that perverse and crooked generation of streets and alleys in the old parts of the town was hard enough in the age of horses. An East Boston descendant of sailors, as port director Mr. CONRY studied water, freight and motor traffic.

Presumably he will now renew an old plan of his to pull down the virtually unused structure of the elevated road on Atlantic Avenue and make a thoroughfare for vehicles. He would put ramps here, ramps there, along the elevated. He has been working on remedies for congestion these twenty years. Incidentally, he finds congestion in the Traffic Department's payroll; too many persons employed. In other departments Mr. CURLEY notes a congestion amounting to $250,000 paid for superfluous overtime work. Our Watch Tower man is impressed with the Mayor's popularity. If he keeps on as he has begun, he will even be popular with the Good Government Associates. At least, he is giving them what they say they want.

A NOVELTY AT ALBANY.

A new aspect is given to the vexed power question at Albany by the action of the Niagara-Hudson Corporation. This is the company which owns or controls nearly all the power and light concerns up the State. Now the chairman of its board of directors, Mr. CARLISLE, requests Governor ROOSEVELT to call a public hearing, at which the whole matter may be threshed out with State officials and the Legislature and the representatives of the power companies, together with all private citizens who may be interested and care to attend. The special significance of the proposal lies in the fact that this great holding company offers to lay bare its entire business. It has nothing to conceal. It professes to be just as anxious as the Governor to find out and adopt the very best means of utilizing the water power of the State for the benefit of all the people. Mr. CARLISLE asserts that he and his company are anxious to cooperate in every way with the Governor and the Legislature in trying to find the right solution of a problem which has too long been made the plaything of politicians.

It is doubtful whether one open hearing of this kind, or a half dozen, will result in a decision agreeable to all. But it would be a fine way of clearing the air of suspicion and of putting an end to baseless charges. The very fact that this large corporation comes forward in a spirit of frankness and with a desire to be guided by the collective wisdom of the Legislature and informed public opinion shows what an advance has been made in these affairs. Instead of secret lobbying and attempts behind the arras to suborn the support of party leaders and men influential in public life, the Niagara-Hudson Corporation steps forward with readiness to let light in upon all of its activities and intentions. This act is not held up as one of miraculous virtue. It is just common sense and good business and enlightened self-interest. Whatever the outcome, the demonstration has been made that we have entered into a new era, as respects all such plans and policies, when everything that is done is open and aboveboard.

THE SKYSCRAPER VERDICT.

Since the primary object of the Regional Plan Committee was to draw a plan, its earlier reports dealt largely with those elements of metropolitan growth which could be thought of as conforming to an orderly pattern of highways and waterways, transportation facilities and rapid transit lines, parks and parkways, industry and residence. A city, however, has not only length and breadth, but height; not only streets and avenues, but skyscrapers. No one familiar with the skyline of New York would think of trying to find an answer to the riddle of her future in the horizontal plane alone. It is to the problem of vertical growth, of building heights and bulks, that the committee addresses itself in its latest report.

Into the controversy over the effect of tall buildings, Mr. ADAMS steps fearlessly. He accepts the skyscrapers, rejects the yard-stick measure of density, and bids the tall buildings pierce the clouds to their hearts' content, but insists that they be properly spaced and that the surrounding buildings be shrunk to make way for them. The skyline that he visions for the city of the future is not the dead level of London or even the great massifs of midtown Manhattan, but one in which giants rise among the pigmies: buildings a thousand feet tall surrounded by sixty-footers—or, better yet, by parks and open spaces. The committee believes in "unrestricted height on 25 per cent of "lots, with a lessening of height on "the remainder."

Mr. ADAMS and his associates are haunted by the ghosts of ten to twenty story buildings still unborn. To mitigate their anxiety, bear in mind that building heights in New York are now controlled by the zoning resolution, which prescribes limits based on the width of streets. The "two times" district, for example, prevailing in mid-Manhattan, permits 200-foot buildings along the avenues and 120-foot buildings on the side streets, with set-backs and towers in addition. But the average building height today, even in this congested area, is only a little over five stories, or say fifty feet. If all the city were to be built up to the limits allowed by the existing zoning resolution, no one could move about the streets at all. So the committee proposes to cut down the plateau from which the skyscraping peaks of the future are to spring. Mr. ADAMS hints at a general building level of six stories.

To mold the future city into this challenging form will clearly require drastic revision of the present zoning resolution. Those hitherto opposed to any further limit on skyscrapers may be mollified somewhat by the committee's concessions, but their places on the opposition benches may be taken by thousands of small property owners left wondering why they should have to make way for the big fellows by accepting a normal height limit of anywhere from sixty to 100 feet. Nor does the scheme afford much hope for substantial relief from congestion in those restricted areas where mammoth building operations have already put an intolerable burden on existing traffic and transit facilities. "The Regional Plan recognized the "'futility of attempting any ideal "program of zoning in the two or "two and one-half times districts "along the backbone of Manhattan,'" Mr. ADAMS declares. At least he has been able to suggest a method whereby the future city may avoid repeating past mistakes and come to enjoy a more orderly and spacious growth.

BEAUTIFYING THE ROADSIDES.

The expansion of the Committee for the Restriction of Outdoor Advertising into a new organization known as the "National Council for the Protection of Roadside Beauty" is as reasonable as it is encouraging to all who followed the original work of the old committee. That organization took the leadership in demanding the removal of billboards which defaced the landscape, and within a few months had received nation-wide support in its work. From all the States in the Union came quick and hearty responses. Civic and social organizations joined in the campaign. The newspapers took up the subject.

This first work was necessarily restrictive. Now comes the logical succession—constructive work. This has as its purpose to encourage the improvement of roadside conditions by such means as the planting of trees and the "cleaning up" of property fronting the highways. It dovetails with the improvement of wayside stands for the sale of farm products and with the beautifying of filling and service stations. The motoring public of America—which comprises at least half the adult population—favors these improvements. What has been lacking heretofore has been an organization to focus attention upon them.

The methods used by the new National Council for Protection of Roadside Beauty are interesting because they are practical. In North Carolina, for example, the president of the council, Mrs. W. L. LAWTON, who was the prime mover in the old Committee for the Restriction of Outdoor Advertising, has been addressing local meetings and making the following specific suggestions:

(1) That the Highway Department of the State enforce the existing laws with respect to roadside signs and to the protection of trees and shrubs within three hundred feet of the highway.

(2) That the Legislature be asked to authorize the Highway Department to spend 1 per cent of its funds for roadside improvement.

(3) That a local campaign be started to clean up and plant the approach to the town, seeking advice from the Forestry and Highway Departments as to planting.

In this connection the work of the State of Michigan is a shining example. Already more than 600 miles of Michigan roads have been planted with trees. This is done under the supervision of a landscape engineer employed for the express purpose of organizing and directing the planting by local civic groups. Other States also are spending money for this sort of work. When public opinion comes to appreciate the full value of these endeavors, it will give support to them in an ever more effective manner. In helping to stimulate such opinion the new National Council for the Protection of Roadside Beauty can perform a great public service.

A MEMORIAL GIFT.

Four years ago Mr. WILLIAM B. WARD presented to the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor a piece of property in Dutchess County, to be used as a home for aged people and to be maintained through funds he supplied as a memorial to his father, ROBERT BOYD WARD. He and the committee chosen to develop the project planned carefully to secure permanence, and though he died last February his benevolence is still gaining in the breadth of its effect. The association has just published a long and beautifully illustrated report of the story of the past four years at Ward Manor.

When the gift was made the property consisted of a thousand acres, partly wooded, partly fields no longer under cultivation and heavily overgrown, and a large gray stone house with several barns and farm cottages. Some of the latter had almost fallen to pieces in ten years of vacancy, but the barns and the manor house itself had been stoutly built, and the leaded casement windows, the wrought iron doors, the red tile roof and limestone chimneys and the wide fireplaces needed no repairs. The original plan was somewhat modified, because it was soon seen that the elderly people who were to find permanent homes in the manor house would have no use for many of the other buildings. They would want flower and vegetable gardens, stables and other shelters for the sheep, cattle, chickens and horses, but they would not need all of the land nor all of the buildings which could be restored. So farm cottages were rebuilt and turned into Summer camps and convalescent homes for city children.

All of the men and women now living in the manor house want a share in keeping it clean and beautiful. Their average age is not much less than 75, and some of them use canes or crutches, but most of them greatly enjoy taking an active part in gardening, painting and repairs, cooking and other housework. When the weeds begin to get ahead of the man who makes himself responsible for the truck garden, he sends a call to the boys' camp for help. Some of them leave the work they are doing on their island camp and rush to the rescue. Ruins of the horse stables were cleared from the little peninsula which the boys call "the island," and they are still at work protecting the borders of their Summer home from the waters of the Hudson River. Young and old at Ward Manor are fortunate in having pleasant occupation in a beautiful setting and with the assurance that it all will not be snatched from them. The whole is a charity remarkable and fruitful both in generous conception and in skillful execution.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

The Harrisses Retire. A "successful failure" is the characterization by Editor and Publisher of the withdrawal of JULIAN HARRIS and his wife from the joint editorship of The Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer-Sun. For ten years Mr. and Mrs. HARRIS had made this paper notable for its aggressive contributions to public service. It was a beacon of fearless liberalism in the South. It won a battle against the Ku Klux Klan, waged on so high and courageous a plane that the award of the Pulitzer Prize was one of the most popular designations the selecting committee ever made.

When the paper's financial difficulties resulted in loss of control by Mr. HARRIS, he and his wife remained in editorial capacities. But the crusading editor soon found that he could not accustom his pen to the policies of the new ownership.

Commenting further on the withdrawal of "Uncle Remus's" militant son, Editor and Publisher stresses the fact that, possessed of a fine editorial mind, Mr. HARRIS sought to manage the paper's business affairs at the same time. For business he had no "winning spirit." If he could have employed a good business executive, and pursued his editorial function without reference to the commercial side of the paper, the story might have been different. Certainly the experience of other and equally honest liberal papers has proved that they can prosper. But, whatever the fault, there is need in the South for an editor like JULIAN HARRIS.

Getting Rid of the Federal Building. It is pleasant to learn that responsible groups of business men in this city are hard at work trying to find some way by which the old Federal Building in City Hall Park may be razed. Under the auspices of the Merchants' Association, eight men of the highest standing in the community have agreed to serve as an executive committee to see the project through.

It is not enough to find acceptable sites for the new postoffice building and court house. Before any exchange can be made the city and the Federal authorities must agree on terms. So far they have not been able to do so. The two parties to the bargain have been far apart on their estimates of the value of the real estate parcels involved in the transaction.

Here is where the Real Estate Board, whose president is a member of the new committee, may be able to help. It has undertaken to furnish Mayor WALKER with an expert appraisal of the different sites, in order that he and the representatives of the Treasury Department may obtain a "correct perspective of the whole situation."

Farming From Apartments. The "fantasy" of the gentleman in the Middle West who predicts that farmers will soon be living in apartment houses and will drive to their farms over weather-proof roads in the morning, returning at night in time to enjoy a dinner with orchestra, is full of sound and fury.

In its practical details it leaves something to be desired. With the basement taken up with garages, there will be no place for the cows—perhaps rendered superfluous by the use of canned milk. Furthermore, there will be nothing to protect the crops from non-farming apartment dwellers of the sort that nowadays help themselves to the farmers' growing things.

But much more serious is the prospect of dining to orchestral music instead of to those familiar sounds which enliven the farmers in their present-style homes. To be sure, visiting would be easier, and there would be more company. But the thought of having to live as do the city folks would dampen the spirits of most real sons of the soil.

As a matter of fact—barring the communal orchestras, heating plants, &c.—the idea is as old as Europe. There are still villages of farmers in that part of the world—farmers who live in closely adjoining houses and go forth to their labors in the morning. Why introduce apartments when these communal settlements can be reproduced?

Right and Left. It is interesting to note that German physiologists have taken up the study of ambidexterity. They are asking whether it would not be an advantage to teach a child to use both hands alike. Exact statistics about the number of left-handed persons are not available, but it is inferred that the vastly larger number of right-handed is due to teaching and example in childhood.

It is a question which was discussed with animation in England and this country, many years ago. The novelist CHARLES READE argued that everybody should be ambidextrous. As it was, he pointed out, the most delicate thing done by a human hand, as well as the most brutal, is done by the left hand. He referred to the fingering of a violin and the "left hook" of the prize-fighter.

The opinion of most physiologists appears to be that equal use of both hands is not desirable. There is a better division of labor in the brain and in the nervous system when one hand is dominant over the other. It is also known that if the right hand is disabled the left hand can be taught to take its place in almost everything. Not long ago a leading American artist who had lost the use of his right hand trained himself to paint with his left so perfectly as to rival his former work in every point of technique.

Saving a Few Millions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In these days of high finance, half billion city budgets and playing at high stakes, a saving to taxpayers of two, three or four million dollars on one undertaking does not seem to be worth while bothering about. Nevertheless, I venture to call attention to the proposed purchase of the Harmon plot in Flatbush for the Hunter and City Colleges at an expense of five to five and a half million dollars.

It is true that the site has the advantage of being an assembled unencumbered acreage. On the other hand, many people object to it on account of its close proximity to the Long Island Railroad freight trains. But my main objection is that there are other large and more accessible plots in Brooklyn, which could be obtained at a cost of less than one million dollars. The erection of the colleges in any one of these cheaper neighborhoods would build up new civic centres and enhance the taxable values of property around them.

The cost of the land is only one item in the total expense of college establishment, and it might be worth while to spend a little less on plots and buildings, and spend more on the teaching staff and needful equipment.

Why the Trees Die.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is pitiful to watch the slow but steady death of the trees in Madison Square and other city parks. Each year dead branches are cut away until we have the gruesome spectacle of great trees with trunks a foot or more thick but with only a few misshapen branches.

It is all so unnecessary, and is due to the gross ignorance of those who are supposed to care for the trees. Work enough is done, but it is the wrong kind of work. The trees are starving to death for lack of nutrition. The soil in which the roots are hunting in vain for food has been exhausted long ago and is never replenished.

Each year, about this time, loads of manure are brought to the square and spread in little rings two or three feet wide around the trunk of each tree where there are practically no feeding roots whatever and this manure is entirely wasted. If only the caretakers could remember that the feeding roots of a tree are in an outer radius, approximately the same as that of the growing branches, and would spread their fertilizer in a broad band covering this outer radius, the trees would be fed and we should have a wonderful renewal and preservation of their vitality.

WORDS TO A TASKMASTER.

Lo, Love, and here thou hast thine own again.
Take it with usury; I would not hold
One coin with thy fair image on its gold
For all the treasures of thy vast demesne.

I was thy servant for a space, and fain
To test thy kindness; rumor made me bold.
My wages were an agony untold,
And torment, and intolerable pain.

So now I pray of thee to let me go.
Others there are meet quarry for the chase;
Level at them the all-victorious bow
And send them reeling from their prideful place.
But as for me, in pity pass me by,
The broken thing that cannot fight nor fly.

"A BANK AND A MAN."

Appreciation of Governor Smith's Work for the County Trust Co.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I congratulate you on your editorial, "A Bank and a Man"? No finer tribute has ever been paid to our "Beloved Governor." I wish it could be printed in every paper in the United States.

The night of Mr. Riordan's death and the days following was undoubtedly the most difficult period of Governor Smith's life. There were many elements entering into the situation: the business considerations, his deep affection for Mr. Riordan and the anguish of the latter's children. How well he met every phase of the tragedy you have stated eloquently.

MAE E. BYRNE.

New York, Jan. 11, 1930.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial of today about "A Bank and a Man" calls—or, rather, recalls—our attention to Alfred E. Smith and to his worthy character in the following words: "He had long been known as a man of high courage and resourcefulness, with a fine grasp of financial matters and an instinctive sense of public opinion, along with a desire to do public service. He acted with great boldness. He took chances which most men would have regarded as desperate. Once more this son of the east side was able to do a great service. He had his innate instinct for doing a big thing in a big way, making light of individual hazard and fixing his eyes solely upon the work to be done. When Alfred Smith responded, the whole community knew that a real man was on the job."

Well, yes. Yes, indeed. But is not this unnecessary repetition? What have we to do with Mr. Smith now? He is "ours" no longer, and we regret our loss. It fills us with pleasure to read that he continues to be the man of noble character who served us so well, but it recalls our sadness at his retirement to private life, and it somehow makes us feel that he is not where he belongs. It makes us wish that we could take him away from his bank (and his building), prevail upon him to reenter the service of the whole community, and claim him again as our own.

Praise of Alfred Smith therefore is unavailing and painful. Would we not feel a little consoled to hear that he is doing only passably well in private life; that he is less accurate in judgment, less resolute in decision than formerly; that his interest in the public welfare seems to be waning? Then indeed we could become reconciled, and we could remark, as we recounted his merits, that he had outlived them, that we wished him well, but that we needed him no more.

JOSEPH NASH.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For the first time in my life of more than fifty years I am writing to a newspaper. I am a nobody—just one of the lowliest and humblest of New York's millions, but I cannot refrain from writing to tell you how glad I felt upon reading the editorial "A Bank and a Man." I do not possess the power to explain the feeling which possessed me upon reading it, but I did feel as if I should grab the man next me in the subway and tell him about it if he had not read it.

You did a wonderful thing in writing that article. I doubt if there is another newspaper capable of grasping the full meaning of the situation or the character of Al Smith as you have done. The editorial seems to stand out like a wonderful shining star. It's queer, too, that I—a nobody—should treasure this article, since I am not a full-fledged Democrat. I think I am what is known as an independent, as I voted for Herbert Hoover—not because I disliked Mr. Smith, but I thought that Herbert Hoover would make a better President for this country, all things considered. Your honest and whole-hearted tribute to Mr. Smith should transcend all other honors he has experienced. I am glad, very glad, that it was THE TIMES which published such a beautiful article. I am proud of THE TIMES. That editorial was a glorious thing.

REPRODUCTION COSTS.

Would Utilities Cling to This Basis if Material Prices Dropped?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In regard to the Supreme Court decision of Monday upon the Baltimore street-car-fare case THE TIMES very properly points out that the court is careful to review every case on its own merits "in the exercise of a fair, enlightened and independent judgment as to both law and facts." Nevertheless, those who advocate the "reproduction cost" theory as the basis for rates will find comfort in the decision as still another indication of their ability to secure returns on "present value" of property.

It would be interesting to learn if the court allowed all the items claimed by the street car company in its own estimate of present value. It will be remembered that in our own New York Telephone Company case the company found reproduction cost to be $727,000,000, on which it asked an 8 per cent return; the master appointed by the court found reproduction cost to be $518,109,584, on which he was willing to grant an 8 per cent return, and the court itself found that $397,207,925 was proper reproduction value, on which it permitted a 7 per cent return.

This difference of nearly $300,000,000 between the company's estimate and the figure set by the court is a perfect example of the scientific soundness of the reproduction theory as a basis for rate-making. One may reasonably conclude that such applications for rate increases are nothing more than attempts to capitalize present-day increased costs of labor, machinery and materials, and not essential for the proper financial stability of the companies. Would the utility companies still cling to "reproduction cost" bases were prices of material, equipment and labor to decline?

NATIONAL ORIGINS QUOTAS.

Britain's Position an Argument for Return to 1890 Basis.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of Jan. 5 a letter from G. I. Burch appeared in support of the contention that Great Britain and Northern Ireland have been filling and will continue to fill their quota of immigrants to the United States. Available data from authentic sources would seem to prove otherwise both with regard to past years and the present.

For each of the five years preceding that which ended July 1, 1929, Great Britain was permitted to send 34,007 immigrants to our shores. A recent letter from the executive director of the League for American Citizenship reveals that 87.6, 91.4 and 94.3 of that allotment was used in 1926, 1927 and 1928 respectively. For the fiscal year ended June 1, 1929, a somewhat similar situation existed. It was stated in THE TIMES editorial on Dec. 13 that Great Britain accounted for only 23,576 arrivals during that period.

While this may seem an equivocal refusal to take advantage of its quota of 34,007, there may be reasonable business and personal excuses, as Mr. Burch intimated, for such a failure. On the other hand, when it is realized that Great Britain, with this demand for 25,000 to 34,000 immigrants per year, has suddenly been allowed 65,721 entrants, the question of its ability to utilize that increase is pertinent.

The answer, as shown by available data relating to the operation of the new law, appears to be that Great Britain will not fulfill its enlarged quota. It would seem that, even admitting the questionable premise that Great Britain justified its old quota of 34,007 immigrants annually, it had absolutely no need for the revision upward of that quota to 65,721.

The latest report of the Commissioner General of Immigration, Harry E. Hull, issued Dec. 28, contained the information that 3,610 immigrants were admitted from Great Britain during last October. Adding this to data made public about a month ago by the Immigration Department, we find that a total of 14,183 British immigrants have come in under the new quota. On the premise that the months from July through October are representative of the whole present fiscal year, that figure is further evidence that Great Britain will furnish considerably less than its quota. Multiplying the four-month figure by three, the approximate twelve-month immigration comes to 42,549, as compared to the allotment of 65,721; while a similar multiplication of the four-month data on the other main suppliers of our European immigration equals or exceeds their quotas.

Nor is this failure of Great Britain to fulfill its quota the only cause for criticism of the national origins quotas. Both President Hoover in his first annual message to Congress, and Secretary of Labor Davis in his annual report, point to the economic unsoundness of the present law, traced to the fact that it allows of an influx of unneeded types of labor. Since the occupations of various nations differ, it may readily be seen that certain types of workers are being supplied the nation in greater proportions than are other types. Under the present arrangement, which raised the quotas of Southern Europe and Great Britain at the expense of Germany, Ireland and the Scandinavian countries, a large part of the supply of domestic servants, mechanics and trained farm workers from the latter countries has been denied admission. In other words, the national origins quotas are inconsiderate of the nation's industrial demands, whereas the basis which it has superseded satisfied those demands and at the same time, like the national origins quotas, allowed entrance to only about 160,000 immigrants yearly.

I strongly favor a return to the so-called "1890 basis" which preceded the present quotas and which successfully stood the test of five years' use, having been in force until July 1, 1929.

Our Neighbor's Faults.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Coming in from Philadelphia yesterday on the Pennsylvania Railroad, I was enjoying a lovely afternoon of clear skies and pure air. But as we approached Newark the conditions changed rapidly to shadows and finally deep gloom. Literally, scores of stacks in Newark, on the meadows and thereabouts were belching forth great volumes of black smoke which was being blown rapidly by a southwest wind towards New York. Almost immediately I and others in the train were coughing from the sulphur fumes. A few minutes later, emerging from the Pennsylvania Station, it was like entering "The City of the Dreadful Night" for the New Jersey smoke hung like a pall everywhere.

The damage due to this deposit of carbon and sulphur both to property and the health of our citizens is beyond computation. Why are we made thus to suffer from the carelessness of New Jersey?

Pittsburgh, once notorious for its dirt from the same cause, the lack of proper combustion of soft coal, is now one of the cleanest cities in the country. Cannot something be done to persuade or compel New Jersey to follow the same method and relieve us of gloom, dirt, sickness and death?

THE GUILD TO GIVE 'THE APPLE CART'

New Shaw Play to Be Produced in February Under Direction of Philip Moeller.

DEPICTS ENGLAND'S FUTURE

The First New Shaw Play to Be Shown in New York in More Than Six Years.

"The Apple Cart," Bernard Shaw's latest play, will be the fourth production of the Theatre Guild. It will go in rehearsal a week from today under the direction of Philip Moeller, which should make it ready for Broadway presentation the latter part of February.

Neither the cast nor the scenic designer has been determined, according to announcement yesterday. "The Apple Cart" will be the first new Shaw play to be presented in New York since "Saint Joan," which the Guild produced at the Garrick in December, 1923, although the organization in the intervening years has staged a number of revivals of his plays, including "Major Barbara," "Pygmalion" and "Androcles and the Lion."

The first performance of "The Apple Cart" was given in Polish at Warsaw last June. On Aug. 19 the play had its English premiere at Malvern, as part of the Shaw Festival arranged by Sir Barry Jackson. It was subsequently presented at the Queen's Theatre, London, where it is now playing.

The play, laid in the England of the future, is a combination of satire and prophecy, depicting what might happen to an English government. Magnus, the King, is the central figure, and one of the other characters is the American Ambassador, Mr. Vanhattan, who, in the English productions, was depicted considerably after the fashion of the Uncle Sam of the cartoons.

MADCAP COMIC TRIO RULE AT THE PALACE

Clayton, Jackson and Durante Spread Hilarity—Ken Murray and Associates Score.

The middle and end portions of the bill contributed by Ken Murray and his associates and the uncelebrated Clayton, Jackson and Durante trio are what principally matter at the Palace this week. None of these entertainers is, to be sure, up to anything especially new, but the vaudevillegoer, a known quantity in the fertile field of comic lunacy and each has been quite enough to provoke his share of the cachinnations.

The madcap Durante and company lend their immediately high spirits to a rendition of that unique dance known as "the hot potato," to their foolery, both vocal and physical, that should prove familiar to the followers of their vaudeville, night club and "Show Girl" activities, and, in conclusion, to their holiday version of the Durante song that wood has ever proved one of the greatest civilizing forces known to man. Their act is sublimated nonsense, but, as usual, it offers, in the frequent moments when Mr. Durante has the floor, some shrewd comment on human foibles and pretensions.

Ken Murray's assured clowning is likewise telling in an act that concerns itself with the Palace. Among those that make use of Helen and Milton Charleston and Bessie Fagan as his stooges, are a trio of comics, Stinging, Fagan and Cox, who keep the audience amused from his circus to a "spot" of their own in the show.

"Chinese Whoopee Revue" which, because of its colorful investiture and the presence of a fairly funny Celestial, is the feature of the Palace, the second act ... the old "song photo" acts which he has long staged in and around the Palace. This time his partner is Helen Shipman, and it is by her straight face during the words that the audience is affected. Other numbers are Olsen and Johnson and the Tilton sisters.

Marion Tilton, a blond who likes to be called "a vivacious comedienne," also goes in for these song studies. The shop girl and the young lady who has drunk too well of synthetic gin pass as two of the several attempts. Jerry Coe and Ruth Barton open the second part of the program with some songs and the laughing tenor. At Loew's State, where a "January Festival" is in progress, the stage headliners are Joe Frisco—cigar, derby hat and all—and Benny Davis, the song writer, among whose present sources of royalties is the specially colorful "Sons o' Guns."

'RED RUST' IS DISCUSSED.

Throng Hears Four Give Views on Play—Viereck Is Heckled.

An audience which crowded the Martin Beck Theatre yesterday afternoon attended the Theatre Guild's symposium on "Red Rust," the Soviet drama now being presented by the Guild's Studio. Barrett H. Clark, chairman, introduced the speakers, Mrs. Hallie Flanagan of the Experimental Theatre, Vassar College, George Sylvester Viereck, Professor H. W. L. Dana and Herbert J. Biberman, the director of the play.

Mr. Viereck attacked Russia as "a starving nation," and was subjected to a heckling from members of the audience and to critical comment from individuals when the meeting was thrown open for discussion. Mrs. Flanagan and Mr. Dana interpreted "Red Rust" in its relation to current Russian drama and the new Soviet theatre. Mr. Biberman dealt with the theatrical conditions under which he staged the play during its translation and adaptation.

J. F. Segger, Broker, Dies Suddenly.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 12.—John F. Segger, senior member of Dominick & Dominick, brokers, died suddenly yesterday at his home in Dayton, Ky. He was 48 years old. He was formerly Mayor of Dayton and was an active worker for good politics. He had been a candidate for City Council in Dayton several times. He is survived by his widow and one son.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

A Balzac Story.

SURVIVAL, with Paul Wegener, Kurt Gerron, Andrée Lafayette, Werner Feuterrer, Nien Son Ling, Helen von Munchhofen and others, based on a Balzac story, directed by Manfred Noa; "The Home Wrecker," a natural history subject; "Fifty Miles From Broadway." At the Cameo Theatre.

An ingenious German silent film, known as "Survival," is now holding forth at the Cameo. It has flashes of imagination and both Paul Wegener and Kurt Gerron give such excellent performances that they atone for the absurd stretches. The story itself, which happens to be based on a Balzac work, is good enough to arouse one's curiosity and despite the strange lapses in the production it is a much better entertainment than any of the recent Cinderella tales that are told only too frequently from the screen.

Possibly, for the first time, a ping-pong game is seen helping along a romantic melodrama. Not very far away from the ping-pong game two men are playing chess, one of them having an eye on the girl chasing the ping-pong ball. Then there is a scene in a cabaret where an artist sketches Renée, who has many experiences in this film.

Mr. Wegener plays Collin, a convict, who, knowing that the Marquis de Herrera has been killed, poses as the dead man. He becomes the secret envoy to France from Porto Nuovo, fills his pockets with Herrera's money, adopts for a son the hero of the story, arranges to disappoint Renée and finally puts a bullet through his brain.

Manfred Noa, who directed "Survival," now and again shows what Collin is seeing and thinking about by means of a giant eye with tiny figures in the pupil. If Collin encounters the judge who sentenced him, one sees this human eye filling the screen and in it is the judge at his bench and then a glimpse of Collin in a felon's garb.

Renée is the toast of Paris during one sequence, then the girl decides to enter a convent. She is unable to abandon her mundane existence and with a hope of finding Lucien, the good-looking man with whom she is in love, she continues to enjoy her gayety and finery. Collin wants Lucien, whom he has adopted, to marry the daughter of a wealthy nobleman. Knowing that the young man will be foolish enough to give up everything for love of Renée, Collin sees to it that Lucien is deceived concerning the rapturous girl's conduct, having her appear as the favorite mistress of M. Nucingen, a well-fed individual who believes in little more than wine, woman and song.

Although it is amateurish in certain passages, this film possesses the merit of never being annoying. Its actresses may not be raving beauties, but they are graceful enough for the roles.

Other Photoplays.

"Hit the Deck," a Radio Pictures Corporation musical film, will be presented tomorrow evening at the Earl Carroll Theatre. The principals are Polly Walker, Jack Oakie, June Clyde and Ethel Clayton.

At the Fifth Avenue Playhouse the screen offering is "The Royal Box," a talking film in German, with Alexander Moissi.

"The Throw of the Dice," a Hindu production, is in its second week at the Fifty-fifth Street Playhouse.

At the Little Carnegie Playhouse the feature is "The Farmer's Wife," a British film, with Jameson Thomas.

"Hungarian Rhapsody," with Lil Dagover, is now on view at the Little Picture House.

At the Film Guild Cinema the screen offering is "Resurrection," with Dolores Del Rio.

"Pointed Heels," an audible film, with Helen Kane, is at the Hippodrome.

Lewis Archer McMurran.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Jan. 12 (AP).—Lewis Archer McMurran, prominent lawyer and business man of Newport News, died at his home early today after an illness of several months. He was vice president and executive officer of the Old Dominion Land Company and had been a practicing attorney here since 1907.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Two new plays and a revival are listed for tonight on Broadway. "Nancy's Private Affair" will be presented at the Vanderbilt, "Phantoms" will open at Wallack's Theatre and "The Prince of Pilsen" will be revived at Jolson's.

"Candle-Light" will close here on Saturday night at the Empire Theatre after a run begun Sept. 30.

The American rights to Ferenc Molnar's new comedy, "One, Two, Three," have been acquired by Gilbert Miller. The play is now being performed in Vienna, Budapest and Berlin.

St. Timothy's League, Inc., has bought the house tonight at the Playhouse for "The First Mrs. Fraser."

Alexander McKaig announces a Spring production of a Hungarian play, "One Cannot Marry a Poor Girl," by Istvan Zagon. The play is said to be current in Holland, Germany and England.

Loring Smith will replace Jack Squire tonight in the cast of "Woof, Woof" at the Royale.

"Josef Suss" will open tonight at the Broad Street Theatre, Newark, for a week, preparatory to the premiere at Erlanger's Theatre next Monday.

Earl Carroll announces that he is negotiating for a possible London production of "Sketch Book," with the original company, after its New York run, late in March or early in April.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell will be presented next Friday afternoon for the benefit of the Actors' Fund of America. The affair will take place at the New Amsterdam Theatre.

"You Don't Say," a musical comedy featuring Mary Hay, will open at Werba's Flatbush Theatre, Brooklyn, on Jan. 27.

Alexander Kirkland, who recently completed a four-week tour in "Wings Over Europe," closed yesterday following two weeks in Bermuda.

"Bunkhouse," a play by Hamilton Harrington and Hugh A. Anderson, the latter the author of "George Washington," will be presented at the Brooklyn Little Theatre on Jan. 23.

A. F. HUSTON DEAD; STEEL FIRM'S HEAD

Besides Being Chairman of Lukens Company, Was a Bank President.

ON TWO COLLEGES' BOARDS

Formerly Served as President of the American Steel Manufacturers' Association.

Special to The New York Times.

COATESVILLE, Pa., Jan. 12.—Abram F. Huston, chairman of the board of the Lukens Steel Company and former president of the American Steel Manufacturers' Association, died here suddenly of heart disease at his home, Greystone, today in his seventy-eighth year.

Mr. Huston had been identified with steel manufacturing throughout his adult life. He was educated at Taylor Academy in this city and at Haverford College, graduating from the latter in 1872.

After serving in the mechanical and business departments of the Lukens Company, he assumed control upon the death of his father in 1882, and was elected president in 1897. The company's output increased from about 2,000 tons in 1882 to a maximum of 176,000 in 1916.

Mr. Huston retired as president in 1925 to become chairman of the board. His successor as president was Robert W. Wolcott, his son-in-law.

At his death Mr. Huston was president of the Coatesville Trust Company, vice president of the National Bank of Chester Valley in this city, a director of the Pennsylvania Sugar Company and of Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges, and president of the Public Welfare Association here. He was a member of clubs in Philadelphia, and also in Palm Beach, where he maintained a Winter home.

He is survived by a widow, a brother, Charles L. Huston of this city; a sister, Mrs. Robert B. Haines of Germantown, and three children.

The Rev. Owen P. Eaches.

Special to The New York Times.

HADDONFIELD, N. J., Jan. 12.—The Rev. Owen P. Eaches, widely known Baptist clergyman, died Friday, at the age of 81. He will be buried on Tuesday afternoon in the Baptist Cemetery here. Mr. Eaches was pastor at Hightstown for forty years and was identified with Sunday-school work there and in New Brunswick, Cranbury, Trenton, Somerville and several other New Jersey communities. His widow and two daughters survive.

HOOVER IN TALKIE SPEEDS NAVAL MISSION

Glimpse of Karolyi on Arrival Here Also Shown at Newsreel Theatre.

NEWSREELS, a compilation of Hearst Metrotone and Fox Movietone newsreels, shown continuously at the Embassy Theatre.

Besides the speech of John D. Rockefeller to his former business associates in Cleveland, which was reported on Saturday in THE NEW YORK TIMES, the Newsreel Theatre is showing views of President Hoover speeding America's delegates to the naval parley in London and a glimpse of Count Michael Karolyi upon his arrival here.

"It seems an opportune time," Secretary Stimson says regarding the London Naval Arms Conference, "for the United States to meet with these same powers that were parties to the Washington Treaty and to see if we cannot still further delay or decrease the expenses of the battleship fleets of these nations."

Count Karolyi, Provisional President of Hungary in 1919, hopes that he will be able to persuade us "what a great danger lies in Europe for European peace, due to the fact that there are so many dictators now there." Alister MacDonald, son of the British Premier, tells us that if one takes architecture seriously one must pay a visit to New York. He reserves his opinion on American girls until he has been here a bit longer.

Julius Rosenwald is seen embarking on a ship for Egypt with his bride, who exclaims, "This is terrible," while she poses for the photographers. John F. Hylan, remarking on his appointment as justice of the Children's Court in Queens, says: "I have always been interested in the welfare of children, and nothing gives me a greater thrill or more happiness than to extend a helping hand to those who need guidance."

The $100,000 Guggenheim award for a safety plane is presented to a representative of the Curtiss Company, because of the Tanager's performance in its flying at snail's pace, short landing and take-off and generaly safety in air. "Fourteen-inchers" are bored through in a naval armament factory in Washington. United States marines have the situation in hand under the Chien Men Pagoda in Peking, where they parade.

A snow plow cuts through drifts in Oregon and a dozen esthetic dancers in bathing suits cavort in the mist at Daytona Beach, Fla. Lord Stoneham, Governor General of Australia, hopes the weather will be all right for the racing on the River Yarra when he officially opens the season there.

Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford return to California from a trip around the world. "We traveled 24,000 miles to find California," Mr. Fairbanks says. Ski stars at St. Moritz go over the famous Olympia jump to hurtle through the air and land upon the snowy hillside. Oxford and Cambridge engage in a ski-jumping contest at St. Moritz with much falling and comic stumbling.

Glenna Collett and George Dunlap, golfing champions, play over a trick course at Pinehurst. Amherst and Speculator chase a puck in an exciting hockey match. Chicago offers a new game, dancing football, that is played by twenty-two couples, who dance a soccer ball between goal posts. Nipponese maidens in black bloomers perform their ancient and honorable sword play called "Naginata."

Three views are given of children. The first is Milton Brooks of Speculator, N. Y., who owns a calf he has trained to haul him over the snow on a sledge. The others are Earlene Voight and Bobby Dukes, who sing over the radio.

Other amusement news is printed on Page 26.

MRS. CHARLES B. WOOD, PHILANTHROPIST, DEAD

Former Miss Eno, Aunt of Gifford Pinchot, Stricken at 88 in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Charles Boughton Wood, Washington society leader and philanthropist, aunt of former Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania and sister of William P. Eno, traffic expert, died last night of the infirmities of age at her residence, 1,619 Rhode Island Avenue, after a week's illness. With her at the end were Mr. and Mrs. Pinchot, whose Winter home is next door, and other relatives. She was within eight days of 88 years of age.

Mrs. Wood was the daughter of the late Amos R. Eno of New York, who built and owned the old Fifth Avenue Hotel. She was born on Jan. 20, 1842, in New York, but had resided here for the last twenty years. She maintained a Summer residence at Simsbury, Conn., where her father was born and her family had lived for many generations. She came of sturdy stock, for her grandmother attained the age of 99 and her father lived to be 88.

Despite her age, Mrs. Wood had been very active until her fatal illness. She possessed one of the most extensive private libraries in Washington, including highly prized first editions in several languages. She had taken part in politics since the early days of the suffragist movement. Noted for her vigor and courage, Mrs. Wood when she was 82 went up in an airplane over Washington.

W. L. JACOBY DIES; PROMINENT ENGINEER

Organizer and First Head of Interocean Steel Company—Recently a Banker.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (AP).—William Lawall Jacoby, steel and financial executive, died yesterday of pleurisy in a hospital here.

Mr. Jacoby was born fifty-six years ago in South Bethlehem, Pa., and was graduated from Lehigh University as a mechanical engineer at the age of 18. He was general manager of the Latrobe Steel Company, later organized the Interocean Steel Company, of which he was president at 34, and built its plant in Chicago Heights. From 1912 to 1918 he was president of the American District Telegraph Company in New York, and for the next nine years vice president of A. G. Becker & Co., bankers.

For the last two years Mr. Jacoby had been president of the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply Company. He is said to have been the youngest man to enter Lehigh and the youngest man to graduate. He married Laura Warren of Philadelphia in 1903. His clubs included the Union League, Midday and Press of Chicago and the Engineers of this city.

MARTIN VAN V. LLOYD.

Official of General Motors Corporation Dies in Japan.

DR. CARL A. HAMANN, NOTED SURGEON, DIES

Was Founder of Museum of Anatomy and Anthropology in Cleveland.

MEDICAL SCHOOL'S EX-DEAN

Put That of Western Reserve University Among Leaders—Well Known as Philanthropist.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 12.—Dr. Carl A. Hamann, noted surgeon, founder of the Hamann Museum of Anatomy and Anthropology, died here early this morning in his sixty-second year after an illness of two weeks. Death was due to pneumonia that resulted from a midnight call which Dr. Hamann made on foot through slush.

Among his associates and students Dr. Hamann was usually referred to as "the king," in deference to his great ability as a surgeon. People of all races, creeds and social stations received equal attention from him in their distress.

He was born in Davenport, Iowa, on Jan. 26, 1868, a son of Claus H. and Marie (Koenig) Hamann, natives of Germany. His father, a wagonmaker, came to America in 1855.

For two years after his public school education in Davenport he taught, and then attended the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, being graduated in 1890. He was connected with the Lankenau Hospital in Philadelphia for a time and later was in the anatomy department of the University of Pennsylvania. In 1893 he came here as Professor of Anatomy in the medical school of Western Reserve University.

Dr. Hamann had taken part in developing the Cleveland city and charity hospitals, and at one time was also identified with Mount Sinai Hospital. In 1913 he was chosen dean of the Western Reserve Medical School, which meanwhile has become one of the foremost schools in the country.

In November, 1928, Dr. Hamann resigned as dean to devote more time to private and philanthropic activities in the field of medicine.

E. M. Gross, Coal Man, Dies.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 12.—E. M. Gross, a prominent coal operator, died at his home here last night after a year's illness. He was 79 years old.

Mr. Gross was a pioneer coal man in Westmoreland County, having been associated first with the late George F. Huff, General Richard Coulter and James C. Clarke in organizing the Carbon Coal Company. Later the Claridge Gas Coal Company was formed with Mr. Gross as secretary and a member of the board.

Samuel Ullman.

Samuel Ullman, president of Joseph Ullmann, Inc., 376 Seventh Avenue, fur merchants, died Saturday in Paris in his seventy-first year. He is survived by a widow, Theresa; a daughter, Lillian, and two sons, Joseph Jr. and Charles S. Ullmann. For several years Mr. Ullmann had been living abroad.

Among Mr. Ullman's charitable interests the chief was the Hebrew Orphan Asylum. He was the chairman of its executive committee and for years had concerned himself personally with the welfare of the children, frequently arranging for appropriate education for those who gave indication of talent.

Topics of Sermons Preached Yesterday in Pulpits of the Metropolitan District

HOUGHTON IS LIKELY FOR CALVARY PULPIT

Former Atlanta Pastor, Named for Three Months, Expected to Be Straton's Successor.

HE WAS ONCE AN ACTOR

Clergyman Spent Four Years on the Stage Before Entering College—Has Traveled Widely.

Dr. Will H. Houghton, former head of the Baptist Tabernacle of Atlanta, has accepted a call to be acting pastor of Calvary Baptist Church for three months, it was announced at the morning services yesterday in the congregation's temporary home in Pythian Temple, 135 West Seventieth Street.

It is strongly expected in the church that at the end of that period Dr. Houghton's occupancy of the pulpit, formerly filled by the late Dr. John Roach Straton, will be made permanent. Dr. Houghton has been occupying the pulpit as guest pastor since the first of the year and has appeared in it several times previously.

The call to the acting pastorate was approved unanimously by the Committee on Pulpit Supply at a meeting yesterday preceding the church services. The announcement was made by Paschal A. Carter, chairman of the trustees, and was received with enthusiasm by the congregation. A church officer said afterward that while there was no commitment as to Dr. Houghton's occupancy of the Calvary pulpit at the end of the three months, "many members of the congregation hope that he may be led to become the permanent pastor."

Following Mr. Carter's announcement Charles R. Towson, a trustee, expressed the congregation's appreciation of the service of the Rev. Hillyer H. Straton, son of the late Dr. Straton, who has been cooperating pastor for the past year.

It was learned from church officers that Mr. Straton had informed them some time ago that he would not consider occupying the Calvary pulpit permanently. The church asked him to remain for an indefinite period as cooperating pastor, which he consented to do. It is expected that he will accept a call from another church shortly.

Dr. Houghton, who is 42 years old, was born in Boston and received his early education there. During a four-year interval between his graduation from high school and his entrance into college he toured the country as a member of a stage troupe. He left the theatre to attend the Nazarene College of Rhode Island. He has preached at various Baptist churches in several cities. He resigned a year ago as head of the Baptist Tabernacle of Atlanta, one of the largest congregations in Georgia.

From January to June of last year Dr. Houghton visited the Holy Land and pursued special studies there. He also revisited Ireland, where he participated five years ago in the Irish Revival. Since his return he has been touring this country as a guest preacher.

His sermon yesterday dealt with the question "What Is the Church?"

"The original church of the New Testament was based upon three things," he said. "Communion with Christ, commission from Christ and conquest for Christ were its fundamental ideals. It was a growing church, a giving church and a going church, in terms of its missionary endeavor. Let the local churches of today try to approximate these ideals."

WISE COUNSELS JEWS TO CLING TO HERITAGE

Says They Should Be Proud of Group That Has Excelled in Every Sphere.

Jews should pay less attention to discrimination against them from without their groups and more attention to self-incrimination from within, Dr. Stephen S. Wise urged in his sermon yesterday morning before the congregation of the Free Synagogue in Carnegie Hall. The topic of Dr. Wise's sermon was, "If I Were a Jew—What Christians Might Say."

"If I were a Jew I should be deeply proud of my membership in a group which has at one time or other excelled in every sphere of life," he declared, "far from being ashamed of my priceless heritage. I could hardly understand those Jews, who in fear or inexplicable shame, run away and seek to hide themselves from their people and their heritage. The decent and chivalrous thing is not to run away, but to serve them, fortify and lead them by example and precept that the common level of the group might be lifted up.

"If I were a Jew, I would anchor my soul in the oceanic God-consciousness of my people, for bereft of my God-consciousness Israel is poor indeed. If I were a Jew I would refuse to remain ignorant, as many are, of the great literature of the Jewish religion, beginning with the Hebrew Bible and continuing through the Greek Testaments and the Apocryphal literature. If I were a Jew, I should die sooner than do aught which would bring dishonor or shame to the escutcheon of my people. I should pay much less attention to discrimination against my people from without and more attention to self-incrimination from within. I would pity myself if I were an unworthy Jew and pity those Jews who do not suffer, but are unworthy."

OPENS 40 HOURS' DEVOTION.

Church of St. Ignatius Loyola to Hear Rev. Patrick Quinnan.

Devotion of the Forty Hours was begun at the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, Park Avenue and Eighty-fourth Street, at the conclusion of the eleven o'clock mass yesterday. The devotion will continue until Tuesday evening.

Although no sermon was preached at the mass yesterday, the Rev. Patrick Quinnan preached at the afternoon services, and will preach again tonight and tomorrow night. Processions will be held throughout the devotion. Today a solemn high mass will be celebrated for peace. The devotion will conclude with a procession of the Blessed Sacrament, litanies and benediction at eight o'clock tomorrow evening.

Aldrich Calls Church Spiritual Power House; Says Social Service Is Not Its True Function

"The true function of the Church in the community today is to be a power house, not a social service bureau—to be a spiritual centre where members of the community may find rest and revive their strength for doing good," said the Rev. Dr. Donald B. Aldrich, pastor of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Fifth Avenue at Tenth Street, Manhattan, in his sermon there yesterday morning.

Dr. Aldrich pointed out that many of the fifty-one social service organizations, started more than twenty-five years ago in the church by the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, then its pastor, have now passed out of the hands of the church to a sphere of their own.

"No church ever needs to urge people to do good works if real religion is being practiced there," the minister declared. "Too often the Church offers members of the community a variety of organizations which only make the Church serve the Church, instead of the community. Church organizations may be self-consuming or self-deserving. To buttress the Church with such does not spread the spirit of Jesus or accomplish His work."

"Twenty-five years ago, under the ministry of Dr. Grant, the symbol of what this church offers its community was the free pew," Dr. Aldrich concluded. "Today, the symbol of this church's service to the community is the open door. The doors are never closed. And I maintain that we have succeeded, because this church is not only democratic in seating, but democratic in support.

FINDS PAGAN ETHICS LIKE THOSE OF JESUS

But, Dr. Delany Asserts, Christ Made Ancient Philosophies Into a Living Power.

ASSAILS RELIGIOUS CRITICS

Skeptics Contradict Themselves, He Holds — Dr. Shoemaker Says Christianity Proves Itself.

A defense of Christianity against the criticisms of such men as Bertrand Russell, who, he asserted, hold the ethics of paganism as superior to those of the teachings of Christ, and of others who consider the claims of Christianity unjustifiable because its ethics are not essentially different from those of the first century of our era, was made yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Selden P. Delany in his sermon in the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Forty-sixth Street, between Broadway and Sixth Avenue.

Dr. Delany declared that Christianity has proved its superiority if for no other reason that that it has made the ethics and ideals of the best men of the pagan world those of the common man of today.

At the same time the Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker Jr., in a sermon on "The Authority of Experience" in Calvary Protestant Episcopal Church, Fourth Avenue and Twenty-first Street, declared that many of those who in the modern ethical and spiritual upheaval have discarded the teachings of Christianity are coming to realize by dint of experience that philosophical humanism is not enough and that "religion as the expression of God up to the limit of man's capacity" is a force that cannot be ignored.

Finds Critics Contradictory.

"The wise men of today are not bringing their gifts of gold and frankincense and myrrh to Bethlehem," said Dr. Delany. "Perhaps they have followed the wrong star and have lost their way. Instead of offering gifts they offer criticisms, and it is amazing to see how often they are in conflict with each other when they criticize the religion of Christ.

"Mr. Bertrand Russell, for instance, in his recent book, condemns Christianity because it preaches moral standards which are quite different from those set forth in the ethical systems of the Greeks and the Romans.

"The late Professor Bury, on the other hand, who had a vast acquaintance with the facts of the ancient world and is therefore a more trustworthy authority than Mr. Russell, considered that the claims of Christianity were unjustifiable because its ethics were not essentially different from the best pagan ethics of the first century of our era.

"Obviously, they cannot both be right. One cannot condemn Christianity because it differs from paganism, and at the same time because it does not differ from paganism. If Mr. Russell is right, Professor Bury should have accepted Christianity; if Professor Bury was right, Mr. Russell ought to become a Christian preacher.

"Shocking as it may appear to many Christians, Professor Bury was quite right when he said that the ethics of Christianity did not differ essentially from the best ethics of the pagan world. Jesus taught that men should practice self-discipline; so did Socrates and the Cynics. Jesus taught that men should spend themselves in the service of their fellow-men; so did the Stoics. Jesus taught that good should be returned for evil; so did the Platonists. It would be difficult to find any ethical teaching in the Sermon on the Mount that cannot be matched in the ethics of Greek or Roman philosophers or the moral precepts of Judaism.

"Christianity is superior to the paganism of antiquity, not in purpose but in performance, not in aim but in accomplishment. This is because with the coming of Jesus Christ a new principle of life entered into the bloodstream of humanity."

Stresses Religious Experience.

Dr. Shoemaker in his sermon, said:

"We are living in a generation which is interesting for many things, not least for its search for fresh authority, buried as this search often is beneath a mass of rebellion and novelty-seeking. The more thoughtful folks in our midst are beginning to see that in the modern ethical and spiritual upheaval we have discarded an immense amount of useful human experience and knowledge about life which, instead of throwing on the scrap heap, we ought to be making available to people who are wrestling with life's problems.

"Reality is such that not to believe it is to believe a lie. You may have a great many theories about the manward aspect of organized religion, and you may even feel that there should be none of it at all—you nevertheless cannot truly believe in God unless at some time God has laid upon you that inward compulsion which is our appropriate response to Infinity and absolute holiness."

SEES MODERN IDEAS AS AGED FALLACIES

Mgr. Lavelle Holds Doctrine of Anti-Fundamentalism Was Refuted 1,500 Years Ago.

URGES RELIGIOUS READING

Tells 1,200 Newman Club Members at Communion Breakfast They Must Defend Their Faith.

Most of the so-called modern ideas are really not "modern" at all, Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, declared yesterday at a communion breakfast in the Hotel Commodore attended by more than 1,200 members of the Newman Clubs in the non-Catholic universities and colleges in the New York area. Among the ideas falsely called modern Mgr. Lavelle listed "companionate marriage" and "free love."

The breakfast followed a corporate communion in connection with the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral, at which Mgr. Lavelle was the celebrant and at which more than 1,500 "Newmanites" knelt at the altar. The communion and breakfast marked the eleventh annual convention of the New York Province of the Federation of College Catholic Clubs, which opened Friday evening.

At the breakfast Mgr. Lavelle officially represented Cardinal Hayes.

"It was a delight to see you all in the cathedral receiving communion this morning," said Mgr. Lavelle, "and it is an honor to be here at this breakfast.

"I have the privilege of bringing you the blessing and the congratulations of his Eminence, Cardinal Hayes, and to tell you for him it is his hope that the Newman club work will grow until it has in its membership every Catholic student throughout the colleges of the land.

"It rejoices me that every time the athletes of our Notre Dame University play a football game here they come to the cathedral the next morning and receive communion. I always bring them into the rectory and give them breakfast, because they have to catch a 10 o'clock train home and also because I like to shake them by the hand. The last time they were at breakfast I remarked to them that 70,000 people the previous day had paid $200,000 to see them play, and that when I was a student in college you couldn't get seventy people to pay $2 to see us."

Mgr. Lavelle advised the "Newmanites" to pursue a course of reading that would make them able to defend their faith when attacked.

"You know, most of the so-called modern 'isms' are really as old as the hills," he said. "Anti-fundamentalism, of which we have heard so much in the last few years, as if it were new, was taught in the fourth century and has been refuted a hundred times since.

"Take this thing of 'companionate marriage'; it was taught in Sparta 1,000 years before Christ. And it came up under another title—that of 'free love'—when I was a young man."

Mgr. Lavelle praised the chaplains of the clubs in the nineteen colleges represented, several of whom were present. "I hope the Lord will bless you all and keep you true to the cross," said the Monsignor in closing. Other speakers were: Professor Mary F. Higgins of Hunter College; Michael Williams, editor of The Commonweal, a Catholic periodical; the Rev. George B. Ford, a Paulist, chaplain of the province and the new Catholic chaplain at Columbia University; the Rev. John W. Keough of Philadelphia, chaplain of the National Federation of College Catholic Clubs. The toastmaster was John Paul Smith. Thomas R. Swain was presented with the "honor key" in recognition of his three years of service as president of the province.

The convention closed last evening with a service in the Church of St. Paul the Apostle, Columbus Avenue and Sixtieth Street. The service was broadcast by WLWL.

ORGANIZED RELIGION CALLED A NECESSITY

Dr. Krass Says Even Hermits Are Protected in Isolation by Rules of Society.

Dr. Nathan Krass in his sermon yesterday morning at Temple Emanu-El declared organized religion was a necessity of modern life. Organized society, he said, aims to improve individual lives through group effort, prevent loneliness, protect civilization through government, establish standards of morality and perpetuate religious ideals.

"We have hermits who live alone," Dr. Krass said, "far from the madding—and the gladdening—crowd. There are intellectual hermits and there are religious hermits who want God and their religion all to themselves. These are exceptions. But it must be remembered that these people live in their isolation protected by the rules made by society.

"Even in this twentieth century organized religion is neither obsolete nor obsolescent. This does not mean that man's religion is a purely personal affair; it means that man's religion reacts on the world he lives in. Worshiping alone we are apt to think of God the Father as if He were our God alone. In a building of worship we realize that we are surrounded by many of His children.

"As we enjoy life with our friends in the world, so let us enjoy it together in the church or synagogue."

PEACE SERVICE LED BY JOHN H. HOLMES

Natives of 31 Nations Light Candles at Altar in Community Church.

PASTOR SEES AMITY ON RISE

Lessons of War Are Greatest Force, He Says—Rev. G. M. Stockdale Calls Pacifist Real Patriot.

The tenth anniversary of the founding of the League of Nations was celebrated yesterday morning at the Community Church, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, by an international service conducted by John Haynes Holmes, the pastor.

Thirty-one members of the Community Church, born in thirty-one different countries, came into the pulpit, and at Mr. Holmes's direction, lit candles at a common altar of brotherhood, each in celebration of the country of his birth. At the close Mr. Holmes gave to these representatives of the nations, and to the assembled congregation, a pledge of service to humanity and to the cause of human brotherhood.

In his sermon Mr. Holmes said:

"The League of Nations, in spite of weaknesses implicit in its organization, has survived, and thus has given an evidence of vitality which is impressive.

"But if this League has been our sole security against war, and thus our only hope for peace during the past ten years, we would have been engulfed in another catastrophe long before this. Some other and deeper influence for peace has been at work during this decade to save us. And I find this influence in the lessons of the great war itself—the disillusionment that followed upon its termination and the horror that awakened in every heart at the possibility of its renewal.

"For the first time in history the nations discovered that there was no profit in war. The victors were as prostrate as the vanquished when the fighting was done. All the belligerents were ruined together, and thus cured forever of any idea that war can ever again bring them either gain or glory.

"On the other hand, the peoples of all the combatant nations were overwhelmed with the horror of war. Whatever war may have been yesterday it is today, and must forever be in the future, a thing of dirt, disease, destruction and death."

Mr. Holmes saw the evidences of progress toward international brotherhood in the establishment of the World Court in what he termed "the breakdown of the iniquitous Treaty of Versailles" as evidenced in the Dawes and Young plans, in the restoration of Germany and her reception into the League of Nations, in the Locarno treaties, in the Briand-Kellogg Treaty, which he termed "greatest of all, marking a new epoch in history," and in the disarmament conference about to meet in London.

The pending naval conference was discussed also by the Rev. George Maychin Stockdale in his sermon in St. James Methodist Church, Madison Avenue and 126th Street. The Rev. Mr. Stockdale professed to see the last of the modern towers of Babel of international relations in the enormous outlays for military and naval establishments in all countries. Declaring that this year alone the world would spend $4,300,000,000 on military budgets, Mr. Stockdale said that public opinion had at last been aroused against this and added that, as a consequence, it was the pacifist, not the militarist, who stood out today as the real patriot.

"For the first time in human history we approach a world disarmament conference with war outlawed," he said. "Yes, the law is on our side for the first time in history. Now for the first time in history the pacifist is the patriot. The militarist is the traitor."

GAIN FOR FAITH SEEN BY LONDON PASTOR

Dr. F. W. Norwood, at the Marble Collegiate Church, Says Power of Christ Is Growing.

The belief of some that "the leadership of Christ is waning" and that "His power is obsolescent if not indeed obsolete" is an illusion based on a false historical perspective, Dr. Frederick W. Norwood, minister of City Temple, London, said in his sermon yesterday morning in the Marble Collegiate Church, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street.

Dr. Norwood arrived in this country last Thursday for a six weeks' speaking tour for the World Alliance for International Friendship. His first sermon yesterday was on "Christ, the Beloved."

While Dr. Norwood preached in this city yesterday, his friend, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, who recently resigned as pastor of Marble Collegiate Church, and who is now in England, occupied the pulpit at City Temple, where he preached on international peace and the part the church must play in bringing about its realization.

"If Christ is the Son of God His power must increase," Dr. Norwood said. "It is unthinkable that the supreme revelation of God should taper to a vanishing point. If it were clearly demonstrated that the power of Christ were waning and could not recover itself, then there would be nothing before humanity but an eclipse in its faith in the Christ.

"Now there have always been men who thought that this was exactly what was happening. The track of the Christian centuries has wound on its way past many a confident prophet who proclaimed that the track itself would soon end. One after another these prophets are left behind and the trail still winds onward.

"We can say that in times of apparent eclipse the influence of Jesus has increased, it has enlarged, it has widened its area. Today, just at the moment when the confident prophets are proclaiming his decline, it has to be confessed that there is no realm in human life where the claim of Jesus has not either to be admitted or denied."

DR. SOCKMAN URGES NEW CONCEPT OF SIN

Finds That Old Definitions Have Lost the Power of Conviction.

ASKS ACCORD WITH SCIENCE

That Would Bring About a New Revival of Righteousness, He Declares.

A revision of the old theological conceptions of sin in line with teachings of modern science as a means of bringing about "a new revival of righteousness" was urged yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman in a sermon on "New Substitutes for Sin" in Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, at Sixtieth Street.

Asserting that the old-fashioned conviction of sin appears to be unsuitable to our democratic age, Dr. Sockman declared that "science is teaching us a new sensitiveness to sins against truth and culture" and that in doing so it is "exalting the ideal of good sportsmanship."

"If these concepts can be taken over by the Church, enriched and intensified," Dr. Sockman said, "we shall be on the road to a new revival of righteousness.

"It is about as hard to get a conviction of sin in the courts of God today as it is to get a conviction of Volstead violation in the courts of New York," Dr. Sockman said. "The reasons are apparent to those who look below the surface of the modern mind. The idea of God as a judge is not very clear and personal to men in this universe of innumerable planets and immeasurable space. The laws of God which the sinner is accused of violating are not regarded as known with the same old certainty since men have seen how moral courts change from place to place and from age to age. Professor Barnes put it for one section of contemporary thought when he said that 'sin should be dropped from out vocabularies since it is defined as the violation of divine law, and since we do not know with any surety what that law is.'

"But even if we could recover the old definite concepts of a divine judge and divine laws, our democratic age would not necessarily get the old-fashioned conviction of sin. It would demand to know not only that a moral law was the command of God but also whether it was for the welfare of man. Liberty loving people do not accept the edicts of a Mussolini as right and binding unless they prove serviceable to society. The present difficulty of law enforcement in America illustrates that even constitutional amendments do not command obedience on the mere ground of being the law of the land. If we wish to secure obedience to the laws of a country or the laws of God we have to convince men that they are for the good of the people.

"Let the Church, therefore, do less as the sheriff of God summoning men before the bar of judgment and do more by going out to create the atmosphere which will make moral law popular. There will be no effective conviction of sin until there is a conviction of test."

Dr. Gates Likens Worship To the Sound of a Trumpet

The Christian should have a musical faith in religion, the Very Rev. Milo Hudson Gates, Dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, Amsterdam Avenue and 112th Street, asserted yesterday morning in his sermon there.

"Sometimes we become weary of appealing to the congregation for a hearty worship," Dean Gates declared. "The congregation is more necessary to a musical service than the choir." He compared heartening worship to the sound of a trumpet, "where there cannot be a dubious sound."

PAPAL VIEW LAUDED BY DR. DARLINGTON

Episcopal Pastor Quotes From Encyclical Which Deplores Lack of Reflection.

REGRETS MODERN SPEED

Correspondence, Conversation and Contemplation Have Become Lost Arts, He Declares.

Pope Pius XI, in his latest encyclical, "puts his finger on one of the great causes of failure when he observes 'the greatest malady of the modern age, the principal source of evil we all deplore, is the lack of reflection,'" the Rev. Dr. Henry Darlington declared yesterday in his sermon on "The Causes of Failure" in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth Avenue and Ninetieth Street.

Deploring the speed and excitement of modern life, Dr. Darlington discussed what he termed some of the lost arts of life and conduct, such as correspondence, conversation and contemplation, and called for a return to more serious consideration of human existence and for contemplation of "our own individual relationship to God" as the only means of finding reason for existence.

"The world in general, what we call civilization and the individuals who comprise it, all seem to be rushing recklessly on, but to what purpose?" Dr. Darlington continued. "The excitement of the moment is stimulating and thrilling; but when, from exhaustion or perhaps boredom, the pace begins to slacken, what is there to take its place? With a sudden shock, the shallowness and superficiality of it all is realized.

"How many of us are able to sit down and write with correct spelling and proper English an interesting letter of any length? Instead, we generally scratch off a few lines signed in haste, or telegraph or telephone.

"So it is also with the art of conversation. The old charm of personal intercourse when, under the moon in some fair garden or before the crackling logs of a fireplace, time has taken wings under the inspiration of conversation—how such moments stand out as oases in our parched lives.

"As for contemplation, a prominent executive said to me that if, in his business, his employes would think before they acted, they would save themselves infinite trouble and the firm thousands of dollars. What is true in that organization is, in a somewhat similar sense, true of our lives. We make such a mess of things because we never take time to think it all through.

"Jesus said to His disciples, 'Come ye apart and rest a while.' For they were coming and going and 'had not so much time as even to eat.' How modern that sounds. And the prescription of the Great Physician, then and now, is to take time.

"What is life all about? What are we here for? What is its purpose? Thomas Carlyle said that the older he became the more he pondered on the first question of the Shorter Catechism: 'What is the chief end of man?', with its wonderful answer: 'Man's chief end is to glorify God and to enjoy Him forever.' This, as in the catechism, should be the first inquiry of a rational being."

A YEAR OF RECORD PROGRESS IN TELEPHONE SERVICE

IMPORTANT chapters of telephone history are written every year in the State of New York, but the record of the year just closed takes precedence in the progress made in this great public service.

More than $100,000,000 invested in 1929 for telephone plant and equipment suggests the enormous expansion and unceasing improvements necessary to anticipate the growing requirements of this State, with its huge population and vast range of activities.

Among the accomplishments of the year are the following:

New Buildings: 16 completed, 8 started; 4 enlarged, additions begun on 6 others.

New Central Offices: 30 added, with their extensive equipment; 63 central office switchboards enlarged.

Additions to Wire System: 1,252,000 miles of wire added; 97% of the 13,000,000 miles of wiring is now in storm-proof lead-covered cable—83% is below ground.

New Toll Cables: Rapid progress made on the statewide storm-proof toll cable program, providing additional and improved communication between hundreds of communities, as well as readier access to long distance points.

New Telephones: Nearly 166,000 added, each increasing the value of the service available to the 2,630,000 telephones now served by this company.

More Private Switchboards: 1,527 added, making 43,300 now in use, and providing larger facilities on subscribers' premises in many lines of business.

More Public Telephones: 5,242 added at numerous points convenient to the public, making a total of 74,535 now in service. Replacement of public booths with improved type begun.

Increased Telephone Traffic: The company handled an average daily total of 12,461,487 calls originating in its territory—1,064,000 more than last year—with a general increase in the dependability of service.

New Business Offices: Increased by 77—placing business office service within easier access of many thousands of customers. In addition the interiors of many offices were improved for the greater convenience of our subscribers.

Additional Employees: Employees increased by nearly 6,000 to total of approximately 65,000, the largest number employed by any single concern in the company's territory.

The new year just begun presents an even larger task than that of 1929, or of any previous year in this State, in the magnitude of the construction and improvement program necessary to assure adequate service. The estimated expenditures for this purpose in 1930 total $120,000,000. As this work goes forward, continued effort will be devoted to promote increasing convenience, comfort and dependability of service for every telephone user.

Samuel R. Rosoff and Sidney I. Prager arranged the dance. The patrons included Albert Ottinger, Representative Sol Bloom, Moses H. Grossman, Henry M. R. Goodman, I. Montefiore Levy, Aron Steuer, Jesse S. Phillips, Frederick Brown, Julian Goldman, Benjamin Schwartz, Benjamin Winter and Victor Emanuel.

The American Synagog was founded last September by the Rev. Dr. Marius Ranson. Services are held in Pythian Temple.

SIMON DRAWINGS EXHIBITED

Work of American Artist on View at the Civic Club.

An exhibition of drawings and wood engravings by Howard Simon, young American artist, was opened yesterday at the Civic Club, 18 East Tenth Street, to continue until Jan. 22.

Mr. Simon illustrated Edgar Lee Masters's book "Kit O'Brien" and Ralph Cheever Dunning's "Rococo," and has decorated other books, including Oscar Wilde's "The Nightingale and the Rose." He also illustrated recently published editions of "Mlle. du Maupin" and "Candide. He was included in "Fifty Prints of the Year" for 1929. His engravings are exhibited in the Baltimore Museum and in the Legion of Honor Museum in San Francisco. He was represented also at the recent show of American graphic art at the Victoria and Albert Museum in London.

The Civic Club exhibition includes a group of engravings, drawings and four paintings.

ADVISES 'CHARITY' BY DRYS.

Judge Pattangall Calls for Reasonable and Honest Discussion.

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 12 (AP).—If it ever becomes fashionable in the big cities not to drink liquor it will mean a great advance in the solution of prohibition enforcement, William R. Pattangall, Associate Justice of the Main Supreme Court, declared in an address here tonight in observance of the tenth anniversary of the National Prohibition Act.

Drinking in big cities, he indicated, gained impetus from the mood of leaders of various phases of social life to oppose the law.

"If men in Congress," he continued, "will take the time to study legislation instead of calling one another hypocrites, they would also greatly advance progress toward a solution of the problem."

In conclusion he said:

"Your basic object is to rid the world of the evils of intemperance. That can better be done by a system of reasonable, fair and honest discussion with those who believe otherwise, making allowances for environment and other factors and keeping a great charity in your mind all the time."

WILL INVESTIGATE TONES.

Hobart College Will Conduct Research in Audition.

GENEVA, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Special research work in audition will be carried on by the Hobart College Department of Psychology, through a grant of money by the National Research Council and Hobart College, according to an announcement by Dr. Forrest L. Dimmick, Professor of Psychology. The National Research Council was founded by the National Academy of Sciences to aid and encourage research in all the sciences.

Dr. Dimmick stated that an investigation of the various aspects of auditory experience would be made. Special attention will be paid to the intensity of tone, its pitch and its volume. The investigation also will attempt to find out the relation between tones and noises. It has been found that some tones are noisy and some noises tonal, he said.

RENNIE SMITH HOPEFUL ON PROBLEM OF INDIA

Laborite Tells Ethical Cnlture Society Peaceful Attainment of Dominion Status Is Likely.

Since reason and persuasion are the basic factors in the attitudes of both the British Labor Government and the followers of Ghandi toward the problem of India, dominion status will probably be reached peacefully, Rennie Smith, Labor party member of Parliament, said yesterday in an address before the Ethical Culture Society, Central Park West and Sixty-fourth Street.

There can never be any basic difference between the contentions of Ghandi and of Labor, he said. Their methods are the same, he insisted, and both regard even the lowest of the untouchables as sacred human beings.

POLISH ENVOY PLEDGES AID IN JEWISH RELIEF

Favors Economic Conference, but Suggests It Be Held in This Country.

At a luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Delmonico, 502 Park Avenue, Tytus Filipowicz, Polish Minister to the United States, said in reply to a delegation representing the Federation of Polish Jews in America, who deplored the condition of Jews in Poland, that "Poland is at present just finding its way as a new republic and to a great extent the suffering is general among Jews and non-Jews alike."

The Minister promised, however, to forward their remarks to his government immediately. He declared himself in favor of an economic conference as proposed by the delegation, to be held in Poland.

"But I believe as much can be accomplished in this country as in Poland," he added, "the prespective is quieter here."

The delegation, headed by Benjamin Winter, president of the federation, had presented to the Minister a memorandum urging upon the Polish Government the advisability of calling a conference to deal with the economic plight of the Jews.

"The spread of large cooperatives in Poland," the memorandum said, "is resulting in the displacement of great numbers of Jewish middle men. Added to this, in all such industries as are nationalized, a virtual boycott of Jewish workers prevails.

"Jews in large numbers are as a result seeking to become artisans, but here, too, they are faced by the difficulties placed in the way of opening technical schools. The burden of taxation also falls heaviest on the Jews and only the most meagre credit facilities are available to them.

"More than a million Jews of Polish nativity or Polish descent now reside in America, and these look upon Poland as their motherland and are anxious to advance her interests."

The delegation expressed its willingness to obtain the cooperation of American Jewry in any plan of economic rehabilitation for Poland.

Delegates representing the federation besides Mr. Winter were Z. Tygel, executive director; Herman B. Oberman, treasurer; Dr. Joseph Tenenbaum, Sol Rosenfeld and Jacob Leichtman.

'SLAVERY' INQUIRY ON LIBERIA DELAYED

Foreign Policy Association Report Notes That Country Has Had Time to Remedy Conditions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—In a report of the Foreign Policy Association prepared by Raymond Leslie Buell, the association's research director, on charges now under investigation that slavery and enforced labor exist in Liberia, it is pointed out that the inquiry, announced in August, has been so delayed that the Liberian Government has had time to remedy the alleged conditions.

The investigating commission consists of three persons, one each appointed by the League of Nations, the United States Government and the Liberian Government. Two of the three members of the commission are negroes. The United States representative is Dr. Charles S. Johnson, a professor in Fisk University.

Mr. Buell's report said it has been charged that the government of Liberia, an independent negro republic, uses compulsory unpaid labor for road construction and other public purposes. It has been charged that in some cases natives were compelled to work nine months out of the year and that they were obliged to furnish their own food and tools. At the international labor conference of 1929 the Liberian delegate denied such charges. He asserted that all such labor was paid and that road construction was carried on by "companies working freely and voluntarily without any constraint."

The report stated further that serious charges in regard to forced labor for private employes had been made in regard to Liberia.

EMPLOYMENT ROSE IN 1929

State Average Was Higher Than in 1928 or 1927.

ALBANY, Jan. 12 (AP).—Employment in New York State factories declined almost 4 per cent during December, according to a report issued by Francis Perkins, State Industrial Commissioner. Employment for the month was one point below that of December, 1928, and two points below that of December, 1927.

Throughout the year just closed, employment was four points above 1928 and slightly above 1927. Average weekly payrolls for factory workers were greater last year than ever before, reaching $30.47 in September and $30.35 in March.

The slump in employment last month was classified as seasonal, but was said to have been noticeable in practically every industry.

THE SALLE-CATHAY could never fulfill its purpose more than it does now ... what with smart New Yorkers usurping its illuminated mosaic as their own setting ... for casual luncheon and dinner, for important private function.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

Josef Hofmann's Recital.

Josef Hofmann, visibly moved, prefaced his piano recital yesterday afternoon with a performance of Chopin's Funeral March, played in memory of two cherished friends, Alexander Lambert and Edward Bok, who have died within a few days. The men who could have paid such a tribute to the memory of the departed, in such a way, are few. A little applause was quickly hushed, and after a pause Mr. Hofmann continued with his program.

Mr. Hofmann, in the mood to express his deepest self, stands apart from other pianists of his generation. At times he gives an impression of dissatisfaction with the limits of the piano. But when he desires to do so he plays with a power and beauty that fascinate and indeed dominate the listener. Undoubtedly the performances of yesterday had their relative degrees of excellence. But throughout the concert, or at least throughout that part heard by the writer, which included the program as far as the end of the Chopin B minor sonata, Mr. Hofmann played with a mastery that was prodigal and almost reckless, because it was so sure and his pianistic resources so unlimited.

He began with the Mendelssohn E minor Prelude and Fugue, a piece for which he seems to have a special predilection. He proceeded with the rarely played "Choir of the Dervishes," from Beethoven, transcribed by Saint-Saë. The performance had such sparkle, such a whirlwind, fantastic character that the audience immediately set up a clamor for a repetition of the piece. Mr. Hofmann then played his own "Suite Antique," of which the last movement, the Gigue, is the most important and the most extensively worked out, with all sorts of counterpoint and pianistic devices, and which in turn created something of a furore. Members of the musical left might lift supercilious eyebrows at the remark that one of the climactic points of the afternoon was the playing of Chopin.

The reason why this was a climax was first of all the richness of the music. The additional reason was that Mr. Hofmann presented familiar compositions with a sovereign insight, imagination and originality that made the performance of the B minor sonata, for example, one of thrilling power. It was an instance of a master in one field of music—that of interpretation—matching minds with creative genius of the most exceptional potency. In this particular case the genius of composition was not wholly at ease in the frame in which he chose to encase his ideas. For the B minor sonata of Chopin is incorrigibly not a sonata. It is the work of a romanticist, a rhapsodist, a lyrical poet striving to adapt himself to a classic conception of form; failing in the attempt, and yet from the abundance of his emotional and creative nature producing music of strange and arresting beauty, and of a psychology that the classicists did not know.

Mr. Hofmann did not attempt to present the shell of Chopin's diffuse and imperfect form. He plumbed much deeper and penetrated to the wellsprings of the composer's imagination. Interpreter and composer met half way on the creative path, and the B minor sonata was articulate and more profoundly subjective in its expression than it ever had been before in the writer's experience. That is not a small thing to undergo in this day, from a performance of the B minor sonata. It would be a pleasure to sit down with a deliberation forbidden by the conditions under which articles for a morning newspaper must be written, with the score of the sonata at hand, and trace bar by bar and note by note the many felicities and lightning strokes of illumination in which Mr. Hofmann's interpretation abounded.

Such a recounting might in any event be tedious in printing, thrilling as it was in performance. Mr. Hofmann related passages that ordinarily seem far apart. He seemed to pull the whole sonata together. Scorning sentimentality, he played the slow movement with an emotional effect intensified by the very reticence of his style. And he captured Chopin's strange and fantastical moods, which are not explained by rule or written definition. He chose, at time, to emphasize inner voices, to color chords differently than they ordinarily are colored by means of pedal effects and balances of tone not commonly practiced. But all these devices were finishing touches of a master who had the sonata in his mind as a single unit, a single continuous idea, of which the developments crossed the boundaries of sections and even movements and fused the whole work together. The listener emerged with a new conception of the sonata and a renewed realization of the greatness of this pianist, who is so undemonstrative before an audience, and so greatly disdains display or the species of exhibitionism by which virtuosos are accustomed to elicit storms of applause.

Mr. Hofmann's phenomenal technic is now taken for granted. It is not necessary to report. He dealt yesterday with great ideas and emotions. The means by which these ideas were communicated were forgotten. And more than once he threw precedent and even customary proportions to the winds, while the listener sat astounded at things that he had not guessed to be in the music.

Other admirable interpretations were the Nocturne, played with an unostentatious clarity and proportion that contemplated and did not perturb the beauty of the music, and of the early waltz in A flat—wrongly designated on the program as opus 69, which was given an interpretation of delicious fancy, coquetry and sentiment.

The hall was packed as a matter of course, for this concert, and many sat on the stage. Mr. Hofmann very considerably extended his program.

Beatrice Harrison Plays.

Beatrice Harrison, the English violoncellist, gave a concert, assisted by Nicolas Slonimsky and the Chamber Orchestra of Boston, last night in the Martin Beck Theatre. The occasion has interest on account of the presence of a composer as well as a performer of note—Percy Grainger—and a program with much that was novel and interesting upon it. The Chamber Symphony Orchestra of Boston is composed of twenty-one players from the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Slonimsky constructs its programs with enterprise and curiosity for music that is new and old. Miss Harrison had herself music of importance to communicate.

She played with the orchestra the Haydn D major concerto; four short pieces by Herbert Hughes, Frederick Delius, our own Charles H. Dawes; a piece free in form, called "Youthful Rapture" by Mr. Grainger, scored for 'cello, piano, harmonium, and chamber orchestra, with Mr. Grainger present at the harmonium, and the "Suite ancienne," harmonized by Joseph Salmon, of Sammartini. The orchestral compositions were a Sinfonia in D major by Karl Johann Stamitz of the early 18th century and Four Episodes from Chamber Orchestra by Ernest Bloch.

Miss Harrison played the Haydn concerto with delightful taste and a refinement of tone and style well suited to its measures. This performance was the reading of an accomplished musician as well as a 'cellist of parts. The proportions of the orchestra gave the occasion an additional intimacy, although the balances were not always perfect. But this was a charming and intimate treatment of a work heard to far better advantage when treated as it was last night than when it is paraded before an immense gathering, with a full-sized symphony orchestra, in a modern concert hall. Moreover, Miss Harrison's style and technic stood the test of these intimate conditions in a manner more than creditable to her.

Her group of short pieces were Herbert Hughes's arrangement of two Irish folk-tunes, "The Bard of Armagh" and "The Blackbird Reel," a serenade by Delius, played for the first time here, and "The Melody" of the former Vice President and Ambassador of America, which requires neither introduction nor praise for American readers. All these pieces were well contrasted, ingeniously orchestrated for a few instruments, excellently presented. In the composition of Mr. Grainger, Miss Harrison had occasion to produce a bigger tone than earlier in the evening, and she bent to her task with a will, the solo 'cello vibrating against all the other instruments, with considerable contrasting counterpoint from them.

The melody, of a sentimentally Nordic character, pleased the audience, and Mr. Grainger, Miss Harrison, Mr. Slonimsky, bowed again and again. The concert was well arranged to interest and entertain an audience in a small auditorium, and it bore testimony to Miss Harrison's originality in such an arrangement and to the fine qualities of her art.

GALLI-CURCI STIRS HEARERS

Prima Donna's Great Popularity Shown Again at Sunday Concert.

Mme. Galli-Curci's enduring public favor was shown again last evening when the prima donna sang to the largest audience of this season's many "emergency fund" concerts at the Metropolitan. She was greeted with prolonged applause as she appeared for the familiar "Shadow Song" from "Dinorah," and she added a later group of songs accompanied by Homer Samuels.

An uncommonly generous program included other song groups for Mmes. Matzenauer and Attwood and Messrs. Tokatyan and Tibbett. Grace Moore gave the aria "Depuis le jour" from "Louise," and there were duets from "Tales of Hoffmann" for Gladys Swarthout and Tokatyan and from "Forza del Destino" for Frances Peralta and Pinza. Wilfred Pelletier led orchestra interludes by Mancinelli, Delibes and Brahms.

CONCERT IN ST. GEORGE'S.

Hadley Conducts Manhattan Orchestra Before Audience of 1,400.

Before an audience of 1,400 that filled St. George's Church last night, with many standing at the doors, the Manhattan Symphony Orchestra played the first of three concerts arranged there by invitation of unnamed subscribers and broadcast by WOR.

The Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland spoke in an intermission, saying he hoped the time would come when such music could be heard in the church each Sunday evening. Despite a printed request for "no applause," the hundreds present showed their appreciation in silence as absolute as that of the host of listeners by radio.

David Barnet was a piano soloist in the well-played Mozart concerto in D minor. With the eighty musicians closely grouped before the chancel, Conductor Hadley opened with the Bach-Abert prelude and fugue and closed with Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony.

BODANZKY GIVES NOVELTY.

Cherubini's Requiem Mass Performed by Friends of Music.

The Friends of Music, Artur Bodanzky conductor, offered a program of unusual novelty yesterday afternoon in Mecca Temple when they gave the Cherubini Requiem Mass in C minor the first concert performance it has had this century, and also presented Rose Patorni-Casadesus, harpsichordist, and Henri Casadesus, player of the viole d'amour, as performers of Cimarosa's "Divertissement" for the two instruments.

The skill of the two performers was not, perhaps, fully appreciated in the large auditorium, which the sonorities of the instruments only half filled. But this was an artistic prelude to the great and too seldom heard work of Cherubini. His Requiem Mass was justly esteemed by such composers as Berlioz and Beethoven, and yesterday it made a strong impression upon a modern audience. The famous Credo for eight voices "a capella" is only one of its beauties. It has the severe and noble quality of writing and the substantial mastery of counterpoint for which Cherubini was rightly honored. He was a melodist of a classic sort. His emotions were not worn on his sleeve, but in the form of the Requiem Mass they find enduring and elevated expression. Many in yesterday's audience, as they left the hall, were heard to express the wish that this particular composition, performed so well by the chorus and orchestra, Mr. Bodanzky conducting, might be repeated before the present season of the Friends of Music ends.

JOINT RECITAL PLEASES.

Stephanie Wall, Singer, and Fern Sherman, Harpsichordist, Heard.

Stephanie Wall, mezzo-soprano, and Fern Sherman, harpsichordist with Solon Alberti at the pianò, gave a pleasing program last night at Steinway Hall. The singer and harpsichordist were both dressed appropriately to the 18th century music they presented. Instead of formidable academic items the artists happily chose the sort which a social gathering of the period might have enjoyed.

Miss Wall began with Händel and Haydn and some Lane Wilson arrangements of "Cavalier" lyrics, adding Holland Robinson's "Travelogue Tales," David Guion's "Five Louisiana Songs of Slavery," and Herbert Hughes's "Mother Goose Rhymes" done in the style of various composers. Miss Sherman played short realistic pieces, like Rameau's "Tambourin," Daquin's "Le Coucou," Scarlatti's and Corelli's "Pastorales," and Händel's "Harmonious Blacksmith."

The audience, which filled the intimate hall, showed its pleasure frequently.

ARTHUR HACKETT HEARD.

Tenor Gives Concert Before Large Audience—Other Events.

Arthur Hackett, concert tenor, as widely known as his brother Charles of the Chicago Civic Opera, sang to a large audience at the Guild Theatre last night, assisted at the piano by Walter Golde. Mr. Hackett's fine lyric style gave delight in songs such as Faure's "Roses of Ispahan." His program ranged from Beethoven's "Adelaide" to modern German, of which Haile's "Im Zitternden Moonlicht" was redemanded, and some final English with half a dozen encores.

Carroll Ault, baritone, was a recital giver yesterday in the "new American artists" series at the Barbizon Hotel, assisted by the Barbizon String Quartet.

Amelia Conti, former Chicago Opera harpist and daughter of Arnaldo Conti, late conductor of the Boston Opera, had a concert last evening at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

DANCE SERIES ENDS.

Gala Performance at Repertory Theatre—Illness Keeps Horst Away.

The first season of the Dance Repertory Theatre closed last night in a gala performance in which Martha Graham, Doris Humphrey, Tamiris, Charles Weidman and their dance groups joined forces for the third time. The house, as at both previous joint performances, was completely sold out, and there was prolonged applause for all of the artists.

The only blemish on the evening, and that a considerable one, was the illness of Louis Horst, the musical director and accompanist at all the other performances. Four pianists were required to fill his place; Ruth Gordon and Dini de Remer, for Miss rGaham; Genevieve Pitot, for Tamiris, and Pauline Lawrence, for Miss Humphrey and Mr. Weidman. In spite of their excellent emergency service, Mr. Horts's presence was missed both by dancers and audience.

The program was in the nature of a summary of the week, including dances that have only recently received their first production and others that belong to past seasons. There were numerous changes from the printed schedule on account of Mr. Horst's absence. Miss Graham presented the Honegger "Danse," "Moment Rustica," "Lamentation," "Project in Movement for a Divine Comedy," "Fuitlity" (one of the two Krenek "Chants"), and "Heretic." Tamiris's dances were "Sentimental Dance," "Three Negro Spirituals," "Dance of the City," "Dirge" and "Triangle Dance." Miss Humphrey and Mr. Weidman presented "Salutation to the Deuths," "Drama in Movement," "Descent Into a Dangerous Place," "The Marionette Theatre," "The Conspirator" and "Air on a Ground Bass."

Two other dance events were included in the evening's activities, one of them being the third and final concert of Spanish dances by Carola Goya in her series of three at Hampden's Theatre, and the other Peggy Taylor's recital at the Gansevoort Theatre in Greenwich Village in which she was assisted by Virginia Aechel.

TO WRITE 'REVUE OPERETTE'

Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart Engaged by Charles B. Cochran.

Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart have been signed to write the music, lyrics and book for a musical show to be produced next Fall in London by Charles B. Cochran, who sailed for England on Friday night. Jessie Matthews, featured in the current New York production of "Wake Up and Dream," will have the feminine lead in the show, heralded as a "revue operette." The book will be the first written by Mr. Rodgers and Mr. Hart.

LEAGUE OF COMPOSERS OPENS CONCERT SERIES

Erskine Tells Members He Will Urge State Subsidies for Opera Houses.

The League of Composers as an innovation in its seventh season, gave the first of a series of Sunday afternoon concerts yesterday in the intimate hall of the Art Centre in East Fifty-sixth Street, where the performing artists were fittingly surrounded by representative creations in the arts of painting and sculpture.

Dr. John Erskine of the Juilliard Foundation spoke on "The American Composer." Louis Gruenberg, in introducing the speaker, said he hoped Dr. Erskine would not pat the league on the back "and then proceed to forget all about us."

Dr. Erskine offered constructive suggestions to composers.

"The native composer," he said, "is posed with two problems: to get his work heard and to get paid for it. The arts are congested in New York, while other parts of the country starve. New York trained musicians are loath to return to their homes and thus create this condition. Composers are like poets in that they give unasked-for articles. Men in the past taught or found a patron. The league ought to ponder this problem, and seek an answer."

Dr. Erskine said he planned to ask the Governors of the various States to give municipal subsidy to State opera houses where native talent could have its chance. At present this country is what Central Europe would be with about three opera houses instead of the present eighty.

The artists were Ethel Codd Luening, soprano, who sang Evelyn Berckman's "Spring in the Orchard," accompanied by the Russian String Quartet. She also sang Georges Migot's "Hommage a Thibaud de Champagne" unaccompanied, but perfectly on pitch, and sustaining the interest of the audience in a difficult task.

The Russian String Quartet played Achron's "Four Impressions" and Bernard Rogers's second quartet in D minor. Alix Young Maruchess and Frank Bibb also gave Paul Hindemith's "small" sonata for viola d'amore and piano, which they had introduced earlier at Steinway Hall.

DANCING TEACHERS DINE.

Annual Luncheon of New York Organization at the Astor.

The annual luncheon of The New York Society Teachers of Dancing was held yesterday at the Hotel Astor, President A. J. Weber presiding. Among the guests were Ula Sharon, Harland Dixon, Louis Chalif, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bott, Jack Manning, Miss V. Kemp of Australia, George Jacobus of Utica, Edward Downey of Albany and Mr. and Mrs. George Rutherford of Poughkeepsie.

The beginning of "Try Dancing Week," fostered by the National Association of Dancing Teachers, was emphasized by the speakers, among whom were Mr. Dixon, Dorothy Norman Cropper, who described "What New York Is Dancing"; Adolf Newberger, Clara I. Austin, Mr. Chalif and Mr. Bott. The program was arranged by Rose D. Ackerman and included demonstrations of ballroom dancing by Mr. Rutherford and of musical comedy steps by Mrs. Rutherford.

FRIARS FROLIC IN MIAMI.

Members to Give Show Feb. 26, Day Before Heavyweight Bout.

The Friars' Miami Frolic, the club's second Florida benefit performance, will be staged at the Olympia in that city on Feb. 26, a day before the heavyweight bout between Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott. A Friars' Frolic special train will leave New York on Feb. 19, returning on March 1. During the eight-day stay in Miami the train will afford living accommodations for the party, which will not be restricted to members of the club. Fred Block will manage the tour for the Friars.

Tea in Honor of Daniel Frohman.

Mrs. Joseph Howland Hunt and Mrs. Frederick K. Rupprecht will act as hostesses at an Actors' Fund matinee tea to be given on Wednesday afternoon in honor of Daniel Frohman at Mrs. Rupprecht's home, 1,115 Fifth Avenue. Donald Ogden Stewart will preside as master of ceremonies, and the program will include entertainment by Richard Hale, Dorothy Sands, Jack Buchanan and Genevieve Tobin. Mr. Frohman, Frank Gillmore and Mrs. Dorothy Kirchner Earle will speak.

"REBOUND" PREMIERE FEB. 3

Hope Williams to Be Featured in Arthur Hopkins's Production.

Arthur Hopkins's fourth production of the season, "Rebound," a play by Donald Ogden Stewart, will open at the Plymouth Theatre on Monday, Feb. 8. Hope Williams, who played the leading rôle last season in Philip Barry's "Holiday," will be featured for the first time, heading a cast that will also include Donn Cook. Mr. Hopkins will direct the play and Robert Edmond Jones will design the production.

"Rebound" is to open in Hartford on Jan. 27 and play there for a week before its première at the Plymouth. Previous productions by Mr. Hopkins this season have been "The Commodore Marries," "The Channel Road" and "Half Gods."

BE COMFORTABLE

LIGHT UP!

LIGHT IS A NECESSITY in any home—not a luxury.

Why be a LIGHT MISER? Electric light is so cheap that abundant use of it is true economy. Current for a 50 watt lamp costs only one cent for two and one half hours, at the highest rate in our schedules!

MODERN LIGHTING reveals the beauties in your home. It adds its own decorative charm to them.

MODERN LIGHTING protects you from the bumps and falls, usually in badly lighted rooms, which make up 40% of the accidents in homes.

MODERN LIGHTING prevents eye strain which leads to many serious ills, especially among children and young people.

ABUNDANT LIGHT, scientifically applied, is a NECESSITY—not a luxury.

OUR LIGHTING ENGINEERS will make a survey of your home, office, factory, store, and help you bring your lighting up to modern standards. Use them. Their services will cost you nothing.

AMERICAN PREMIERE OF 'SADKO' ON JAN. 25

Metropolitan to Give Rimsky-Korsakov's Lyric Legend With Undersea Ballet.

JOHNSON IN TITLE ROLE

Edith Fleischer to Sing Submarine Princess — Composer's Development of Opera Took 30 Years.

Foremost among novelties in rehearsal at the Metropolitan this season, Rimsky-Korsakov's "Sadko" is now definitely announced for its first stage performance in America by the local opera company on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 25. The Russian composer's development of this "lyric legend" occupied some thirty years of his career. His first sketches date from the period when, as a young officer of the Czar's navy, he spent some months in the port of New York during the Civil War.

General Manager Gatti-Casazza has prepared the work under the musical direction of Tullio Serafin, with Ernst Lert in charge of the stage. Giulio Setti has rehearsed the chorus and Rosina Galli the ballet, both of which play an important part in the under-sea episodes of the legendary story. The opera's seven scenes as well as special "curtain" and elaborate costume sketches are the work of the Russian artist Serge Soudeikine.

Edward Johnson will take the title role of Sadko, strolling singer of Novgorod, with Ina Bourskaya as his wife, Editha Fleischer as the submarine princess, Volkhova, and Ludikar as king of the sea. Others are Altglass and Macpherson as Novgorod sheriffs, Gladys Swarthout as a Kiev guitar player, Falco, Bessiner, d'Angelo and Bada as jesters, Gustafson, Basiola and Tedesco as touring merchants, and Cehanovsky as an apparition.

Musical excerpts from "Sadko" have been sung in New York at concerts of the Schola Cantorum and the submarine ballet was danced by the Diaghileff Troupe. The familiar "symphonic sketch" of 1867 was played here by Boston Symphony under Koussevitzky last week.

OVATION TO MENGELBERG.

Conductor Begins Last Week Here —Gabrilowitsch the Soloist.

Willem Mengelberg began with yesterday's crowded matinee of the Philharmonic-Symphony at the Metropolitan Opera House a round of personal farewells that will continue with other audiences through the week until next Sunday's last appearance of the eminent Dutch conductor at Carnegie Hall. Admirers at the Opera House acclaimed Mr. Mengelberg not only before the interval but repeatedly after Tchaikovsky's "Pathetique" symphony, which closed his program. The conductor beckoned the orchestra to rise and join him in receiving the applause, while they remained standing during his recalls.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch reappeared at the matinee as soloist in Schumann's piano concerto, which again, as at the artist's recent performances of the same work with this orchestra, marked a high point of musical enjoyment. A popular ovation for Mr. Gabrilowitsch was prolonged many minutes during the only pause of the afternoon. The concert opened with Mozart's "Magic Flute" overture.

Tullio Serafin has just been added to the Philharmonic's guest conductors for the season, and will lead the concerts scheduled on March 7, 8 and 10. He has before varied his operatic labors here by leading symphonic programs before the League of Composers and once with both Philadelphia and Philharmonic players of the Wanamaker collection of rare instruments. Mr. Serafin also has conducted orchestras in Turin, Milan, Rome, London and South America.

DONALD PIRNIE'S RECITAL.

Baritone Appears at His Best in German Lyrics.

Donald Pirnie, baritone of serious aims, gave a recital of Italian and Spanish songs, German lieder and English ballads yesterday afternoon at the Town Hall. He wisely devoted half of his recital to German lyrics, for his diction in that language rang truer and his feeling for the style and text seemed nearer to him than was the case in the Latin works.

In a program ranging from the aria "O tu Palermo," from Verdi's "Sicilian Vespers," and Alvarez's "Los Ojos Negros," through songs by Beethoven, Schubert and Erich Wolf to Hammond's "The Pipes of Gordon's Men" and Quilter's "Go, Lovely Rose," Mr. Pirnie displayed a sense of style, a feeling for sustained phrase and a vocal resonance and range which suggest oratorio. A slight lack of flexibility and occasional tendency to sharpen slightly may have been due to the weather. A friendly audience greeted the singer and his accompanist, Frank Chatterton.

MUSIC NOTES.

Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, as president of the National Music League, will be its spokesman today at the opening of the league's program of school concerts, the first of which is at Hillside Avenue School, Hillside, N. J.

Joseph Littau is making his appearance this week as conductor of the large orchestra at the Roxy Theatre. He was born in Elizabeth, N. J., and studied in America, except for one year spent in Berlin.

The American Opera Company sings Loomis's "Yolanda of Cyprus" again tonight at the Casino Theatre, where next Saturday ends both the operatic engagement and the theatre's long career as well.

Ellen Ballon, the Canadian pianist, will be a soloist in Grieg's concerto with the orchestra of the Metropolitan at next Sunday's "opera concert" for the local company's emergency fund.

Praise From A Famous Author! CHANNING POLLOCK says: "I was profoundly moved, not only by the performance itself, but by the re-assertion of the dignity and high destiny of Drama. It was inspiring to be assured that 1930 New York still finds poetry more potent, more stirring and beautiful and important than harlotry and murder. "DEATH TAKES A HOLIDAY" seems to me the high-water mark of the season in which the water has often been very high." A COMEDY ABOUT LIFE, STARRING PHILIP MERIVALE. FINANCIAL MARKETS

Aspects of the Reduced Activity in Stock Market, Trade and Industry.

The fall of daily business on the Stock Exchange last Wednesday to not much more than 1,500,000 shares, and the shrinkage reported for December's steel production to the lowest of any month since 1924, attracted attention to the scope of reduction in the pace both of finance and industry. Varying views were taken of it. The comment somewhat generally made in Wall Street was that the exceptionally low pitch to which current activities had fallen is itself an indication that the tide is about to turn. If this meant merely that some point is eventually reached so low that subsequent activities must show improvement, the remark was an obvious truism. Wall Street probably meant more than that, however, and had in mind the precedent of rapidly increased trading and a substantial rise in prices very soon after an extremely low point of suspended activity had been reached. Watchers of trade and industry have adopted a similar idea.

The presumption seems to be that normal investing and consuming power is so great, that a spell of subnormal investment and production is bound soon to occasion heavy buying, to meet requirements that can be no longer postponed. Sometimes the motive for suspension of orders is expectation of lower prices. Sometimes it is a vague sense of apprehension. But if prices of stocks and merchandise do not break further, and if actual business conditions are seen to have been regarded too unfavorably, the upward turn should be proportionately rapid.

One theoretical possibility, it will be observed, is ignored in this reasoning—continuance, for a period more or less prolonged, of uninterrupted stagnation in trade and on the markets. That happened after our older panics. Taking steel production as a measure, the country's output in the full calendar year 1908, following the October crisis of the preceding year, was barely 60 per cent of the previous year's figure; even in Autumn, improvement was described as very gradual. Stock market activity recovered quite as slowly. Twelve months after the Stock Exchange crisis of 1893, there was still suspended animation in both stocks and industry. Even after the shock of Europe's plunge into war in midsummer, 1914, production did not strike the normal pre-war pace again until the ensuing Summer. It regained it then only because of war orders from the European belligerents; the certainty of which, however, the alert stock market had been indicating by its own movement months before.

This wartime and pre-war experience indicates that the stock market will on such occasions take its cue from trade. Certainly it becomes the barometer of industrial probabilities at times like this, as it did not do in the recent speculative craze. It has done so frequently since the war. "Deflation" was in almost uninterrupted course between May of 1920 and the Autumn of 1921; the stock market's decline began in April, 1920, lasting with occasional brief changes of direction until June of the ensuing year. Recovery in trade, after the Autumn relapse of 1923, did not begin in earnest until the Autumn of 1924. From a daily average of a million shares in January of the last-named year, and of 1,800,000 on one day in February, transactions on the Stock Exchange fell progressively to 430,000 on one five-hour day of May and to 310,000 at the opening of June. Not until November were they back at the 2,500,000 mark.

Only through the course of events shall we discover how far, if at all, the present period of reaction belongs in the category of those older periods. At the moment, however, the disposition evidently is to look for precedent to the stock market's swift resumption of great activity after the break in prices in November and June of 1928, and the equally rapid rise of production to a new high mark after the six months' reaction of 1927. It will be an exceedingly interesting economic test; there is at least as much to say in favor of early and emphatic recovery on this occasion as there is to say against it. What we shall have to guard against is the tendency to take for granted, from slow and partial increase of activity, that the process of recuperation is completed and that 1926 or the Summer of 1929 is at once to be duplicated.

A Short Term Investment
Yielding 7%

We recommend for short term investment the 7% Series B, Collateral Trust Notes of First Industrial Bankers, Inc. These notes are due August 15, 1930. For every $1,000 note outstanding Company reports net tangible assets in excess of $1,800, represented largely by outstanding small loans.

These loans have an average life of seven months and are virtually self liquidating. For eleven months of 1929 the Company reports earnings of more than $98,000. This figure is net, save for the deduction of Federal Taxes and interest upon these notes. Interest payable on notes in 1929 was less than $31,000.

Stock purchase warrants attached to these notes add a profit opportunity to their investment value.

Descriptive circular and our booklet, "The Business of Industrial Banking," will be sent upon request.

What Happens to the Large Estates?

TWENTY-FIVE PERCENT of the net assets of large estates is depleted during the settlement period. This is the average shrinkage in estates of $300,000 and over probated in New York County in recent years. What causes this shrinkage? How can it be minimized?

We have made a comprehensive survey of the court records and this matter of shrinkage is fully discussed in our booklet "WHAT HAPPENS TO THE LARGE ESTATES" a copy of which will be sent you on request.

LONDON EXPECTED LOWER BANK RATE

Disappointed at Last Week's Maintenance of the 5 Per Cent Charge.

WATCH FOREIGN BORROWING

Believed Bank Failed to Reduce Rate Because Easy London Money Was Attracting Continental Bills.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Financial London was disappointed this week when the Bank of England decided to leave its discount rate at 5 per cent. A reduction to 4½ had been confidently anticipated, in view of the fall in open market rates fully 1 per cent below the bank rate. That this opinion was shared abroad seemed to be indicated by the general movement of foreign exchange against London during the early part of the week.

It is considered highly probable, however, that the fall in sterling was one of the factors which influenced the bank in leaving its rate unchanged. At the moment, it is difficult to determine the precise nature of the influences responsible for the rather decided retrograde movement of foreign exchange since the turn of the year. It seems to the market fairly clear, however, that the fall in London discount rates has resulted in the offering of large amounts of foreign bills in London, those of German origin being fairly plentiful. The Bank's decision not to lower its rate suggests that it does not consider the time ripe for the London market to indulge freely in the granting of credit to European countries.

It is true continued satisfactory progress is being made by the Bank of England in rebuilding its gold reserve. Thursday's statement showed the gold holdings to be nearly £19,000,000 above the low record of last October, and only three quarters of a million below the Cunliffe minimum of £150,000,000. Moreover, the general status of the Bank has greatly improved, in consequence of rapid decline since Christmas in the note circulation. Further strengthening of its position during the next few weeks seems certain.

But on the other hand there is evidence that the inflow of gold from abroad will be much less rapid in the future than during the last month or two. Thus there seems to be sufficient uncertainty in the immediate outlook to justify the Bank in refusing to give further impetus to a downward movement in money rates. The longer outlook, however, is regarded as entirely favorable, and a lower bank rate is considered to have been merely postponed.

RECORD GOLD OUTPUT IN THE TRANSVAAL

Last Year's South African Production Exceeded Previous Yearly Maximum by $1,000,000.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Gold output of the Transvaal in December, as reported by the Chamber of Mines, was £3,617,778 comparing with £3,661,770 in November and £3,653,984 a year ago. For the whole year the output of the Transvaal constitutes a new high record, amounting to £44,259,778, as against £44,024,058 in 1928 and £43,055,178 in 1927.

In the first half of the year Transvaal production was considerably in excess of a similar period in 1928, but in the latter half a shortage of native labor considerably affected results.

The gold output of the Transvaal in 1929 compares as follows with preceding years:

1929	£44,200,000	1921	£34,500,000
1928	44,000,000	1920	34,700,000
1927	43,000,000	1919	35,400,000
1926	42,300,000	1918	35,800,000
1925	40,800,000	1917	38,300,000
1924	40,700,000	1916	39,500,000
1923	38,900,000	1915	38,600,000
1922	*29,800,000	1914	35,700,000

*Output temporarily reduced by strike of white miners.

Flow of Gold to London Likely Now to Be Reduced

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—The rather rapid fall in American exchange this week was quite contrary to general expectations here. It has definitely stopped any movement of gold from New York to London, and the last of the gold shipped from Argentina prior to the closing of the conversion office has now come in. Australian gold amounting to £2,000,000 is still to arrive, and shipments from South Africa to London continue to be substantial. But it is now mainly on the South African gold that the Bank will have to rely for replenishing its reserve.

The problem of French demands on London's gold also appears to be unsolved. There is no evidence that any special arrangements have been made with the Bank of France to prevent further gold withdrawals from London. On the contrary, Paris again bought a small amount of gold in the London open market this week and, if New York decides that it has released sufficient gold, any further French demands would probably fall on London.

'HATRY SETTLEMENT' EXPECTED AT LONDON

Looking Now for Adjustment of Stock Exchange Differences Without Failures.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—In contrast with conditions which prevailed during the closing weeks of the past year, the London stock market has been buoyant during the past few days. One reason was expectation that a special settlement in connection with the Hatry group of shares will be possible within the next few weeks. Arrangements have now been practically completed whereby the differences between the Stock Exchange firms, arising out of dealings in these securities, can be met without failures.

A fund for this purpose has been raised from Stock Exchange firms, banks and other interests. The claims of the public will also be met out of this fund. Revival in the markets is also favored by prospects of cheaper money and by the fact that sufficient time has now elapsed since the American collapse and other unpleasant incidents of last year for the British public to recover its balance.

LONDON MARKET FOR LOANS

Preparing for Resumption of Issues of New Securities.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Although British investors are still very wary, with their interest largely confined to securities of high standing, it is upon those lines that financial business is expected to expand during the coming months. Some signs of changing sentiment and of a more receptive public seem to indicate fairly early revival in new capital issue.

One well-established industrial company placed a loan successfully this week and others are being discussed. Plans are also being laid for providing loans needed for reorganizing and re-equipping industries which are still laboring under the effects of the prolonged depression. Assistance in this direction may in a good many cases have to be given through the medium of bank loans, with the government itself standing behind the banks.

BANK OF ENGLAND'S GOLD.

Past Week's Receipts £2,825,939, Withdrawals Slight.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Gold taken in by the Bank of England during the past calendar week was £2,825,939, of which £1,035,000 came from South Africa, £750,000 from South America and £1,000,000 from Australia. The week's withdrawals were only £75,278.

During the coming week, £900,000 in bar gold is due to arrive in London from South Africa for sale in the open market. Present indications are that the Bank of England will secure most of this.

MOVEMENT OF GOLD TO PARIS ARRESTED

Fall in Exchange Makes Shipments From New York or London Unprofitable.

MONEY CONTINUES EASY

Reserve Ratio at Bank of France Rises, Despite Increase of Circulation to Record-Breaking Figure.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—Although Thursday's statement by the Bank of France showed further increase of 765,000,000 francs in its gold reserve, the statement covered gold import engagements made a week or more previously. With the present lower exchange rates, shipment of gold from New York on London to Paris has become impossible, and the movement is not considered likely to be resumed yet awhile.

It is still evident, however, that the bank has done nothing to affect the gold movement, and that it took no step to encourage the recent large gold importations. It is generally agreed that its managers now consider the present gold reserve sufficient, and a firm conviction exists in Paris banking circles that, if occasion should arise, the bank would make no opposition to gold exports. For the present, however, that contingency does not enter into practical consideration.

In the money market there was little change this week. Supplies remained plentiful, with three months' bills bought at 3⅝ per cent. The bank return, dated Jan. 3, showed decrease of 739,000,000 francs in bills discounted. This was due to collection of matured bills, and private deposits decreased 620,000,000 francs, while deposits by the Treasury and the Caisse d'Amortissement decreased 660,000,000 francs.

The rise of 1,718,000,000 francs in circulation of the bank was credited to heavy demands for cash in the new year gift season and therefore was looked on as only temporary. Despite the increased circulation, the ratio of reserve to liabilities rose from 47.26 to 47.86; this increase being wholly due to the increase in gold reserves.

BRITISH PRODUCTION LARGE LAST AUTUMN

Board of Trade's Index of Industrial Output 110 1-3, Against 100¼ Year Before.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—The quarterly index of industrial production in Great Britain, published this week by the Board of Trade, shows for the September quarter a substantial rise as compared with the three months preceding or with the same quarter last year. The percentage for the third quarter [based on 100 for 1924] is 110.3; it compares with 100.2 for the corresponding period last year and with 105.5 for the whole of 1928. All groups of commodities contributed to the increase except textiles.

At the moment, there is a feeling that real trade revival will for the present depend upon the raising of money by industrial companies, and on the manner in which the government handles the problem of procuring funds, which it now appears must be had in order to balance the budget.

BOURSE IN PARIS IS IDLE.

Speculators Stand Aside After Past Year's Losses.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—During this week prices on the Bourse were outwardly firm, but quotations moved very little. Business declined to a very small volume.

The general impression was that speculators were standing aside after the heavy losses undergone in 1929.

Associated Telephone Utilities Company

Fifteen-Year 5½% Convertible Gold Debentures, Series C

Dated May 1, 1929 — Due May 1, 1944

Coupon debentures, $1,000 and $500 denominations, registerable as to principal. Interest payable semi-annually May 1 and November 1 at the office of Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company in Chicago or at the office of the Bankers Trust Company in New York. Redeemable at any time at the option of the Company, in whole or in part, on 30 days' published notice at 105 up to and including April 30, 1939, and thereafter at 1% less for each succeeding year or portion thereof, plus accrued interest in all cases. The Company agrees to reimburse, if requested within sixty days after payment, the Pennsylvania, Connecticut and California four mills tax and the Massachusetts income tax up to 6%. Interest payable without deduction for the normal federal income tax up to 2%. Continental National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago, Trustee.

Mr. Marshall E. Sampsell, President of the Company, summarizes as follows his letter to us:

Business: The Associated Telephone Utilities Company, incorporated in Delaware in 1926, will upon completion of this financing, control through stock ownership or otherwise, groups of telephone properties serving a total population in excess of 3,110,000. These properties operate in 1,246 communities in the states of California, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming. They include 397,428 stations and constitute one of the largest groups of independent telephone properties in the United States. Through interconnections with the lines of the Bell Telephone Companies, the long distance toll lines of the Bell System are available to all subscribers. Of the total gross operating revenues, approximately 22.4% is derived from toll business.

Earnings: Consolidated earnings (including the earnings of all properties to be presently controlled) for the years ended December 31, 1927, December 31, 1928 and October 31, 1929, after giving effect to present financing, were as follows:

Gross earnings	$11,347,013.61	$12,159,645.94	$13,072,737.14
Operating expenses and taxes	6,417,589.24	6,577,457.53	6,809,633.88
Net earnings before depreciation	$ 4,929,424.37	$ 5,582,188.41	$ 6,263,103.26
Operating companies annual bond interest and preferred stock dividend requirements			2,023,553.50
Earnings accruing to minority common stock interest			73,269.54
Balance			$ 4,166,280.22
Annual interest on entire funded debt of Associated Telephone Utilities Company (including this issue)			854,035.00
Balance available for reserves, federal taxes and dividends			$ 3,312,245.22

Consolidated net earnings, as above set forth, for the year ended October 31, 1929 were more than 4.8 times the interest requirements on all the outstanding debentures of the Company (including this issue).

Equity: These debentures, totalling $15,576,000 of all series take precedence as to assets and earnings over 45,035 shares of no par value Prior Preferred Stock, 50,000 shares of no par value preferred stock and 580,975 shares of no par value Common Stock. These securities, junior to the debentures, have a present market value in excess of $21,000,000. The replacement value of the operating properties, less depreciation, is substantially in excess of all funded indebtedness and preferred stocks of the operating companies and all funded indebtedness, Prior Preferred and Preferred Stock of this Company.

Conversion: Each $1,000 debenture, with all unmatured coupons attached, is convertible at the holder's option into Common Stock on the following terms: To and including May 1, 1932, into 33 shares of Common Stock; and thereafter to and including May 1, 1935, into 30 shares of Common Stock. Each $500 debenture is likewise convertible into Common Stock on the same proportionate basis. After May 1, 1935, all conversion rights cease.

Price 99 and interest, to yield 5.60%

These debentures are offered for delivery when, as and if issued and accepted by us and subject to approval of counsel. The books and accounts of the corporation and its subsidiaries are audited annually by Arthur Andersen & Co., Certified Public Accountants, Chicago.

BERLIN SEES MONEY EASY, STOCKS HIGHER

Lower Bank Rate Considered Certain, but Action Will Not Be Hurried.

GOLD IMPORTS UNLIKELY

Possibility of "Reparations Mobilization Loan" Is Causing Hesitancy Among Banks.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—Developments of the new year thus far seem to confirm the judgment of official and private experts that 1930 in Germany would be a year of cheaper money, more accessible capital, active and rising Stock Exchange prices, and weakness in industry. In all of those respects it would resemble 1926. Money has so greatly cheapened, and the volume of demand for credit has fallen off so rapidly that an early cut in the Reichsbank rate is now considered certain.

Some financiers, however, advise Schacht to wait until the termination of The Hague conference. Uncertainty about this is believed to have retarded the expected cut in the Bank of England rate. It is also reported that President Schacht fears a new increase in borrowing by public bodies and that this may prove an impediment to a lower bank rate.

Meantime, money is plentiful and cheap, though further decline in rates was temporarily effected this week by demand arising from the quarterly income and turnover tax payments. Day loans on Friday were at 5¾ to 7½, monthly loans at 8¼ to 9½, private discounts going at 6⅛.

Berlin bankers consider that Germany will not import gold in large quantities during the next few months, but think that gold imports into France will continue unless the French bank reduces its discount rate. The general view here is that the Bank of France intends to accumulate gold and to use such accumulations in order to increase the ease of the Paris money market. Through this, it is thought, the bank would help the government in putting through its large scheme of converting French public loans.

All plans of this kind might be upset, however, if the loan for mobilizing reparations were to be floated. That seems to be one reason for the present timidity of central bank managers everywhere.

EUROPE IS PUZZLED OVER OUR SITUATION

Finds Outlook Obscure in Several Directions—Watching American Export Trade.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 10.—It is considered here that the large export of gold from New York which occurred around the end of December was on the whole a good symptom in the American situation. As for the American Stock Exchange, it is believed that the contest by the professional bulls and bears is still in progress, and that some months will be required before the situation in that market has regained a normal status.

The uncertain part of the American outlook is still felt to be industrial production, which does not yet appear to show any real symptom of revival.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—The trade journal Industrie und Handelszeitung predicts that America's internal economic condition in 1930 will force her to export increasingly, and that Germany may expect severe competition. In regard to predictions of reviving domestic trade activity in America, the Zeitung calls it "Hoover prosperity" and considers it unreal.

The large increase in merchandise exports from the United States last year, as indicated by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, is commented on here as remarkable, in view of the year's great reduction in American loans to foreign countries. That reduction, it was thought, should normally have led to weakening of export trade. The small increase of imports, however, is considered due to the decline in prices for import of foreign products. The decline in America's export trade with Germany is associated with the decrease in German borrowing.

FALL IN BRITISH PRICES.

Board of Trade Puts December Average 4¼% Below 1928.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—The Board of Trade's index of wholesale prices in Great Britain during December is 132.5, comparing with 134 in November and with 138.3 a year ago. The December index was the lowest of the year and contrasted with the year's high point of 140.1 in March. The average for the full year 1929 works out at 136.5, as against 140.3 for 1928.

Based on 100 as the average for 1913, the board's December index number of wholesale British prices makes the following comparisons with preceding months and years:

Dec., 1929	132.5	Dec., 1928	138.3
Nov., 1929	134.0	Dec., 1927	140.4
Oct., 1929	136.1	Dec., 1926	146.1
Sept., 1929	135.8	Dec., 1925	153.2
Aug., 1929	135.8	Dec., 1924	170.1
July, 1929	137.4	Dec., 1923	163.6

The board's monthly average for 1921 was 197.2; in 1920 was 307.3. The lowest annual average since the war, until the resumption of gold payments in 1925, was 158.5 in 1921.

HOPES FOR BERLIN MARKET

Stocks Rise on Foreign Buying—Lower Bank Rate Would Help.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—The Berlin stock market was firmer last week, with a pronounced upward movement at the week-end, due to foreign buying. Stocks chiefly bought here were electrical shares. It was notable that usually inactive stocks of small corporations led the market.

Bankers consider that further reduction in the Reichsbank discount rate would start a general bull market at Berlin, if it should coincide with successful results at The Hague conference.

Overproduction of Cotton And Grain Discussed Abroad

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—The German cotton trade expert, Dr. Theodore Buehler, warns that the threatened overproduction of raw cotton in the world will compel some sort of international agreement. It has also been asserted that the falling prices for cereals are due to renewal of Russian exports. This, however, is not believed by German experts, who declare that most of the Russian wheat export has come from the Crimea.

Last year's crops in that district were excellent, but Russia still has no large exportable reserve. The reason for pushing exports is clearly Russia's need for foreign exchange with which to pay for necessary imports, but since the condition of food supplies in all Russian towns is very bad, it is not believed that the Soviet can force grain exports on a large scale.

Larger Deficit in German Budget.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—The Federal Treasury reports a deficit at the end of November amounting to 900,000,000 marks, as against 812,000,000 at the end of October. This shortage, however, represents entirely budget deficits carried over from the preceding financial year.

NO REVIVAL VISIBLE IN GERMAN INDUSTRY

Unemployed Exceed 1,700,000—Report by Steel Company Shows Reduced Orders.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—Current indications seem to confirm the view of experts that German trade is declining. The labor market is worse; unemployed now exceed 1,700,000 in number, and there are half a million out of work in Berlin alone. Still, the greater part of the unemployment is seasonal, and the labor market will improve at the beginning or the middle of February.

The steel trust's quarterly report is unsatisfactory. While production was practically unchanged, sales during the quarter fell from 402,000,000 to 354,000,000 marks. At the end of the quarter, orders on the books were only 70 per cent of the average for the business year 1928-29. The textile industries are doing slightly better.

Link Rome in Radiophone.

Transatlantic telephone service will be extended on Wednesday to the seven "regions" comprising most of Northern Italy south of the Alps, and to the city of Rome.

The added service will be available throughout the twenty-four hours, as in the case of the other European countries. The cost of a call from New York to any point in the added territory will be $51 for the first three minutes and $17 for each additional minute.

$150,000,000
American Telephone and Telegraph Company
THIRTY-FIVE YEAR 5% GOLD DEBENTURES

Dated February 1, 1930 Due February 1, 1965

Issued under Indenture dated February 1, 1930, The First National Bank of the City of New York, Trustee

Interest payable February 1 and August 1 in New York City

Redeemable, at the option of the Company, as a whole but not in part, upon 60 days' notice, on any interest date, at the following prices and accrued interest: on or prior to August 1, 1961, at 110%; thereafter, at 100%.

Coupon Debentures in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100, registerable as to principal. Registered Debentures in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000. Coupon Debentures and registered Debentures, and the several denominations, interchangeable.

Walter S. Gifford, Esq., President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, has furnished us with the following statement regarding this issue:

PURPOSE OF ISSUE This issue of Debentures will provide funds required by the Bell System for additions and betterments and for other capital expenditures.

ASSETS AND EQUITY The assets of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company on September 30, 1929, after deducting current liabilities, were carried on its books at more than $2,378,000,000. Investments (at cost) in its associated and affiliated companies amounted to $2,015,000,000 and in its telephone plant and equipment to $324,000,000. All the property of the Company is free from lien, except certain stocks and bonds pledged to secure approximately $80,000,000 Collateral Trust Bonds. After giving effect to the issue of these Debentures, the Company's long term debt will be less than $670,000,000, whereas capital stock (including paid-up portions of stock payable in installments) will be in excess of $1,400,000,000 par value. Thus funded debt will comprise less than one-third of the Company's total capital liabilities.

EARNINGS The net earnings of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company available for interest, its interest charges and its net income during the five years ended December 31, 1928 were as follows:

Years Ended December 31	Net Earnings Available for Interest	Interest Charges	Net Income	Number of Times Interest Was Earned
1924	$107,619,362	$16,573,041	$ 91,046,321	6.4
1925	129,036,334	21,631,288	107,405,046	5.9
1926	138,931,387	21,940,986	116,990,401	6.3
1927	*150,383,895	21,768,985	128,614,910	6.9
1928	165,268,049	22,097,558	143,170,491	7.4

* Does not include special non-recurring dividend of $47,938,865 received from Western Electric Company, Inc.

During this five-year period, net earnings available for interest averaged more than 6½ times interest charges. It is estimated that for the year 1929 net earnings available for interest were in excess of $193,000,000, or more than 7 times the estimated interest charges during that year.

DIVIDEND RECORD Dividends on the capital stock of the Company and of its predecessor have been paid at the rate of at least $7.50 per share in each of the past 48 years. Since 1921 the annual rate has been $9 per share.

PROVISIONS OF INDENTURE In the Indenture under which these Debentures are to be issued, the Company is to covenant that it will not mortgage any of its telephone lines or plant unless it shall secure these Debentures by stocks or bonds of its telephone operating companies, and that it will not pledge (with certain exceptions and limitations to be set forth in said Indenture) any stocks or bonds of its telephone operating companies unless it shall either secure these Debentures by pledge of securities as above stated, or secure them ratably with any other obligations secured by such pledge. In either case, the Company shall keep so pledged stocks or bonds of a value which shall be equal at all times to 133⅓% of the principal of the debt secured thereby. Any such collateral so to be pledged shall be similar in character to that required for the security of the Company's 30-Year 5% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds due 1946. The provisions for valuation and substitution of stocks and bonds so pledged shall be similar to the corresponding provisions in respect of the collateral securing the above-mentioned 5% Bonds due 1946.

THE ABOVE DEBENTURES ARE OFFERED FOR SUBSCRIPTION, SUBJECT TO THE CONDITIONS STATED BELOW, AT 99½%, LESS AN AMOUNT EQUAL TO INTEREST AT THE RATE OF 5% ON FACE AMOUNT FROM DATE OF PAYMENT TO FEBRUARY 1, 1930.

Subscription books will be opened at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. at 10 o'clock A. M., Monday, January 13, 1930, and will be closed in their discretion. The right is reserved to reject any and all applications, and also, in any case, to award a smaller amount than applied for. All subscriptions will be received subject to the due issue of the Debentures as planned, and to approval by counsel of the form and validity of the related documents and proceedings.

The amounts due on allotments will be payable at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., in New York funds to their order, and the date of payment (on or about January 28, 1930) will be stated in the notices of allotment. Temporary Debentures, exchangeable for definitive Debentures when received, are to be delivered.

BALANCE OF TRADE IMPROVES IN ITALY

Import Surplus of 1929 Estimated 6,100,000,000 Lire; Was 7,361,000,000 in 1928.

ITALIAN MARKET LIFELESS

Feeling Exists, However, That Easy Money Ought to Revive Activity on the Stock Exchange.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 10.—Final figures of Italy's foreign trade for 1929 are not yet available, but it is foreseen with sufficient certainty that importations will total 19,999,000,000 lire, against 21,920,000,000 in the preceding year, while exportations will reach 13,800,000,000, against 14,559,000,000 in 1928, giving an excess of importations of 6,100,000,000 lire for 1929, against 7,361,000,000 the year before. This improvement gives ground for hopefulness this year if the wheat crop is at least equal to last year's.

Since March, 1929, wholesale prices have shown a slow decrease, while prices measured in gold are considerably lower than in other countries. Prices in gold now average in gold 123, against 124 in England, 134 in Germany and 140 in the United States.

Depression on the Italian Stock Exchange continues without any symptom of recovery—indeed, with business so slack as to seem unaccountable when industry and public finances are acting differently. The depression is considered to be the effect of the high tension of money last year, and it is therefore foreseen that with the present easier money conditions a new flow of investors' capital toward stocks and State securities will occur.

REICHSBANK POSITION IS GROWING STRONGER

Heavy Reduction in Credits and Note Issue—Sharp Rise of Reserve Ratio.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—The Reichsbank's return of last Thursday showed an enormous drop in credits. Discounts, advances and investments, taken together, declined during the week by 654,000,000 marks. A large decline in the volume of credit invariably occurs during the first week of every year, but the significant feature of this return is the 439,000,000 decrease in circulation.

Circulation of Reichsbank and Rentenbank notes combined is now smaller than at the same date in 1929. The ratio of reserves to Reichsbank circulation rose during the week from 53.3 per cent to 58.4. One reason for the improvement is the shrinkage in demand for credit by the Reich and other public borrowers. Discounts of treasury bills decreased during the week by the large sum of 217,000,000 marks.

STOCK AVERAGE HIGHER.

"Fisher Index" Makes Slight Advance for Past Week.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN., Jan. 10.—Professor Irving Fisher's index of Stock Exchange prices based on the 255 most important stocks on the market, reckoned on their average of 1926 as 100, shows an average of 140.9 for the past week, as against 138.8 a week ago, 136.4 two weeks ago, 141.2 three weeks ago and 147.3 four weeks ago. The average of Sept. 6, which was 209.7, was the highest for 1929; the 130.1 of Nov. 15 was the lowest.

Another index number, compiled by Professor Irving Fisher and based on the fifty most active industrial stocks of the week, is 723.3. This compares with 702.9 a week before, 686.9 two weeks before, 748.1 three weeks before and 782.2 four weeks before.

TRUST'S HOLDINGS SHRINK $7,230,737

Dec. 31 Book Value of General American Is $5,232,369 More Than Market Value.

Company Reports $6,873,485 Profit for Year, but Market Value Basis Would Show Loss.

The General American Investors Company, Inc., an investment trust organized and managed by Lazard Freres and Lehman Brothers, reports that the aggregate market value of its securities on Dec. 31 was $5,232,369 less than book value. In addition a letter to stockholders reports that the aggregate market value of securities held at the end of 1928 was $1,998,367 greater than the book value, the total decrease in market value during the year was $7,230,737.

Net profit for the year, after interest and taxes, was $6,873,485, of which $6,797,745 was realized on the sale of securities. If the books of the company were kept on the basis of market value instead of cost, the company would have shown a loss for the year of $357,252, after provision for interest and taxes, and before dividends on the preferred stock. The surplus of the company amounted to $14,031,308 on Dec. 31.

The company's assets were largely invested at the end of the year, securities at cost amounting to $38,225,670, compared with total assets of $39,385,454. Cash and call loans amounted to $537,303. More than 80 per cent of the company's securities at present cost consist of common stocks. The investment in bonds amounted to $3,248,068; in preferred stocks, $3,770,054, and in common stocks, $31,307,548. The company is the result of a merger, effected Sept. 5, 1929, of General American Investors and Second General American Investors. The report covers the operations of the predecessor companies during the period before the merger.

The common stock investments of the company on Dec. 31, 1929, were as follow:

CALLS VERY CHEAP MONEY UNJUSTIFIED

Chase Bank Head, in Report to Stockholders, Says Gold Stocks Do Not Warrant It.

SEES ADJUSTMENT COMING

Outflow of Metal, Though Disappointing to Some, Will Bring Sound Rates Later, He Declares.

Extremely cheap money is not justified at the present time by the surplus gold stocks of the world, according to Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the Chase National Bank of New York, who discusses the gold situation and the money markets in his report to be presented to stockholders at their annual meeting tomorrow.

"There is enough gold in the world to do legitimate business of the world at comfortable rates of interest," Mr. Wiggin's report states. "There is not enough gold to finance such a speculation as we have recently experienced and there is not enough surplus gold to justify extremely cheap money at the present time.

"We have a paradoxical money market. Money is cheap and excessive for the most liquid uses, acceptances, brokers' loans and government paper; but money is dear for the slower and less liquid loans to customers. The demand is heavy and the supply is none too abundant. Even more restricted in relation to demand is the supply of funds available to foreign customers, including foreign banks.

How Loans Have Shifted.

"There has been no liquidation of bank credit against securities (figures of the reporting member banks of the Federal Reserve System) as compared with the situation before the break in the market. The main liquidation has been in loans by nonbanking lenders to the brokers. The decline in brokers' loans has been offset by increased loans on securities made by banks to customers.

"The cheap money in the acceptance and brokers' loans markets since the stock market break is due, primarily, to increased Federal Reserve Bank credit. The decline in interest rates began before the stock market break, time loans having dropped 1¼ per cent and call loans 2 per cent between Sept. 11 and Oct. 16, despite a rise in brokers' loans of $327,000,000 between the same dates. This was accounted for by the increase in Federal Reserve Bank holdings of acceptances during this period.

"In the week ending Oct. 30 when the severe break in security prices took place there was an emergency expansion of Federal Reserve Bank credit of $312,000,000, accompanying an emergency expansion of security loans by the reporting member banks, almost wholly confined to New York City, of $1,250,000,000. In the five weeks that followed, this emergency credit of the member banks was largely liquidated, but only $146,000,000 of the Federal Reserve Bank's emergency credit was liquidated and the result was the rapid decline in money rates in the most liquid uses.

"It is the rates for the most liquid loans which govern international gold movements, and the low rates have already sent out a great deal of gold in November and December, a season when gold is normally more likely to come in than to leave.

Working Toward Equilibrium.

"This outflow of gold may well disappoint exaggerated hopes of prolonged cheap money, but we should none the less welcome it. It means that the international money market is working toward equilibrium and that interest rates in the future will more nearly reflect the facts about the world's capital supply than they have done in recent years. If this means higher interest rates than those of 1927, it also brings the corrective of more savings and less wasteful use of capital, and this in time will produce soundly based lower interest rates again.

"In gauging our domestic money market situation, and the prospects of the gold outflow, we must recognize, of course, that the general world money market situation is involved. For nearly two years the money market drew to itself funds from every part of the world, and for a year and a half it has been very difficult to place foreign loans in the American market. For several years preceding 1928, the world had been accustomed to lean heavily upon New York, and the changes since then have consequently brought monetary tension to most foreign markets. The world is eager to take gold from us, and many markets are in a position where they can take gold when our interest rates are low.

"This presents a different situation from that prior to 1927. Gold poured in on us from 1920 to 1927, whether our interest rates were low or high, because the rest of the world was largely off the gold standard, and could not compete for gold. Today we can still draw in gold if we make our rates high enough, but if our rates go low we lose gold.

"One of the most promising developments of recent weeks from the standpoint of easing the tension in foreign money markets is the movement in France looking toward the development of a great market for foreign securities. The reduction from 4 to 2 per cent of the tax on new foreign securities in France is an important first step in this connection, though further reduction may prove necessary. France is the only great country, outside the United States, which has surplus gold, and in addition has the power to draw in gold at will. She has an extraordinary opportunity for profitable service to the rest of the world at this time, and her eminent statesmen and able financiers are not blind to the situation."

The violent speculation which overturned the stock market, Mr. Wiggin says, was due to cheap and excessive credit available to speculators for several years. The low rates of 1927 intensified this speculation to a degree which made it almost impossible to control.

Commenting on the Federal Reserve System's practices, Mr. Wiggin says:

"Rediscount rates should be above the market rates of interest charged by the banks in the great cities to their prime borrowing customers. The open market operations of the Federal Reserve System should not only expand credit to meet seasonal needs and to ease off periods of tension, but should also, with equal promptness, take up slack when money is excessive."

The business situation, Mr. Wiggin asserts, is strong. No business crisis is possible, he says, because the business community has very little quick debt. Business morale is good. "We are thoroughly justified," he says, "in saying, 'Business as usual.'"

CANADA TRADE BALANCE.

Leads In Per Capita Ratio, Says Canadian National Official.

Canada leads all nations in its per capita favorable trade balance, according to a report issued by C. Price-Green, commissioner of natural resources for the Canadian National Railways.

The report says that Canada's exports amount to $135 per capita, which is one-third greater than the British ratio and nearly four times the United States ratio. He quotes from a bulletin of the United States Bureau of Statistics to show that the average increase in per cent of economic production in Canada is five times as great as that in the United States. The report says that since 1901 manufacturing has increased 800 per cent and agriculture 400 per cent in Canada.

Central National Corp. Earnings.

The Central National Corporation, organized early in 1928 by interests affiliated with the Central National Bank of New York, reports for 1929 gross realized earnings of $543,004 and net earnings, available for taxes and dividends, of $336,364, on an average capital fund of $3,454,083. After paying all dividends and providing for Federal taxes, the undivided profits account stood at $174,628, against $142,177 on Jan. 1, 1929. More than 43 per cent of total capital funds were represented by cash and call loans totaling $1,514,172.

German Bank Rate Cut Expected.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—A meeting of the governing committee of the Reichsbank has been called for Monday, when it is expected the bank's discount will be reduced from 7 to 6½ per cent.

EXPLAINS CONTROL OF STANDARD POWER

United States Electric Equity Put at 75% and That of Byllesby at 25%.

PARTNERSHIP IS INDICATED

Boards of Directors Are Divided as Evenly as Possible Under Reorganization Plan.

In analyzing the new set-up of the recently reorganized Standard Power and Light system, the constitution of the board of directors of this company and of Standard Gas and Electric, its subsidiary, and the manner in which the stocks of the two companies were voted, it appears that the present equity of the United States Electric Power Corporation in the Standard Power and Light Company is close to 75 per cent and that of H. M. Byllesby & Co. is about 25 per cent.

This estimate includes both the new common and new B common shares of Standard Power and Light, which have, respectively, the right to elect the Class A and Class B directors to the board of the Standard Power and Light Company and of the Standard Gas and Electric Company, the new common to elect a majority to the board of the first and the B stock a majority to the board of the second company.

Explains Division of Board.

On this basis the election of eight United States Electric and seven Byllesby directors to the board of Standard Power and Light is explained. In the case of Standard Gas and Electric, where seven United States Electric and seven Byllesby directors were chosen, the fifteenth director elected was Moritz Rosenthal of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. It has been learned that Mr. Rosenthal was seated on the Standard Gas board as the eighth Byllesby representative, indicating also that the basis for the reorganization, with respect to all the interests, was the fullest sort of partnership.

Regarding the former holdings of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. in the Standard Power and Light Company, which consisted of at least 165,000 old common shares, or the same number as was owned by Byllesby & Co. prior to the reorganization, it appears that the block of Ladenburg-Thalmann stock was acquired by the United States Electric group. A tripartite contract between the three groups was referred to in the reorganization plan for Standard Power.

How Stock Is Owned.

The majority of the Series B shares has been placed under control of H. M. Byllesby & Co., it is said, through an exchange of Standard Power new common shares for Standard Power new B shares obtained by the United States Electric Power Company, leaving the ownership of Standard Power and Light stock about as follows:

United States Electric, 1,210,000 new common shares.
H. M. Byllesby, 330,000 new Series B shares.

The remaining 110,000 common and 110,000 Series B common shares, it is reported, are also owned to a very large extent by the various groups interested in the reorganization, but how these holdings are divided cannot be determined even approximately. The above estimates indicate that control of the Series B stock is firmly vested in the Byllesby interests.

The consideration for the transfers of the several blocks of stocks above could not be learned, but it is believed that both cash and securities were involved.

The reorganization plan showed that the Standard Power and Light Company received 580,000 Standard Gas and Electric common shares from the United States Electric Power Company in exchange for 880,000 new Standard Power common shares and 600,000 Standard Gas and Electric shares from the Standard Gas and Electric Company in part consideration for the assets of Standard Power and Light.

Contributions Equalized.

Standard Power and Light, by declaring a special dividend of one share of Standard Gas common stock to the holders of each twenty-two old Standard Power shares, or a total of 20,000 Standard Gas shares distributed, in effect equalized the contributions of Standard Gas common stock by the United States Electric and H. M. Byllesby groups at 580,000 shares each, leaving a total of 1,160,000 Standard Gas common shares owned by Standard Power and Light.

The United States Electric Power Corporation, through its large equity in Standard Power and Light, now has consolidated assets somewhat in excess of $1,200,000,000. The Standard system, in which the senior voting stocks have been abolished to leave voting power in the hands of the common stocks, which share alike, is expected by observers to further consolidate the system through the gradual elimination of minority interests in subsidiary companies.

CORPORATION REPORTS.

Results of Operations Announced by Industrial and Other Organizations.

Ulen & Co.

Ulen & Co., the international engineering and construction affiliate of Stone & Webster, Inc., reports gross earnings of $1,947,354 for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1929, as compared with $1,875,236 for the corresponding period of 1928. The earnings are from fees on construction and management contracts, financing and miscellaneous accruals, interest and other revenue. Net earnings after expenses were $1,409,640, against $1,081,701 in the previous year.

The net income available to common stock for the nine months was $672,847, equal to $2.84 a share earned on the average number of shares outstanding during the period, comparing with $2.55 a share earned on the average number of shares in the same period of 1928, but reflecting, for purposes of comparison, the two-for-one split-up of the common stock last year.

Cavanagh-Dobbs, Inc.

The annual report of Cavanagh-Dobbs, Inc., covering the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1929, shows net earnings, after depreciation and Federal taxes, applicable to dividends, of $502,322. This is equivalent to $14.56 a share on the preferred stock outstanding and, after allowing for preferred dividends, to $1.18 a share on the outstanding common stock. Current assets aggregated $5,800,459, of which inventories comprised $3,539,358; cash, $291,065, and notes and accounts receivable $1,970,036. Current liabilities aggregated $627,286, leaving net working capital of $5,173,173. The company has no funded debt nor bank loans.

Nehi Corporation.

The Nehi Corporation reports sales for both the last quarter of 1929 and for the entire year as being the highest in its history. Sales for the quarter were $807,074, compared with $649,378 for the same period in 1928, an increase of 24.3 per cent. Sales for the year amounted to $3,723,510, against $3,133,653 for 1928, a gain of 18.8 per cent. C. A. Hatcher, president, said that upon completion of the audit net earnings available for common stock in 1929 would be more than $3.10 a share, compared with $2.90 in the previous year.

Hart Schaffner & Marx.

Hart Schaffner & Marx report for the year ended on Nov. 30 net profits of $2,514,676, after expenses, reserves, depreciation and taxes, against $2,583,798 in the same period a year previous. After $1,200,000 dividends, surplus was $12,367,827, against $11,053,676. Total assets were $30,686,277, against $29,557,324. Current assets were $15,863,795, against $16,847,224, and current liabilities $1,568,450, against $1,754,173. Sales in the 1929 period were larger but selling was on a closer basis and the company had no indebtedness for borrowed money, according to Alexander M. Levy, vice president.

PHONE INCREASE SET A RECORD IN 1929

Instruments on Line of New York Company Up 165,497 to 2,630,037.

$100,000,000 ON PLANT

Calls in Organization's Territory Totaled 12,461,500, With 8,500,000 in City.

The New York Telephone Company put more telephones on its lines in 1929 and spent more on plant than in any previous year, according to a review by J. S. McCulloh, president. Telephones connected increased 165,497, to 2,630,037, in 1929, and during the year the company spent more than $100,000,000 on plant, an increase of $25,000,000 from the total for 1928 and from the annual average of the past five years. More than $65,000,000 was spent in New York City, or $14,000,000 more than in 1928. Telephones in the city increased 107,500, to 1,812,000.

"In both city and State telephones have increased about 40 per cent in five years and have practically doubled in ten years," said Mr. McCulloh. "In 1929 calls in our territory increased 1,064,000, to 12,461,500, and in the city they increased 746,000, to more than 8,500,000.

"This growth has been accommodated by plant construction expenditures aggregating $376,000,000 in five years, with New York City alone requiring $243,000,000. In the past ten years requirements have grown so rapidly as to necessitate the virtual rebuilding of the plant and at the same time expanding it enormously."

Thirty new central offices with their associated equipment were installed in 1929, seventeen of these being of the dial type. There were 473 central offices in service in the company's territory at the end of the year, seventy-four of them dial.

The wire mileage of the State-wide system was increased in 1929 by 1,252,000, the present total being nearly 13,000,000 miles, or enough to circle the earth 520 times. More than 1,224,000 miles of the wire added were placed in cable, bringing the total mileage encased in storm-proof lead sheathing to about 12,678,000, which is more than 97 per cent of the wire aggregate. Moreover, 977,000 miles of the additional wire placed in cable are underground, so that with the close of 1929, 10,771,455 miles, or about 83 per cent of the company's wire system, is below the surface.

The daily average of more than 8,500,000 calls originating at telephones in New York City in 1929 was a gain of nearly 10 per cent over 1928.

Nearly 6,000 workers were added to the employed forces of the telephone company in 1929, bringing the total personnel to nearly 65,000.

CANADIAN GRAIN STOCKS UP.

Total at Head of Great Lakes 1,000,000 Bushels Larger for Week.

STEEL TRADE LACKS SPURT IN NEW YEAR

Usual Large Gain in Output, Shipments and Orders Fails to Be Shown by Mills.

SLACKNESS IN PIG METAL

Soft Prices Deter Buyers From Making Commitments — Strip Quotations Are Sliding.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 11.—Steel trade prospects failed to improve last week, the outlook being, if anything, less favorable. This does not mean that business is not more active than at the close of 1929, or that steel production and shipments are not more rapid than in the latter part of December, but activity increases regularly after the turn of the year and there has been no large gain this year, either in production and shipments or in the volume of orders.

Steel ingot production in December is officially reported at 59.07 per cent of capacity, which is taken to represent about 65 per cent in the first part of the month and a much lower rate later. Consequently, there would be an increase in the last fortnight without attaining a rate at all favorable. The Iron Age's blast furnace reports show less furnace capacity active at Jan. 1 than the average of production in December. That is contrary to the usual experience for the time of year and preparation for greater steel production this month would have involved starting the month with increased pig iron supplies.

With the December ingot report issued, a slightly revised statement of steel production in the calendar year may be made. Monthly reports showed production of 51,190,727 tons of Bessemer and open-hearth ingots by companies that in 1928 made 94.51 per cent of the total. Pro-rating this amount indicates 54,164,348 tons for Bessemer and open-hearth. The total is not exact, as the producers who did not report monthly may have made a different proportion than in 1928.

Allowance of about 550,000 tons should be made for electric and crucible ingots, indicating a grand total of about 54,700,000 tons of ingots, 9 per cent over the 1928 total as finally reported. Maximum production in twelve consecutive months is 4 per cent greater, being about 56,750,000 tons in the twelve months through September, 1929.

On the whole, the United States Steel Corporation's report of unfilled obligations at the end of December is less unfavorable than might have been expected from trade appearances during that month.

In September unfilled obligations increased 244,370 tons, attributable chiefly to contracts for various steel products for fourth quarter, with some rail business. Then increases occurred of 183,981 tons in October, 78,783 in November and 241,848 in December, making 514,612 increase for the quarter. In that time the corporation entered about 750,000 tons of rail business and an indeterminate amount of tinplate business, the excess over shipments in the two items being more than 514,612 tons.

The softness of steel prices deters buyers from making contracts now and keeps actual orders down to the minimum of actual requirements.

What is now left of the price structure of late October is the usual perfectly sustained price of standard rails, the regular prices on pipe, and prices applicable to small lots of bars, shapes, plates and strips which were formerly applicable to large lots.

LUCAS & CO. MERGED BY SHERWIN-WILLIAMS

Philadelphia Concern to Remain Separate Organization, It Is Understood.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 12.—John Lucas & Co., Inc., paint and varnish manufacturers of this city, have merged with the Sherwin-Williams Company of Cleveland, it was announced here tonight.

Stockholders of the local concern have ratified the merger plan, but the terms were not made public. It is understood that the Sherwin-Williams Company is to take over the assets, although the Lucas concern will continue as a separate and distinct organization. Negotiations were conducted between Ernest T. Trigg, president of John Lucas & Co., and George A. Martin, head of the Cleveland firm.

The Lucas company was established here in 1849. It has plants at Gibbsboro, N. J., Chicago and West Berkeley, Cal., owns the paint and varnish manufacturing company of W. W. Lawrence & Co. of Pittsburgh, and the Cleveland Varnish Company. It has an operating interest in the Lucas Kil-Tone Company at Vineland, N. J., and owns a substantial interest in and operates the plant of the British Paint and Lacquer Company at Cowley, England.

The Lucas business is the second to be taken over by the Sherwin-Williams Company in the last seven months. Mr. Martin was quoted there as saying that Mr. Trigg would continue as president and general manager of John Lucas & Co., and would become a member of the board of directors of the Sherwin-Williams Company. He said the acquisition of the Lucas interests would add several million dollars to the Sherwin-Williams Company's business, which was reported as $75,778,071 for the fiscal year ending Aug. 31.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 12.—The president and fellows of Harvard College have announced ten appointments to the faculty. Rockwell R. Stevens will became secretary of the Albert Russell Erskine Bureau for Street Traffic Research in September. Lawrence Tuttle has been appointed Albert Russell Erskine fellow in the same branch.

Other appointments were: Augustus L. Putnam, consultant on careers; Max Tishler, assistant in chemistry; William T. Hall, lecturer on chemistry; Arthur Loveridge, assistant curator of reptiles; George C. Cutler, lecturer on the law of corporate securities; Lester Ginsburg, assistant in public utilities; Lyman H. Hoyt, assistant in medicine, and William M. Clark, Cutter lecturer on preventive medicine.

J. B. Powell Leaves Guaranty.

Junius B. Powell has resigned as assistant manager of the municipal department of the Guaranty Company to become vice president of the North American Securities Company. Mr. Powell was manager of the company's municipal department at Chicago for three years. Previously, he was assistant manager of the bond department and investment trust officer of the Wocovia Bank and Trust Company, Winston-Salem, N. C. He is a graduate of the School of Business at Columbia University.

SALES TOTAL $310,000,000

Small Increase in Profit Due to Unusual Live Stock Conditions, President Explains.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Wilson & Co., the last of the "Big Four" meat packing concerns to issue an annual report, followed the others in reporting that larger hog supplies than had been anticipated upset calculations on earnings last year. While the company's sales totaled $310,000,000 for the fiscal year ended on Nov. 2, 1929, compared with $295,000,000 in the previous period, profits showed only a small gain.

Net earnings were $2,304,592, equivalent to $8.05 a share on $28,602,600 preferred stock outstanding. A year's dividends were paid on the preferred stock but there is still a year's payment, or about $2,000,000, in arrears. The company added $304,538 to surplus, which now stands at $4,830,132. Net earnings for the previous fiscal year were $2,207,876, or $7.71 a share on the preferred stock.

"The year brought unusual conditions in both the available supply and value of live stock, preventing a fully satisfactory operation of the business," Thomas E. Wilson, president, said in his report. "Live hog prices were on a substantially higher level than during the previous year. Contrary to official forecasts, hog supplies, far from being less, actually exceeded those of the previous year, upsetting entirely all expectations as to earnings.

"The company is aggressively in step with the important developments which are taking place in the production and distribution of new products. With the ensuing changes and advancements in merchandizing methods constantly being developed, their favorable effects, we are hopeful, will show in our future results."

The company's balance sheet as of Nov. 2, 1929, shows current assets of $46,475,054, and current liabilities of $7,219,560, compared respectively with $45,486,950 and $5,220,923 at the end of the previous fiscal year.

Barclay's Bank Increases Assets.

Advices received by the representative in New York of Barclay's Bank, Ltd., report total resources of the bank on Dec. 31, 1929, as $1,927,696,793, an increase of more than $23,000,000 from June 30, 1929. Deposits increased more than $30,000,000 to $1,687,196,068. Net profits, together with the amount brought forward from the previous year, were $14,343,905, of which $2,500,000 has been appropriated to contingency account and $750,000 to the reduction of premises account. All figures have been converted at the rate of $5 to the pound sterling.

LACK OF SNOW HURTS GRAIN

Much Ground in Western States Is Exposed to Frost and Thaw.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—The disappearance of snow over a large part of the Winter States has left a considerable area without protection, and thawing and freezing has brought complaints of crop injury from scattered sections.

In Nebraska low temperatures without snow protection possibly have caused crop deterioration. In extreme Western Kansas and Western Texas snow or rain would be welcome, although the crop is not suffering for lack of moisture. Ground in Western Canada was frozen hard before recent precipitation and similar conditions to those prevailing a year ago are reported.

Gathering of corn progressed under more favorable conditions and little remains in the fields. Corn put in the cribs early in the season with high moisture content is said to have been damaged.

Thom to Address Shippers.

Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the American Railway Association, will be the chief speaker at the sixth annual meeting of the Atlantic States Shippers Advisory Board at the Commodore Hotel on Jan. 17. Between 600 and 700 delegates are expected to attend. H. E. Stringer, general chairman of the board, will preside. Producers will present reports of expected car requirements for 1930 and railroads will report on facilities for traffic.

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the shareholders of The Chase National Bank of the City of New York will be held at its banking house, Pine Street corner of Nassau, in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County and State of New York, on January 14, 1930, at 12 o'clock noon, for the election of directors; and for the purpose of transacting such other business as may properly come before said meeting, or any adjournment or adjournments thereof.

The books for the transfer of the shares of this Bank will be closed at the close of business on December 31, 1929, and, unless otherwise ordered by the Board of Directors, will be reopened at the opening of business on January 15, 1930.

By order of the Board of Directors,

ALBERT H. WIGGIN, Chairman of the Board.

THE NEW YORK CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY

Albany, N. Y., November 15, 1929.

The Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of this Company for the election of Directors and three inspectors of election and for the transaction of such other business as may lawfully be brought before it, including consideration of a proposed increase in the authorized capital stock of the Company as hereinafter referred to, will be held at the principal office of the Company, in the Union Depot, Albany, N. Y., on Wednesday, the 22nd day of January, 1930, at 12 o'clock noon.

Among the purposes of the said meeting will be the authorizing, approving and consenting to an increase, desired by the Board of Directors, in the authorized capital stock of the Company from $500,000,000 to $700,000,000, par value; the issue from time to time of such additional stock in such amounts and upon such terms as the Board of Directors may determine; and the execution and filing of all such papers and the doing of such other things incident to such increase of capital stock and the issue thereof as may be required by law.

By order of the Board of Directors,

EDWARD F. STEPHENSON, Secretary.

NOTICE OF ANNUAL MEETING OF COMMON STOCKHOLDERS OF THE MANHATTAN SHIRT COMPANY.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the annual meeting of the common stockholders of THE MANHATTAN SHIRT COMPANY will be held at the offices of the Company, No. 385 Madison Avenue, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on Monday, January 27th, 1930, at 10:30 o'clock A. M. of that day for the purpose of (a) electing directors of the Company for the ensuing year; (b) ratifying all acts of the officers and directors of the Company since the last meeting of stockholders; and (c) transacting such other business as may come before the meeting.

Common stockholders of record as at the close of business on January 13th, 1930, will be entitled to vote at the meeting.

The transfer books will not close.

Dated, New York, January 6th, 1930.

BY ORDER OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

MERRILL G. WEILER, JR., Secretary.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of John Roach Realty Company will be held at the offices of the Company in Guaranty Trust Building, Fifth Avenue and 44th Street, New York City, on Monday, January 20, 1930, at 2 P. M., for the election of Directors and transaction of such business as may come before the meeting.

(Signed) W. S. BLAKELEY, JR., Secretary.

WHEAT HELD DOWN BY SMALL EXPORTS

Statements by Members of the Federal Farm Board Add to Muddle Besetting Traders.

TREND IN CORN IS LACKING

Week's Trading in Oats Show Inclination Toward Rise—Reported Line on Rye Buyers.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Grain traders are completely muddled between the indifference of foreigners, who are expected to buy American wheat in large volume to make up the deficit in the shortage of supplies that they can obtain in the Southern Hemisphere, and the numerous disturbing statements made by individual members of the Federal Farm Board. Traders are constantly expecting large buying orders for wheat in Europe, which do not materialize in volume sufficient to make and maintain a good bull market, and bulges have not held of late.

On several occasions when wheat prices were advanced, statements from Farm Board members have had a disquieting effect, resulting in unloading by holders of wheat and a break in prices. It is believed here that were Farm Board statements confined to Chairman Legge the position of the board and the grain trade in general would be improved.

A statement credited to S. R. McKelvie of the Farm Board predicting 900,000,000 bushels of wheat for this year's harvest is severely criticized. It was evidently his individual opinion, publicly expressed, with no thought that it would cause such an unsettled feeling in the grain trade. A crop prediction made in January for harvest in midsummer is too much of a long-range affair to be taken seriously, yet the grain trade was badly scared by the thought of such a large crop.

Look for Predicted High Prices

Recently the Farm Board and government reports predicted higher prices for wheat, which so far have not materialized. At the same time advices from Europe telling of the need of North American wheat to satisfy the consumptive requirements say the people there will want a large quantity of wheat, but they intend to buy cautiously. This is disappointing to those who have bought on government statements, and action of the market suggests that long wheat is gradually coming out from tired holders.

The Farm Board's position is not at all pleasant, as it has a most unusual problem and its statement that its prices are only for the 1929 crop will go far toward correcting any wrong impression of farmers and the grain trade in general as to the future. The grain trade agrees with the Farm Board regarding restriction of acreage, although it is a most difficult proposition to work out.

Should farmers work harmoniously with the Federal Farm Board, it would go far toward relieving the situation and possibly enable government officials to have more influence in maintaining a more profitable basis for the grain and cotton farmers. Unless they all get together, it is declared by many grain traders that nothing good can be accomplished.

One factor that stands out in the mind of the average grain trader is that Jan. 10 has been regarded for years as the time to sell wheat and in most years sales on bulges between that date and the end of January have been fairly profitable. There was heavy selling last week on the old theory, with covering at the end of the week, causing a rally of almost 3 cents from the low point of that day. Entrance of Russia into the export trade in wheat and rye has also been an unsettling factor, inducing selling of futures.

Sales of wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade for the week were 251,142,000 bushels, or almost 30,000,000 bushels more than the previous week, with the trade largely professional, while a year ago sales were 188,252,000 bushels. The open interest at the close on Friday of 193,433,000 bushels was almost 9,000,000 bushels above a week ago.

Primary receipts of wheat last week were 4,765,000 bushels; the preceding week 4,481,000, and the week last year 4,384,000. Shipments were 3,356,000, 2,792,000 and 3,755,000 bushels respectively.

Operators in Corn Are Shy.

Corn prices are at a level at which operators are not taking a stand with large lines on either side. The government report giving the commercial crop of corn was a surprise, as it showed a [illegible] 431,000,000 bushels, and the crop estimated at 2,191,000,000 bushels, [illegible] of 1928. On the basis of 20 per cent [illegible] bushels [illegible]. This has given corn traders something new to figure on, and they are trying to adjust their ideas to the market.

Primary receipts of corn last week were 7,331,000 bushels; the preceding week [illegible], and the week last year [illegible]. Shipments were 4,147,000, 3,512,000 and 6,095,000 bushels respectively.

There were 155,000 bushels of corn and 300,000 bushels of oats in the Cleveland elevator that burned on Saturday, which will come out of the visible supply report on Monday. Oats prices finished the week unchanged to ¾ cent higher after a range of a cent.

In the rye pit prices were 1 to 3¼ cents lower, March being $1.03, May $1.04 and July 97¼ cents. Pressure was [illegible].

UPTURN IN COTTON FOLLOWS WARNING

Farm Board's Advice Against Large Acreage Affects Trading of the Week.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 12.—Some very dull periods and a few very active periods featured the cotton market last week. The active periods, however, were due to shorts covering, coupled with trade buying and buying back of hedges rather than to any signs of a revival of constructive speculation, the absence of which has been the main depressing influence in the market for some time.

A warning from the Farm Loan Board against increasing acreage gave the market an upward slant around the middle of the week, and this improvement was added to the announcement here by one of the members of the board that cotton shorts had just three days in which to take their profits, as the new cooperative association financed by the Farm Loan Board would be ready to commence operations this week and that there was nothing to prevent operations in the 1929 crop. At the same time came rumors that the textile statistics for December would show a large increase in sales of cotton goods over production, a rumor since verified by the statement itself. The result was a recovery of fully $2 a bale from the prices of the preceding day.

The feeling of traders here is that the advent of the new organization, backed by practically unlimited capital and the credit of the government, will exert a considerable influence on the market.

Although the report of the textile merchants of New York showed that sales of cotton goods during December greatly exceeded production, the shipments fell short of production. This is not surprising, owing to the slowing down during the holidays, but the large increase in unfilled orders explains at once why the shipments compared so unfavorably with sales.

If the demand for cotton goods improves, as many traders predict, there will be every reason to look for an advance in raw cotton prices, particularly if farmers take to heart the warning of the Farm Loan Board not to plant a large acreage.

LONDON RUBBER PRICES EASE ON HIGH STOCKS

Selling Pressure Develops on Publication of Figures—Tin and Lead Steady.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—In the rubber market here on Friday plantation grades eased under the publication of higher figures for Eastern stocks and consequent selling pressure, prices showing a decline of ¼d a pound all round after a fair business. Smoked sheet spot and January sold from 7¼d to 7⅛d a pound and buyers, February at 7⅜d to 7⅛d, to 7 3-16d and value; March at 7 7-16d to 7¼d and value; April-June at 7⅝d to 7½d and sellers; July-September at 7 15-16d to 7¾d and sellers; October-December at 8 1-16d to 8d to 8⅛d to 8d and sellers, January-December, 1931, to 8 11-16d and value, crêpe spot at 7½d and sellers. In the shipment market smoked sheet January-February sold at 7⅛d to 7d, February-March at 7¼d to 7 3-16d, March-April at 7⅜d, c. i. f. New York. Grades were quiet, hard fine spot being quoted at 8¼d and sellers.

It is estimated that London rubber stocks will show a further increase of about 2,300 tons in tomorrow's return.

In the tin market Eastern advices gave 375 tons sold at £182, c. i. f., an advance of 25s. Although there was no improvement in demand, the maret here was favorably influenced by the firmer tone in the Straits Settlements. Trading was mainly in March and three months. The close was steady with cash 11s 3d and three months 6s 3d higher. Sales were 200 tons. Cash sold at £177, March at £179 10s to £179, April at £179 15s, three months at £180 10s to £179 15s to £180. The settlement price was £176 15s. In the late trading February sold at £178 10s to £178, March at £179 10s to £179 15s, three months at £180 10s to £180 to £180 5s. English common tin closed steady at £178 10s. A premium of 30s was paid for Straits.

In the face of continued quiet demand from sellers, lead made a slight concession, near dates being 2s 6d and forward, 1s 3d lower. Sales were 500 tons. January sold at £21 10s to £21 8s 9d, April at £21 11s 3d. The settlement price was £21 10s. The afternoon market was idle. English lead remained at £23.

DISSOLUTION NOTICE.

EX PARTE IN THE MATTER OF THE DISSOLUTION OF FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL SECURITIES CORPORATION.—IN THE CIRCUIT COURT NO. 2 OF BALTIMORE CITY, Docket No. 38 A-94-1929.—ORDER.

WHEREAS it appears by the petition under affidavit filed on December 31, 1929, by The Continental Trust Company, receiver in the above entitled case, that as of the close of business on December 30, 1929, the only holders of record of stock of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation who had not surrendered their certificates for their distributive shares of the assets of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation were Charles Schwartz, Jacob Smeaton, Lillian G. Walker, John Wrieden and Anna M. Dillmeier, holding a total of sixteen shares of said stock; and

WHEREAS it further appears from said petition that the stock of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation held by said Anna M. Dillmeier and consisting of three shares, was not included in the certified list of the holders of stock of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation heretofore filed in this case, although said Anna M. Dillmeier was listed among such stockholders and has heretofore exchanged the shares so listed; and that The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation is willing to deposit with The Continental Trust Company, receiver as aforesaid, shares of stock of The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation and cash for delivery to the person or persons entitled thereto upon surrender of the certificate or certificates for shares of stock of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation still outstanding in the name of Anna M. Dillmeier, so that the treatment with respect to said shares will be the same as nearly as possible as that accorded all other holders of stock of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation; and

WHEREAS it appears unlikely that the exchange of the balance of the shares of stock of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation outstanding and consisting of sixteen shares as aforesaid will be completed in the near future, and therefore it is desirable that the shares of stock and scrip, if any, of The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation, including the shares to be received by said receiver on account of the holdings of Anna M. Dillmeier, held for exchange of said stock should be sold and the proceeds deposited in Court subject to the further order of this Court.

It is, therefore, this 31st day of December, 1929, by the Circuit Court No. 2 of Baltimore City, ORDERED

(1) That The Continental Trust Company, receiver as aforesaid, be and it is hereby authorized and directed to accept from The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation a certificate for full shares of stock of said corporation and an amount in cash representing the value of the fractional share of such stock, as of December 2, 1929, and all dividends declared upon such stock, to which the holder of said three shares of stock of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation outstanding in the name of Anna M. Dillmeier would be entitled upon the surrender of said three shares had they been listed as outstanding at the time of the dissolution of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation and provision then been made for their exchange on the same basis upon which other exchanges were made; to the end that the treatment accorded the holder of said three shares may be the same, as nearly as possible, as that accorded all other holders of the stock of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation.

(2) That The Continental Trust Company, receiver as aforesaid, be and it is hereby authorized to enter into an agreement with Manufacturers Trust Company providing for the delivery by said Manufacturers Trust Company, on behalf of said receiver, to the person or persons entitled thereto, of the stock of The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation and the cash to be received by said receiver, as herein authorized, and further providing that said Manufacturers Trust Company shall protect and hold harmless said receiver from any and all loss, damage, expense or liability arising out of any failure of Manufacturers Trust Company to deliver said shares of stock and cash to the person or persons entitled thereto.

(3) That all persons having interest in this case show cause, if any they have, on or before February 3, 1930, why an order should not be passed authorizing and directing said receiver to sell the stock and scrip, if any, from whatever source derived, whether by way of dividends or otherwise, of The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation held for exchange of said sixteen shares of stock of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation now outstanding or such part thereof as may still be held for such exchanges at the time of the passage of an order authorizing such sale, and to pay the proceeds thereof, together with any cash representing fractional shares of, and dividends upon, said stock received by said receiver, into Court for the benefit of the persons entitled thereto and subject to the further orders of this Court; and that a copy of this order be published once a week for three successive weeks before January 25th, 1930, in two daily newspapers published in the City of Baltimore and in The New York Times; and that on or before January 15, 1930, a copy of this order be served personally upon Charles Schwartz, Jacob Smeaton, Mrs. Lillian Walker, John Wrieden and Mrs. Anna M. Dillmeier, or sent to each of said persons by registered mail postage prepaid and addressed to each of said persons at his post-office address as it appears upon the books of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation.

(4) That nothing in this order shall be construed as preventing said receiver from continuing to receive, for exchange into stock of The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation as heretofore, shares of stock of Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation now outstanding, or issuing in exchange shares of stock of The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation from shares of such stock held by said receiver for that purpose.

RESIDENT BUYERS REPORT ON TRADE

Activity This Week Is Expected to Reach Highest Level Since Fall Peak.

SALES GOODS LED CALL

But Low Grades Were Not Ordered by Stores—Linen Deliveries Late and Not Complete.

With the arrival of a much larger number of buyers in the market here, wholesale purchasing has proceeded at a brisk pace. While caution is still apparent, the activity this week is expected to be the greatest since the peak of the Fall season, with attention given both sales and early Spring needs. Business in dresses is shaping up well, with flat crêpe and chiffon styles maintaining leadership. Woolen ensembles have met with a marked degree of favor. Lines of formal coats for Spring will be completed within the next ten days. Meanwhile there is a good demand for sports coats and all-black styles for immediate selling. The growing interest in broad silks is featured by the call for printed silk and rayon crêpes. Linens for sales [illegible] but quick delivery is hampered by paucity of stocks. Felt hats [illegible] popular-priced millinery. Buying activity in [illegible] has been in the market here in many weeks.

The major style and merchandising trends, as reported by leading resident buyers, follow:

McGREEVEY, WERRING & HOWELL, INC.—"Printed chiffons are being promoted by leading Fifth Avenue retailers. Large patterns are favored in flowered designs for sleeveless styles. Flat crêpes maintain their importance. Boleros are gaining in favor, while black-and-white combinations prevail. Woolen ensembles are shown by many dress concerns, with monotones [illegible]. In lower and dresses [illegible] find [illegible] desirable merchandise for immediate delivery. Printed crêpes particularly are in demand. Junior dress houses are extensively showing new dresses. Almost all new models are at least four inches below the knee. All-black Winter coats are selling well. There are numerous orders for sports coats at popular prices. While somewhat [illegible] manufacturers expect to [illegible] the next ten [illegible] Blouses of all descriptions [illegible] for early Spring season."

Pajamas Again Promise Well.

FELIX LILIENTHAL & CO.—"More of the creamy type of lace is being shown at this time, while the darker laces are coming in favor for other [illegible]. Pajamas sold more [illegible] during the holiday period, and in printed crêpe de chine styles [illegible] pastel shades [illegible] in ensemble effects [illegible] the latter [illegible] are in favor. Fitted lines are [illegible] in chemise and [illegible] Many of the latter show the short front and long [illegible] of the evening gown. The blush shade is [illegible] pink, while [illegible] The demand for rayon [illegible] most satisfactory. [illegible] the tendency has not been for [illegible]."

MANDEL-MESIROW COMPANY, INC.—"In dresses for street wear, flat crêpes still predominate, with black and navy in the most demand. There are many models in long and three-quarter sleeves, starting just below the elbow [illegible] with eggshell, &c. Smart dresses [illegible] the cuffs. Plain and printed [illegible] are tremendously big, and [illegible] these materials. They are [illegible] lace yokes, cuffs and [illegible] treatments. The cocktail jacket dress is being [illegible] with full skirts and [illegible] two-piece [illegible] The dresses [illegible]"

MERCHANDISE REPORTING COMPANY, INC.—Stores report only fair business in coats in the popular price types, and reorders are [illegible] Scarfs, particularly [illegible] Already the lower price brackets are [illegible] The [illegible] Spring business [illegible] dresses [illegible] Easter [illegible] of the [illegible] lack completion, as [illegible] attention has been given to [illegible] ensembles. Camel's hair coats are being given [illegible] tan shade only. In the better [illegible] it is evident that there is [illegible] favorable for early [illegible] wear.

Unusual Activity in Clothing.

CONSOLIDATED CLOTHIERS, INC.—The week has been one of unusual activity here. For sales purposes the items of chief interest were men's coats, men's hosiery, [illegible] boys' and "prep" [illegible] coats, sweaters, shirts and [illegible] There was also a good demand for men's suits and [illegible] the latter for Spring. [illegible] clothing. Spring clothing [illegible] flannel [illegible] For [illegible] offered [illegible] season [illegible] items is [illegible] for later delivery.

JOHN M. BIGGINS, INC.—There has been a demand for popular-price crash and [illegible] printed silk crêpes [illegible] immediate delivery. The business [illegible] on printed silk crêpes [illegible] encouraging. Plain and printed [illegible] to retail at $1.39 and $1.49 [illegible] popular. Reorders [illegible] shades in leather purses [illegible] in impressive ranges [illegible] the modish snake [illegible] styles are bringing [illegible]

ASSOCIATED CLOTHIERS, INC.—[illegible] this office last week, buyers [illegible] for February. Men's clothing [illegible] two-trouser suits [illegible] to retail under $35 [illegible] were [illegible] advantageous "buys." In [illegible] shirts were the major [illegible]

item, with plain colors especially sought. Neckwear ordinarily retailing at $1, $1.50 and $2 was purchased to sell at considerable reductions. In general the week saw the largest volume of purchases made by this office for some time for immediate retail needs. This week promises to see a continuance of this activity.

BEN F. LEVIS—Business opened up with printed crêpes in best demand during the week. A sudden demand for printed chiffons has sprung up and manufacturers are rushing new prints through the mills as fast as possible. Medium tone grounds predominate, such as brown, green, blue, tan, navy and black. Styles are mainly of the modified silhouette type with even hemlines. Redingotes continue on chiffons and georgettes. The most popular types of millinery are felts trimmed with [illegible] ranging in price from $7.50 a dozen to $12. In the better hats manufacturers are showing toyos and [illegible] Matron styles are being shown in felts, straws, bakus and viscas.

JACK HARTLEY, INC.—Items liberally purchased in the week were men's topcoats, overcoats and suits in all price ranges. Considerable price concessions were received as stocks are plentiful and many manufacturers are desirous of disposing of them. In boys' clothing activity centred chiefly on leatherette sheep-lined coats and blue serge suits. The latter were sought both with two pairs of golf knickers and with one pair of long trousers and knickers. Many orders were noted for boys' separate trousers. Liberal business is being placed in Spring clothing. Meeting with buyers' approval is a man's sport coat of flannel and unfinished worsted in pastel shades, to be worn with trousers of contrasting color.

Adds New Spring Woolens.

A number of additional ranges of women's wear sport fabrics for Spring will be opened today by the American Woolen Company.

HOGS AVERAGE HIGH AS SHIPMENTS DROP

Cattle and Fat Lambs Also Bring Better Prices in the Chicago Market.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Hog and cattle averages at Chicago last week were the highest since October, and fat lambs brought the best prices since last July. Supplies of hogs, although larger than the previous week when marketing was delayed by storms, were less than last year, as well as below the five-year average.

Scarcity of choice yearling steers enabled holders to secure $16.75, while the best heavies were $16, and average of all beef steers of $13.25 was 35 cents over the previous week and 25 cents above a year ago. Closing trades were at net gains of 25 to 50 cents on the general run of steers, cows and heifers, and feeders were up only 25 cents.

Fat lambs met an active demand, with an advance of 90 cents to $1.10, which was held at the last, making an average of $13.60, against $12.75 the previous week and $16.30 last year. Supplies are running smaller, although receipts for the week were 20,000 more than the previous week, 12,000 under last year and 22,000 less than two years ago. Colorado feeders are said to be holding their flocks until prices reach $15, and Westerns reach $14.75 at the close of the past week. It is expected this advance will increase the marketing movement.

Sheep advanced $1.75 and averaged $6.70, which was $1.10 under a year ago and the highest since last May.

Dressed lamb was in more active demand at 20 to 28 cents, pork loins firmer at 17 to 23½ cents and dressed beef unchanged at 16 to 25 cents.

Receipts of live stock at Chicago, with comparisons, follow:

BUSINESS IS FAIR IN WEST.

Steel Improves in Chicago—Freight Car Loadings Decline.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—With steel showing improvement, its influence on other lines is being felt in a moderate way and business throughout the West, while quiet in spots, is said to be of fair seasonal average. There are scattered liquidations, but prospects are considered favorable for a good average distribution and consumption. Steel operations in the Chicago district have increased 10 per cent within a week to a basis of 60 per cent of capacity, or a little better in some instances. Rail mills are at 85 per cent capacity.

Large buying of fine copper wire featured the wire industry. Although many soft coal miners in the Middle West are idle, there is no shortage of supplies, while consumption averages well. Lumber mills are doing an average business and yard dealers are stocking up to a fair extent. Furniture makers who met here last week reported good advance orders.

Storms in the West and Northwest interrupted trade in the interior and reduced country marketing and loading of grain for shipment to terminal markets. Revenue freight loadings on western railroads, with few exceptions, show decreases from December and from January last year.

PROVISIONS IN CHICAGO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Export business in lard improved materially, and it is estimated that a round fifty carloads were sold abroad, largely in Germany, by Chicago packers in the past week.

Closing trades were well toward the highest of the week, with net gains of 20 to 30 cents, January being $10.25, March $10.40 and May $10.60.

Dry salted clear bellies made a net advance of 20 to 45 cents, closing at $11.90 for January and $12.25 for May. Slaughtering of hogs at leading packing points throughout the country for the year 1929 was 48,444,604, compared with 49,795,408 in 1928.

Raw Silk Sales Up for Week.

There were 7,370 bales of raw silk futures traded over the National Raw Silk Exchange last week, with a value of approximately $4,311,450, compared with 4,345 bales valued at approximately $2,500,000 for the same week last year.

COMMODITY AVERAGE SLIGHTLY UP FOR WEEK

Previous Week's Loss Regained—British and Italian Prices Again Went Lower.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 10.—Professor Irving Fisher's index number of commodity prices, based on 100 as the average of 1926, is 93.1, which compares with 93.0 the week before, 93.1 two weeks before, 92.8 three weeks before and 92.7 four weeks before. The average of July 2, 99.2, was the highest of 1929; the average of Nov. 22, 92.2, was the lowest.

Crump's index number of British commodity prices, as cabled for the past week, and also based on 100 as the average for 1926, is 87.3, which compares with 87.5 a week ago, 88.0 two weeks ago, 88.3 three weeks ago and 88.6 four weeks ago. The average of April 5, 94.4, was the highest of 1929; that of Dec. 27, 88.0, was the lowest.

The index number of average Italian prices, compiled and cabled by the Chamber of Commerce at Milan, and based on 100 as the average of 1926, is 69.8. This compares with 69.9 the week before, 70.1 two weeks before, 70.4 three weeks before and 70.6 four weeks before. The average of March 12 and 22 was the highest for 1929 to date; the 70.1 of Dec. 27 was the lowest.

To Speak at Silk Trade Banquet.

Sir Henry Worth Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, and Charles Hanson Towne, editor of Harper's Bazaar, will speak at the fifty-eighth annual dinner of the Silk Association of America, it was announced yesterday. The banquet will be held on Thursday night in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor.

Coffee Exchange Report.

The annual report of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange shows current receipts, exclusive of income from properties owned wholly or in part, of $244,439. Income from properties amounted to $40,161.

Disbursements for the year totaled $108,298. The report shows that $175,546 is invested in United States bonds. As of Dec. 31 the assets exceeded the liabilities by $852,595 on a basis of actual cost.

DELANEY PLANNING SHAKE-UP IN BOARD

Requirements for Engineers to Be Raised Because of Huge Program for Next Decade.

LINK TO DOWNING BILL

Albany Measure Would Give the Transportation Body Wide Power in Planning and Surveying.

A general reorganization of the Board of Transportation, entailing a reclassification of personnel under the civil service rules, will soon be under way, it was disclosed yesterday. Although the change will be effected regardless of the fate of pending city bills at Albany, it is closely linked with a measure introduced by Senator Downing, virtually setting up the Board of Transportation as an official city-wide planning commission.

This bill, introduced primarily to authorize the board to construct the vehicular tunnels under the Narrows between Brooklyn and Staten Island and under the East River between Thirty-eighth Street and Long Island City, also empowers it, with the approval of the Board of Estimate, to hold hearings and make investigations, reports and recommendations "with respect to highways, bridges, tunnels, railroads, ferries or other means of transportation of persons or property within the limits of the city as the Board of Estimate may require."

If the bill is passed it will give the Board of Transportation power to conduct a survey as broad in scope as the one recently made by Day & Zimmermann, Philadelphia engineers, Chairman John H. Delaney declared.

Mr. Delaney explained that the board had frequently used its large and expert engineering staff to investigate and report on projects not strictly within its powers. This has been done, he said, for the benefit of other city departments charged with carrying out these projects. Such work has been done for the Department of Plant and Structures and for Borough Presidents. The mapping out of bus routes has also been carried on as an extension of the powers granted by the State when the board was created in 1924.

Reorganization of the board, Mr. Delaney explained, is necessary, if for no other reason, because of the demands of the huge new subway construction and planning program for the next decade or more. The principal changes will be in the engineering departments, where the educational requirements for various positions will be raised. Under the present civil service classifications hundreds of employes, for example, are listed as engineers without possessing the technical requirements for actual engineering service. It is regarded as probable that several employes may be dropped for failure to meet the new requirements, although the reorganization is being planned so that this may be avoided if possible.

Mr. Delaney declared that the board was not seeking to usurp the powers of any other department, but merely to bring them into coordination with the general transit situation.

If the new bill passes it will enable the board to conduct with authority many important negotiations now carried on informally. In this class fall the various negotiations with surface car companies over the surrender of perpetual franchises in exchange for terminable permits to operate bus lines.

Passage of the bill would also enable the Board of Estimate to turn over to the transportation board for investigation, study and report all problems involving mass movement of traffic, such as those involved in subway, trolley, elevated and bus travel. It would also provide an official body to tackle the problems of road facilities and capacities for private automobiles, motor trucking and taxicab traffic.

ELECTRIC MEN TO MEET.

Conference Opens Today at Westinghouse Lighting Institute.

Representatives of electrical leagues from forty cities will meet at the third midwinter conference at 9 A. M. today at the Westinghouse Lighting Institute, Forty-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue. They will be in session three days. The meeting will be under auspices of the League Council and sponsored by the Society for Electrical Development, Inc.

The opening remarks will be by R. Bourke Corcoran, chairman of the League Council. An address of welcome will be made by W. W. Freeman, chairman of the board of the Union Gas and Electric Company and president of the Society for Electrical Development.

This afternoon Roscoe C. Edlund, manager of the Association of American Soap and Glycerine Producers, Inc., will speak on sales promotion.

CHILE SCHOOL FUND RAISED

$150,000 Given to Meet Terms of Gift by Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Migel.

The $150,000 fund sought by public subscription, required by the terms of a gift of similar amount by Mr. and Mrs. Moses C. Migel of this city, the whole amount to be used for a new building for the Santiago College for Girls, Santiago, Chile, has been completed, it was announced yesterday by Dr. Ralph E. Diffendorfer of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Migel, in making their gift, expressed the wish that the college would be aided in the work of establishing "a kindlier mutual understanding making toward peace and security between the Latin Americans and ourselves." The college was organized by missionaries from this country in 1880, and soon was patronized by the daughters of the wealthy in Chile.

Acquires Bus Service to Montreal.

Bus service to Montreal now operated by the Gray Line Motor Tours will be taken over by the Champlain Coach Lines, Inc., beginning Jan. 15, it was announced by the Fifth Avenue Coach Company yesterday. The new company is owned jointly by the Fifth Avenue Coach Company and the Provincial Transport Company, which will continue its part of the operation as it did under arrangement with the Gray line.

Barnard Plans Spanish Cottage.

Plans for a Spanish caseta or cottage at Barnard College will be discussed at a luncheon, attended by members of the Spanish colony, to be given by Miss Virginia Gildersleeve and Miss Carolina Marcial Dorado, today. Senor Enrique Fernandez Arbos, guest conductor of the Philharmonic-Symphony, will be the guest of honor at the luncheon.

BUILDERS FILE DATA ON NEW LIEN LAW

They Answer Questionnaires With Bankers and Material Men for Fearon Committee.

LITTLE SUBPOENAING SEEN

Attorney Expresses Satisfaction With Promptness of Replies—No Hearing Date Set.

T. Paul McGannon, attorney for the Fearon legislative committee investigating operation of the recently amended lien law, has expressed satisfaction at the number of questionnaires filed with the committee. Friday was the deadline date for filing the answers. Although Mr. McGannon did not estimate the number of answered questionnaires, he said he felt that the committee would not have to unduly exert its subpoena power to obtain the initial information required to launch the investigation into the operation of the lien law of New York.

Allen E. Beals, writing in the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports, says: "In cases where negligent or evasive answers have been made to the questionnaire, however, it has been made plain that replies will be required from offending corporation officials on the witness stand and under oath, for so many allegations and counter-charges have been bandied about Legislative halls at Albany concerning the difficulties building contracting and supply firms have labored with under the lien law, that Senator Fearon and his confreres have decided that these evils, if they really exist, should be adequately corrected before another era of great building construction activity gets fairly under way.

"General stress now seems to be directed toward obtaining further amendment to the New York State lien law whereby liens shall attach from the date of commencement of the operation. Heretofore, financial interests have objected to this provision although forty-four other States have such a provision in their lien laws. Former State Senator John B. Rose, president of the Association for the Revision of the New York State Lien Law, said: 'This is the safeguard we sought last year by the notice of commencement provision, and, in my opinion, it is the only safeguard that will give the building material man and construction interests in general, the protection they should have.'

"Meantime, building supply firms, other than those that have heretofore actively participated in the campaign to clarify the credit situation through the enactment of an adequate lien law, have taken steps to have their interests represented in the Association for the Revision of the New York State Lien Law during the forthcoming investigation and applications have come in for representation on the directorate of the association formed to procure relief for the building trades in general."

Mr. McGannon said he could give no intimation as to when actual hearings would begin on the information supplied in the questionnaires, explaining that during the session of the State Legislature at Albany, when the members of the committee would be engrossed with legislative matters, the information contained in the questionnaires would be checked and put into shape for analysis prior to public examination.

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE

Summary of Security Sales During Past Week.

The New York Real Estate Securities Exchange completed its fourth week of trading by admitting to trading the first block of stock since its opening last Dec. 16. Security dealings heretofore had been confined to bond issues. All guaranteed mortgage bonds of numerous bond and mortgage companies have now been admittted to unlisted trading privileges. Sales on the Exchange last week showed an increase and were as follows:

MEN 50 YEARS OF AGE OR OVER.
I HAVE A GOOD JOB FOR YOU.

I do not care how much over 50 years of age you are, so long as you have a good reputation, are active and want to make money. I believe that the contacts men make with others over a long period of years, either in business or professional life, are an asset to them in the selling field which a younger man or a beginner would lack.

The years that you have lived coming into contact with human nature are golden—if you will only turn them to account. This is a salesman's most valuable asset. I'll give you an opportunity to capitalize it and teach you the fundamentals of selling in the worth-while field of real estate. The commissions are large enough for you to sustain yourself as a man of 50 or over should. You can now turn your lifetime's work in other fields to good advantage. I'll give a job to every man who qualifies, regardless of his age, and his income will be limited only by the hours he devotes to this pleasing and pleasant profession. Come and see me, no matter what your experience or past employment has been. I will interview you personally at 10 A. M. and 2:30 P. M. only.

HARRY LEVY REALTIES, INC.,
1,457 Broadway, New York, 10th floor.

MEN.

We are looking for six energetic, forceful men of good appearance who are willing to work conscientiously and are capable of being developed to handle and train men and step into

EXECUTIVE POSITIONS.

The men selected will be thoroughly trained at the company's expense; they will then be required to sell in the field on advance commission and bonus basis, which will enable them to earn an excellent income from the start.

We are a large international sales organization, well financed, and are now developing the United States territory, which is bound to be the most profitable operation the company has yet undertaken.

Our electric product is used and endorsed by banks, theatres, business houses, State and municipal institutions, United States Government, &c.; medical authorities are enthusiastic as to its sanitary features.

Personal interview Monday, 10-12 A. M.

F. J. BLANCHARD, ROOM 1317, WILLIAMSBURGH BANK BLDG., 1 HANSON PLACE, BROOKLYN. Near Atlantic Av. Station, L. I. R. R., B. M. T. and I. R. T. Subways.

Sales Help Wanted—Male.

EXPERIENCE WANTED.

Some people have an idea that just because a man is a salesman he must naturally make a big income; there are, however, hundreds of salesmen, including real estate salesmen, who are only making fair earnings; in many cases the only reason why they are not drawing big commissions is that they are almost hopelessly handicapped by a poor or indifferent proposition to offer their customers and prospects.

We feel sure that if some of these salesmen could join the HARMON NATIONAL, which for the last 43 years has been unusually successful in selecting properties which have earned approximately $800,000,000 for HARMON investors, they would have every opportunity (which they now lack) of establishing themselves in the big commission class.

HARMON NATIONAL is the father of real estate development in America. Our salesmen are a vital part of our business. They are given every possible help to enable them to sell our properties with the least amount of time and negotiation. We have found that by carefully selecting the finest type of salesmen, by giving them A1 properties to sell and by backing them with the resources of a national organization, these men have been able to go out and earn big commissions for themselves consistently and worth-while profits for us. This is only good business.

If you know how to sell, if you earnestly want to increase your present income, then we ought to have a talk with each other. Please come up to the 15th floor and ask for Mr. Mortimer, Sales Manager. If you meet our requirements we will start you out immediately ... on your way to earn bigger commissions than you have ever earned before.

ARTHUR KILL SPANS SHOW RISING INCOME

More Than $1,000,000 Paid by 1,783,487 in 18 Months, Port Authority Reports.

GOETHALS BRIDGE POPULAR

Outerbridge Crossing Failed to Meet Expectations While Road Approaches Were Being Built.

The Port of New York Authority announced yesterday that traffic over the two Arthur Kill bridges between Staten Island and New Jersey had totaled 1,783,487 motorists and brought gross receipts of more than $1,000,000 in the eighteen months of their operation, ending in December, 1929. In the last six months of 1929 travel increased 25 per cent over the corresponding period of 1928.

The figures showed that the Outerbridge crossing between Perth Amboy and Tottenville had not fulfilled expectations, whereas the Goethals bridge between Elizabeth and Howland Hook, which was reported financially successful in the last twelve months, was actually successful. The Port Authority blames the poor approach facilities of the Outerbridge in the latter months for the failure of motorists to patronize it.

The city of New York recently opened new connecting highways and the prolonged period during which the New York approaches were incomplete, when the highways were under construction, prompted motorists who were its original patrons to neglect the Outerbridge crossing. Final totals show that the Goethals bridge was used by 970,782 motorists in the eighteen months of its operation and the Outerbridge crossing by 812,705. The total of 300,753 motorists using the Outerbridge crossing in six months in 1928 advanced only to 511,952 in the twelve months of 1929, whereas the Goethals figure of 296,241 for six months went to 674,541 in the next twelve months.

The annual audit of accounts has not been completed, but an operating surplus of $250,000 is available for the future, in addition to $1,200,000 saved from construction costs for use on bond retirements. A force of twenty-one men in three shifts operates from the two spans with a monthly payroll of $4,400. In the first months of operation the staff totaled fifty men. Overhead costs of an indirect nature, including duties performed at the Port Authority offices, totaled $12,600 in eleven months of 1929.

In the eleven audited months of 1929, the Goethals bridge earned $94,000 above operating expenses, whereas the Outerbridge lost. Inasmuch as the two spans were financed as a single unit, however, the Goethals bridge earnings were devoted to the expense of the Outerbridge crossing. It was found necessary to apply $9,000 to the latter from the operating surplus of $273,000 available from 1928. For 1929 the Outerbridge crossing will require $25,000 from the reserve of $273,000, the Port Authority estimates.

SHIP LINES ENDING SECOND CLASS RATE

Popularity of Tourist Third Passages Forces Them to Abandon Older Service.

The success of the tourist third cabin, introduced in the Atlantic passenger trade on the sailing of the Atlantic Transport liner Minnekahda from New York on July 3, is fast eliminating the old second-cabin class.

The Holland America Line has announced that its steamships, with the exception of the Statendam, will cut out the second-class accommodation, and it is understood in steamship circles that the Cunard Line intends to abolish the second cabin on the Mauretania. All these ships will still have three classes of passenger accommodation, first, tourist third cabin and the regular third class or steerage. The Italian, German and Swedish steamship lines still carry many second-cabin passengers.

In the British lines the second cabin passengers discovered they were paying at least a third more for their passage than tourist third cabin rates, while, they said, the latter had all the fun. Tourist third cabins were provided with jazz orchestras, entertainments of all kinds and were "petted" by the captain and the crew, it was charged, while all the unfortunate second-class passengers received was gloom.

It is predicted by veteran steamship men that in about twelve months the second class will cease to exist with one or two exceptions.

In the early days of Atlantic steamship travel there were only two classes, first and third. About forty years ago a new class called "intermediate" crept into use and gradually became known as second class. At first the fare was ten to fifteen dollars more than the steerage and passengers had table linen, beds and knives and forks instead of having to bring their own eating implements.

The tourist third cabin passage is equal to that of the first class of the Baltic type of passenger liner prior to the war.

NEGRO THIEF PONDERS ON A POLICE MIRACLE

Fleeing With $111, He Meets Squads Changing Shifts and Marvels in Cell at Omniscience.

Otto Holloway, a homeless negro, 20 years old, has concluded that 20,000 is a ridiculously low estimate of the number of policemen in New York City. Thinking it over in his cell in the West Side prison yesterday, he decided that the myriad angels of his dreams were less numerous than the bluecoats of New York. He also decided that the police had two other points in common with the angelic hosts—a flair for the swift avenging of wrongdoing and a supernatural ability to appear from nowhere.

Crime prevention in the city would be well served if Holloway's object lesson could be transmitted to all erring purse-snatchers. Rolling his eyes in his gloomy cell, Holloway reached a firm determination to go straight—to be free—to be straight out of New York and a long way from bluecoats.

Holloway needed money Saturday afternoon, and needed it badly. He took a position at the foot of the stairs of the subway station at Eighteenth Street and Seventh Avenue. Miss Rosalie Hirsch came down with a bulging purse—no one else was in sight.

There was perfect timing in the sweeping snatch of Holloway's right hand and his nimble flight up the stairs to the street, three at a time. During the instant it took Miss Hirsch to realize that the lounging negro who had been standing there so dully had taken her purse, he was putting good yardage between them. Then Miss Hirsch ran after him.

Holloway was speeding up Seventh Avenue. The money he needed was safely gripped in his hand. He was nearing Twentieth Street. Around the corner he would slow to a walk, slip into the first hallway and safety would be at hand.

Holloway overlooked one or two minor points. Policemen on beat change shifts at 4 o'clock. It was 4 o'clock. And the Tenth Precinct is in Twentieth Street between Seventh and Eighth Avenues. The 4 o'clock shift was just marching out of the station house. These details have not yet been explained to Holloway.

So far as he could see, the avenging bluecoats simply sprang up from the pavement as he rounded the corner of Twentieth Street. A solid phalanx confronted him. He turned, only to face another solid phalanx. He twisted and dodged, passing, it seemed, thousands of bluecoats and brass buttons. He fled into a garage, and there he gave up as 10,000 more policemen confronted him.

Holloway was held without bail in Jefferson Market court yesterday morning by Magistrate Renaud. He was remanded to the West Side prison to await the action of the grand jury and meditate upon the omnipresence of the police. The purse, found on him contained $111.70.

WILL WEIGH RATE CASE.

New York Shippers to Discuss Intervening in Jersey Action.

The Shippers' Conference of Greater New York will meet tomorrow afternoon at the Merchants' Association to consider intervention before the Interstate Commerce Commission in the case brought last week by the New Jersey traffic advisory committee attacking the whole inland freight rate structure affecting New York Harbor.

Parker McCollester, who had been retained by the State Chamber of Commerce and other organizations as special counsel to direct the New York fight on the lighterage action, will address the shippers' conference on the issues involved in the two suits.

London Paper Says New Canadian Government Line Will Place It.

LONDON, Jan. 12 (Canadian Press).—The Sunday News said today that a large shipbuilding contract for a new Canadian government line of passenger and cargo steamers probably would be placed soon in Liverpool.

The newspaper stated bids had already been invited for construction of a fleet of ships to run between Montreal and Cape Town and India.

EAST MEETS WEST AT GRAVE OF CHINESE

Body of Charlie Boston Borne by Motor—Paper Bits Strewn to Avert Evil Spirits.

FUNERAL IS PRESBYTERIAN

But Bands and Incantations of His Own People Guard Their "Mayor," Buried in Dinner Jacket and Spats.

The new and the old of New York's crooked little Chinatown mingled in the rain yesterday afternoon for Charlie Boston's funeral. Just as he himself had combined the pomp of the West and the East, so did his last ride through the gnarled streets where he had been so long a power. For an Italian band played the "Dead March From Saul" at the same time two Chinese bands plaintively warded off the evil spirits.

It was an unfortunate matter that no Taoist priest could be found to conduct the services. But it was not to be, so a Presbyterian minister of his own people was in charge. There was no mounted policeman at the head of the procession, either, although a uniformed patrolman in the first car of the procession provided a guard of honor.

Despite the formal Presbyterian services and the motor-driven hearse that has displaced Chinatown's famous equipage drawn by six coal-black horses, Charlie's friends saw to it that his last journey would be untroubled by Western evil spirits. The two Chinese bands warded them off along the route from Chinatown to the cemetery, and papers were scattered along the way to confuse them further. Rice, wine and chicken were placed in the grave, that he should want nothing.

The streets of Chinatown lay soggy in the mist and rain of early afternoon when the services started. They were held in the small side chapel of the "Wish You Long and Happy Life" funeral parlors, near the beginning of Mulberry Street.

The Rev. K. C. Yueng officiated, and at the end of the service he delivered a short eulogy. Charlie, he said, had had a long and fruitful life and he had done much for the uplift of New York's Chinese citizens. The minister spoke for about five minutes, in Chinese, and then the coffin was borne from the yellow-lighted room to the wet streets.

It was there placed in the motor hearse, which led the procession through Chinatown. The Italian band walked just behind it, playing a dirge, and it was followed by many members of the On Leong Tong, in which Charlie had been an influential member.

The procession, with its bands, flowers and incantations, moved slowly up Mulberry Street, past the long rows of brownish tenements and groups of children who stood watching. At Canal it turned over to the Bowery and down to Pell Street. Then it went solemnly through Pell, Doyers and Mott Streets.

Finally, when the procession had ended, the group split up into more than 100 automobiles, which started for the Cypress Hills Cemetery in Brooklyn. The first car contained just one man, who, as it went along, threw out small bits of paper to confuse the spirits. Behind the car was the hearse, then five cars of flowers, the two buses and the rest of the mourners.

The body of Charlie Boston was lowered into the grave almost without ceremony. He was provided with the rice, wine and chicken, and over his grave the flowers were piled into a huge arch. A sheaf of wheat was placed at the head of the grave, just under the arch made by the flowers. The banners, almost indecipherable from the rain, were put upright into the ground just behind. One of the banners said "Man of Honor and Youthfulness." As the mourners left the cemetery they received five-cent pieces wrapped in small bits of paper.

Charlie, like Chinatown, had become Westernized in all save religion. When he died the other day at the age of 67 he had been accredited with being the quarter's great power, with being able to keep peace between his tong and the Hip Sings. But instead of the long robe of blue that he would have worn on his last trip through Chinatown before it changed he was dressed in a dinner jacket. And as the mourners filed by the coffin in the little room on Mulberry Street they saw that instead of sandals he wore low shoes—and spats.

Of the friends who came from uptown to pay their respects were many followers of the prize ring. Joe Humphreys, the announcer; Eddie Cass, a one-time featherweight, and George Hogan were among them.

200 BOYS VISIT SCENE OF ROOSEVELT'S BIRTH

Mrs. Robinson, Sister of Late President, Talks to Group in Her Childhood Home.

About 200 members of the Quentin Roosevelt Post and Aviation Corps of the United States Junior Naval Guards, an organization of young men which seeks to carry out the ideals of Theodore Roosevelt, paid a visit yesterday afternoon to the Roosevelt House, 28 East Twentieth Street, where the former President was born.

The visit was made in connection with the anniversary of Roosevelt's death, on Jan. 6. The Rev. Clarence J. Harris, pastor of the Washington Heights Universalist Church and executive commander of the Junior Naval Guards, led a tour of inspection through the house, which contains a museum of Roosevelt memorabilia.

The boys, who ranged in years from eight to the early twenties, then gathered in the auditorium on the top floor of the building to hear a short talk by Mrs. Douglas Robinson, sister of Theodore Roosevelt. A patriotic ceremony was also held and a Roosevelt moving picture shown.

Mrs. Robinson recalled her childhood in the house on Twentieth Street when Theodore Roosevelt was her big brother. She told several stories of pranks he had played with other boys of the neighborhood and said that even as a boy he was courageous, and sometimes daring.

TRANSIT BOARD TO TEST I.R.T. BAR ON PASSAGE

Will Seek to Intervene in Suit by Company to Prevent Tunnel From Chrysler Building.

Because its power to regulate construction of passageways leading to subway stations has been challenged by the Interborough, the Transit Commission is planning to ask the Supreme Court for the right to intervene in the suit brought by the company to restrain construction of a passageway connecting the new Chrysler Building, at Forty-second Street and Lexington Avenue, with the mezzanine floor of the Grand Central subway station.

The company obtained a temporary restraining order, returnable on Jan. 6. Hearing was postponed until next Monday. Construction of the passageway under Lexington Avenue, connecting with the existing passageway from the Graybar Building to the mezzanine, the company contended, would overtax the capacity of the station by bringing to it thousands of additional passengers to increase existing congestion.

The Transit Commission, before granting the Chrysler interests permission to construct the passageway, conferred with company officials and were told that consent would not be given unless the company was allowed to maintain a closed gate at its mezzanine entrance, not to be opened except in emergencies. The commission contends that it has the right to authorize construction of a passageway, free from any barrier, without the company's assent.

Replying to the company's argument against overcrowding, the commission asserts that those of the 50,000 occupants of the Chrysler Building who use the Interborough subway will find their way to its platforms whether they use a tunnel or cross the street on the surface. It was intimated that the Interborough might have under consideration the fact that many occupants of the building would merely use the passageway as a convenient means of access to the Grand Central terminal without depositing any nickels in the company's turnstiles.

BUY NO DESK

Until You've Seen the Sensation of The Business Show

Buy no desk until you have seen Skyscraper, the new desk by Shaw-Walker. You'll marvel at the downright cleverness of it. You'll revel in the rich beauty of it. You'll be amazed at the organized features of it. And you'll gladly pay the moderate price asked for it. Your people, too, will thank you for an easier and better day's work.

No wonder the Skyscraper Desk by Shaw-Walker was the sensation at the Business Show.

Every desk-interested person who saw it, whether office worker, executive, official, or professional man, admired the way in which it solves old-time desk problems.

It has a new kind of top—smooth and glove-like. No other desk can have it.

Each drawer is organized for the worker's special convenience. One drawer is your "waste basket." Another takes a special model flat-type telephone. Others hold trays for "In," "Out" and "Pending" mail. Others, special card files, visible indexes, pencils, pads, accessories, etc.

BILLIONS OF GALLONS OF PURE SIERRA WATER

Billions of gallons of sparkling, pure water have been captured in the Sierra Nevada Mountains . . . to insure an abundant, permanent supply for rapidly-growing industries and expanding residential districts of Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, Emeryville, San Leandro, and other cities of Alameda County, California.

Visioning a certain, logical, glorious destiny as "Western Capital of Commerce", millions were invested by a world-minded citizenry to complete the Mokelumne River Water Project . . . in world-record time.

Huge Pardee Dam, 358 feet high, releases 60 million crystal-clear gallons a day. Across lush valleys, under rivers, through hills in 84 miles of steel pipe and concrete aqueduct, this snow-kissed water speeds to the western edge of the North American Continent, on the eastern, land side of broad San Francisco Bay.

Mokelumne Project is an inspiring monument, in practical stone and steel, to this community's willingness to cooperate with America's foremost industrialists who plan western branches.
